For costumes en suite, velvet will always take the lead.

Newest bonnets range in prices as high as $38 and $40.

Clerical-looking collars, with squares of linen in front are stylish.

Quiet neutral tints are still the choice of the refined in kid gloves.

Evening gloves are rather deeper in tone than those of last season.

Waists of French dresses are cut long, and are very high in the neck.

New neck-ties have a band to pass around the neck and a great carelessly-puffed rosette in front with short, fringed ends.

—The kind and quality of food given to fowls must necessarily exercise an influence upon the quality of their eggs and flesh, although usually little attention is paid to the matter. A gentleman who kept a large poultry yard found, occasionally, that the eggs of his hens had an unpleasant rancid taste, and on inquiry ascertained that this was always the case when the food consisted of hemp or flax seed.

—An untutored man in Boston, when reproached for the extravagant charge he had made for certain services, exclaimed "Well, isn't it better to be a hog and get well paid for your work than to be a good fellow and get kicked from pillar to post?" With that man evidently, business is business.

—The fact that a fossilized oyster has been found on one of the mountain peaks in Utah is worthy the consideration of geologists. Is it a relic of the pre-Adamite period, or the debris of some aboriginal feast in later ages, when oysters contributed the first course of savage epicures?

—An East Indian policeman has got into trouble through his ingenuity in giving a native woman a galvanic shock for the purpose of inducing a confession. The woman went immediately and suicided, on the supposition that the Evil One had hold of her.

—The editor of the Cleveland Plaindealer says that he received a letter from Mr. Halstead of the Cincinnati Commercial. The sheet looked as if a lot of flies had been playing a game of base ball on it and had had a quarrel with the umpire.

—Discretion is the better part of valor.— Tom and Arthur have been rude to their mamma: Mamma has complained to papa, who is heard coming up stairs. Arthur—I say, Tom, here comes papa; I shall pretend to be asleep. Tom —I sha'n't; I shall get up and put something on.—Judy.

—"Ella, my child," said a prudish old maid to a pretty niece, who would curl her hair in pretty ringlets, "if the Lord had intended your hair to be curled, he would have done it himself." "So he did, aunty, when I was a baby, but he thinks I am big enough now to do it myself."

—A remarkable preacher was that who called upon his congregation to be thankful that Providence should have placed death at the end of life, and not in the middle, so that we might have all possible time to prepare for it.

—General Brice, the Haytien Minister to France, who hunted down the ex-Emperor Soulouque, has been twice hanged by the neck; twice the rope slipped; and in three sieges, lived comfortable by eating the soles of his boots.

A witness in a liquor trial at Lyndon, Vt., last week aroused an unpleasantness in the court room by testifying that he drank with two men—one of the lawyers employed in the case, and the justice who was hearing it.

—A husband in Indiana recently hired a man for $2.50 to beat his wife for him.

THE
NOVELTY CLOTHES WRINGER.
Nothing, except the Sewing Machine, has ever been invented which so much relieves the labor of the household as the Wringer. But its usefulness does not end here. The saving of clothing is of much greater importance. It is often remarked that articles of fine texture, last twice as long when wrung in a Wringer as when wrung by hand. The NOVELTY has Cog-wheels on both ends. * * The rolls are allowed to separate at either end. These, besides other advantages which it contains, seem to be indispensable to a practical wringer.—New York Independent.
The Novelty Wringer has become an indispensable institution in thousands of families. And we believe its great and increasing popularity is fully merited—for the Novelty evidently possess all the requisites of a first-class, practical machine. Indeed, after using one for many months in our own family, we are prepared to indorse the Novelty as unsurpassed (the hundred days says unequalled,) by any of the several wringers previously tried.—Moore's Rural New Yorker.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 29, 1871.

MASSACHUSETTS CONVENTION.

After the Convention was organized, the Republican State Central Committee and the senators and representatives in Congress were invited to take seats in the convention, but without the right to vote.

Mr. Slack of Boston presented the memorial of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association (the same which was so cavalierly treated by the Democratic convention,) and it was referred to the committee on resolutions without being read.

A resolution to vote by counties, and to keep the vote of each county separate from the others until counted, passed unanimously. At about 6 o'clock the convention adjourned until 7.

On reassembling in the evening, the committee on credentials reported that the whole number of delegates returned was 1106. There was considerable discussion concerning contested seats, and majority and minority reports, the latter being in Gen. Butler's interest; the former was adopted, 607 to 460.

Shortly before 11 o'clock the formal balloting for a candidate for governor began, and was finished at 5 minutes past midnight. The chairman of the committee on balloting reported that several of the counties cast more votes than the counties were entitled to, varying in number from two to six, in all thirteen votes. The result of the balloting was then given as follows:—

Necessary for a choice	559
Alexander H. Rice had	1
George B. Loring	8
Benjamin F. Butler	464
William B. Washburn	643

The announcement was made at twenty-seven minutes past twelve o'clock, and was received with enthusiastic demonstrations both on the floor and in the galleries. It was moved that Hon. William B. Washburn be declared the nominee of the convention; and the motion was almost unanimously carried, there being only one or two faint, opposing voices in the rear of the hall.

Hon. Joseph Tucker was nominated for lieutenant-governor, Hon. Oliver Warner for secretary of State, Hon. Charles Endicott for auditor and Hon. Charles Adams for treasurer and receiver-general — all by acclamation; and Hon. Charles R. Train was nominated by ballot for attorney-general.

The resolutions passed were prefaced by a preamble setting forth that "The republican party needs no 'new departure,' but only a strict adherence to those principles that have preserved the Union, secured freedom and equality before the law to all classes, and diminished the burdens of the people by an honest and economical administration of the government," and endorse the national administration and the principles of the Republican party, urge upon Congress the careful consideration of shipbuilding and shipowning interests and the question of woman suffrage, and pledge the party to guard the interests of the laboring men.

The convention then adjourned, at 20 minutes past 1 o'clock, A. M., on Thursday.

NEW YORK CONVENTION.

The New York Republican State Convention met at Syracuse on Wednesday, Sept. 27, and after a good deal of confusion chose Andrew D. White as temporary chairman; the three-cornered Fenton-Conkling-Greeley quarrel served to make things lively. There was discussion on the question of contested seats, but finally both delegations from New York city were admitted, and the convention adjourned at 11:30 P. M., till Thursday morning.

The convention re-assembled on Thursday, and a motion to allow the Murphy delegation from New York to throw the full vote (the Greeley delegation having bolted the convention the day before) was withdrawn. Andrew D. White was chosen President of the convention, and G. Hilton Scribner was nominated for Secretary of State by acclamation. Delegations from four districts then left the convention, after which Nelson K. Hopkins was nominated for Comptroller, Thos. E. Raines for Treasurer, Francis C. Barlow for Attorney General, William Taylor for State Engineer and Surveyor, and Alexander Barkley for Canal Commissioner.

A BIG MURDERER.—In the Maine superior court at Portland, the Grand Trunk Railway Company was recently convicted of murder, for running over and killing David P. Rullen at Yarmouth, in August, 1869, the jury being out less than an hour. This is the second time the case has been tried, and having convicted the murderer we hope they will now hang him.

POLITICAL.

The Boston Journal calls Alex. H. Stephens a "venerable calamity." Efforts are being made to reconcile the two Republican factions in Missouri.

A report is widely circulated among the colored people of Arkansas, that Horace Greely belongs to the Ku-Klux Klan.

Mr. Orange S. Winans, who voted last winter in the New York Assembly at the dictation of the "Ring" leaders, was a candidate for a renomination. But he greatly mistook the temper of his constituents, for they unanimously rejected his claims, and put in nomination a new man who is beyond the reach of corruption.

John Quincy Adams accepts the Democratic nomination for Governor of Massachusetts. It won't hurt him any.

The colored convention at St. Louis, Sept. 24, had a warm debate on resolutions, but took no action. A call has been issued for the reorganization of the republican party of Missouri.

Attorney-General Pond, of Ohio, decides that the inmates of the soldier's home at Dayton, who have resided in the State a year and have no other residence therein than the asylum, have a legal right to vote at the polls of the township in which the asylum is situated, since the passage of the act of Congress, January 21, 1871.

THE YELLOW FEVER has not yet died out in Charleston, S. C., five deaths having occurred from the disease on Wednesday. The Boston Advertiser prints an extract from a private letter written by a southerner residing in Charleston, in which he says: "unless you want to find a grave in Magnolia cemetery, I know of no other motive to induce you to come back so soon. People who have been in the city for twenty years have died from yellow fever. It has just appeared up town and the mortality is very great. Northern people are particularly liable—children also. The papers are averse to telling the exact truth, fearing that the trade may be interfered with in consequence. You may think I am using strong language, but you don't realize what a pest the yellow fever is. I am closely quarantined—not being allowed to go as far as the street corner."

A GOOD AVERAGE.—The Scotch seem not only to manufacture a considerable quantity of spirits annually, but also to refresh themselves liberally with the produce of their own industry. From a return just issued showing the consumption of home-made spirits in Scotland for the half-year ending the 30th of June last, it appears that 2,496,601 gallons were used in that time, or fully three quarters of a gallon per head of the population including men, women and children. The Pall Mall Gazette says, "under these circumstances it is surprising that the Scotch should become so excited as they have been during the past session respecting their 'water bills,' for it is quite evident that water can hardly be called their national beverage."

A FIRE along the coast of Lake Michigan, between Manitowoc and Ahnapee, Wisconsin, is sweeping houses, stores and piers in its course. A man who escaped through the flames at the risk of his life states that twenty-two houses and barns have already been destroyed. The people are burying goods in the ground to save them. The losses in Kewanee county amount to a quarter million dollars. All communication with the burning section is cut off, and unless rain sets in the loss of life must be fearful. The lake is the only resort for water, as the wells are all dry.

THE NEWPORT (R. I.) MUSTER.—At the firemen's muster at Newport, Sept. 27, the first prize for steamers was taken by Niagara, No. 3, of Cambridgeport, Mass., second prize by Monitor, No. 1, of Pawtucket, R. I. The first prize for hand engines was won by Columbian, No. 5, of North Bridgewater, Mass; the second prize by Brookline, No. 1. of Brookline, Mass.

A COOLIE SLAVE SHIP from India for Martinique has been lost on the coast of that island, with all hands on board. Two hundred bodies have been washed ashore.

DR. WILLIAM W. BROWN of Boston met the Ku-Klux of Kentucky a few days ago, and narrowly escaped hanging.

James Parton is called a piece of Fanny Fernlture, by an exchange.

—Putnam, Ct., claims first class honors for a young lady who is an adept at plowing, planting, haying and harvesting, and at the same time is expert in household affairs and acting the lady, teacher and musician.

—Illinois claims the champion sunflower, measuring five feet in circumference.

—On a recent evening, as some young people near Rocky Mount, Georgia, were taking a walk, one young lady, having a small switch in her hand, struck a young man who happened to have a copper cartridge in his pocket, which exploded, the ball lodging in the knee of the lady, producing a painful and dangerous wound.

—The hardest part of a clergyman's life, as it is of an editor's is the necessity of producing without the time to produce. Good thoughts, whether in the paper, the volume, or sermon, need time to grow up leisurely, to mature in calm restfulness, and to be produced when, and only when, they are so ripe that they need expression.

—To illustrate the correctness of his opinion in a dispute, a Texan thrust his pistol down a Kansan's throat and threatened to fire. The Kansan admitted the truth of the Texan's statement immediately.

—The Woodville, Ky., jail is somewhat in need of repairs. An Irishman confined therein kicked a plank off and walked away, remarking that the lock-up was "too hot for any decent man to sthay in."

—New York papers publish obituaries of "Bill Johnson," a dog that could stand upon one foot and balance himself on the nozzle of a champagne bottle.

—Married man in the rural districts, who do not subscribe to courses of lectures, are twitted with having lectures enough at home.

—"Whom the Gods destroy they first make mad." Yes, and when some men would dye, they first get madder.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Many valuable horses die from the effects of colic. The best thing to do in a case of this kind, is to pour a bottle of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment into a long-necked junk bottle, add half a pint of molasses and water, then pour the whole down the horse's throat. In ten minutes the horse will begin to eat.

Parson's Purgative Pills will greatly relieve, if not entirely cure, dyspepsia, when everything else fails. They have been tried in some desperate cases, and have given more relief than any other medicine.

THE EUROPEAN QUESTION.

What is the European question to us? Let the crowned heads fight it out while we supply their armies with provisions.

THE AMERICAN QUESTION

as to the best method of clothing gray heads with glossy brown or raven black is, however, a matter of vast importance to millions of both sexes in this country. It

SEEMS TO BE DECIDED,

if popularity is a fair test in the case, in favor of

Cristadoro's Excelsior Hair Dye,

the sales of which have been advancing during the past twelve months with rapidity astonishing. As a dressing, after dyeing, use

CRISTADORO'S HAIR PRESERVATIVE.

Old Things Have Passed Away.

This is at least true of the old method of treating the lung disease and much abused human body. It is no longer considered wise to put a patient to torture in order to cure him of a disease in which pain is already undermining the energies of his system. True science ranges itself on the side of nature, and endeavors to assist her in her fight against disease. This is the province of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, the most approved tonic ever advertised in this country. It may be recommended as a fall medicine, par excellence; for it is in the fall that biliousness, dyspepsia and malarious fevers are especially prevalent. The frame, exhausted by the heats of summer, is relaxed and feeble at its close, and requires, we may say demands artificial assistance. Afford it assistance in occasional doses of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and the evils referred to may be escaped. Throughout the far West, and on the steaming alluvial of the southern rivers, all the varieties of periodical fever are probably rife to-day. Had a course of Hostetter's Bitters been commenced by the sufferers a month ago, i. e., before the unhealthy season set in, seven-eights of them would in all probability be in their usual health at the present time. So much for want of forecast. So much for not keeping in the house, and using daily, the best safeguard against epidemic and endemic fevers.

As flocks of imposters and imitators are trying to follow in the wake of the great American remedy, therefore be sure that the article you buy is genuine and verified by the proper trade marks. The true article can only be obtained in bottles. Beware of the spurious bitters sold by the gallon or in keg.

A Card.

ONE item in the construction of the P. & D. R. R. will not cost much—Portsmouth can easily supply all the sleepers.

ALBERT W. AIKEN and his theatrical Company gave an excellent entertainment in "The Witches of New York," at the Temple, Wednesday evening. There was a very fair audience, but the show deserved a crowded house.

MISS SALLY HUBBARD, eighty-three years old, (a sister of Doctor Hubbard, formally of Portsmouth,) totally blind from cataracts, had them successfully removed recently while under the influence of sulphuric ether, at her residence in Wells, Maine, by Dr. Folsom of this city.

SHIP GOV. LANGDON, Davis master, arrived at Shields, England, on the 14th of September, from Hamburg, with one man on board sick with cholera, another one having died and been buried at sea. She had no yellow flag flying when she entered the harbor, and got well up before being boarded. She was quarantined, of course.

Communicated.

P. & D. RAILROAD.—The cost of this road to the city in a hundred years, if the first proposition were adopted, a guarantee of seven per cent. on $306,-900 payable semi-annually, would be the modest little sum of $298,270,-460—about three hundred million dollars! That is, if instead of making these semi-annual payments to this railroad, the city should each six months deposit the amount to be paid in a savings bank to compound at seven per cent. semi-annually, the sums thus deposited would aggregate these figures in a hundred years. The second proposition, the issue of bonds at six per cent. semi-annual interest, would reduce the expense of the city to only $113,354,020—one hundred and thirteen million dollars in a hundred years—a sum still a trifle large, but yet a very decided improvement on the first. Of course a railroad to Dover at a cost to Portsmouth on an average for a hundred years of only a million dollars a year would be a very great benefit and blessing to the community! But the delay of a fortnight having wrought so material a reduction of the burden sought to be fastened upon the city, encourages the hope that with two weeks' further reflection it may be brought down to nothing,—the right figure for such an outrageous project.

The above figures are given on the authority of a distinguished mathematician. ***

THE STATE FAIR.

There were four horse trots Wednesday afternoon. The first race was for $2:50 horses, and was won by the Manchester horse Phil Sheridan, F. Jones' St. Lawrence Maid third. Time, 2:46, 2:45, 2:45, 2:45.

The second race, for horses that had never beaten 2:40, was won by Bristol Bill, F. Jones' Fearnaught Prince being withdrawn. Best time, 2:41 1-4.

The third race, for 4-year-old colts, was won by Defiance of Concord in 2:39.

The double-team race was easily won by Lady Emma and Nellie Locke, in 2:44 1-4, 2:41, 2:54.

The show of stock is good and comes largely from Portsmouth and vicinity, and many premiums are awarded in this locality, as usual at these fairs. The Fearnaught horse stock takes the lead, and F. Jones' Fearnaught Prince, and his son, Fearnaught Prince, Jr., of Newington, each took the first premium for stallions in their respective classes. Fearnaught Second, a beautiful black brother to Fearnaught, is pronounced fully as promising as the old horse, but was not entered for a premium.

On ox teams Rollinsford was awarded the first premium, and Portsmouth, (from which Frank Jones's string of eight yoke comprised the only entry,) the second premium. Mr. Jones also took first premium for the best pair of fat cattle.

The first premium for boots and shoes was awarded to Mr. Thos. S. Nowell of this city.

The attendance on Thursday was very large, some 15,000 persons being present. At 11 A. M., a procession of officers of the society and invited guests, including Governor Weston and Staff, escorted by the Marshals and accompanied by the Dover Cornet Band, marched from the City Hall to the Fair grounds. The mills in Dover, Great Falls, Rochester, Newmarket and some other places shut down and the schools in Dover were closed.

The race for 3 minute horses was won by Jenny Lind of Pitsfield, in 2:48 1-2, 2:46, 2:45.

The 2:45 race was won by Phil Sheridan, in 2:41, 2:43, 2:49.

In the running race, Stonewall Jackson of Great Falls beat Shoo Fly of Franklin,—time, 2:07, 2:14.

In the race for all horses, but two started, Nellie Locke having been withdrawn in consequence of her driver, Joseph Mooney, being thrown from his sulky and severely injured. M. Eldredge's Lady Franklin won in three straight heats, beating Jerry Lock of Hillsborough Bridge, — time, 2:40, 2:40 1-2, 2:38.

The Fair closes this day, Friday, with a stallion race, a trot for horses that have never beaten 2:55 and a pulling match.

Morning Chronicle.

COURTING IN NEBRASKA.—A Nebraska correspondent of the Syracuse Standard writes as follows:

"There is lack of woman's nursing,
There is dearth of woman's tears."

Certainly not because they are unnecessary in this western region, but the fact is the woman is scarce and the men are plenty. In market phrase the woman "demand far exceeds the supply." Those inexorable laws of supply and demand, about which political and other economists delight to talk, have not yet corrected this sold question. A heavy dose of girls, none of homeopathic prescriptions, is what Nebraska needs, and the stomachs of her young men will always remain sour until the supply comes. You have no idea East how anxious young men in this region are to marry. In the words of a prairie farmer, courtin's hot.

The poor man is passing through a bitter experience. A party of us were duck hunting the other day on the Missouri bottoms. Night overtook us before we were aware of it, and we were obliged to seek lodging at the first dwelling we could find. It was a small one-story structure of three rooms, and occupied by a family of six—father, mother, daughter and three sons. The sons were all unmarried, and from the calls that were made afterwards we judge the daughter was unmarried also. We hadn't been in the house five minutes when some kind of a vehicle drove up and two young men were ushered into the parlor. Straightway the mother and daughter held a whispered consultation which closed with an invitation to the sitting room for supper. It was evident the young men callers had been to tea, as they staid in the parlor with "sweet sixteen."

Scarcely had we taken our seats at the tabe when a howl from the dogs out-doors announced another comer. He seemed to avoid the front door, and knocked at that where our party was just sitting to supper. The mother rose to answer the summons, when we were surprised by the daughter opening the parlor door and rushing forward with "Don't git up, mother! Its one of my fellows! Come in, Jim; how do you do?"

And Jim entered in response to the cheery salutation. He made himself as comfortable as possible, till we had finished supper, when another whispered consultation proved that the "parlor is full as it ort to be," whispered by Miss in response to some motherly suggestion. The old gentleman solved the question by inviting us into the kitchen to smoke. It was evident Jim didn't smoke, for he remained in the sitting-room. We should have doubtless enjoyed a quiet cigar had not the old lady opened the door, and shouted at the top of her voice: "Come 'round here to the back door!"

It was another man, and we fancied he looked as if he had come in rather late. Two young men within the parlor, one in the sitting room and one in the kitchen. What should be done? The courting business was getting hot. There was another talk between the mother and daughter. It was evident their devices had been exhausted. The old gentleman was called into the corner. He settled the question with a whisper.

"I'll be hanged if I'll move again till the sittin' room's full!"

Into the sitting room; we smoked. It was full ten minutes before the next disturbers came and they entered the kitchen with the air of old acquaintances. We looked anxiously at the host. Taking his pipe from his mouth, a single sentence relieved us:

"Them's the widowers! Stick!"

And we "stuck" and smoked on. For the next half hour the girl must have been kept busy. The widowers had certainly a third of her time. It was nine o'clock. We wished to go to bed, and the only bed we had discovered was in the parlor. The old gentleman derived our wishes and said:

"I'm sorry, gentlemen! But this is one of the regular courtin' nights! Them two fellers in the parlor never leave afere midnight, and widowers allus stay all night. And that ain't the worst of it. Dan'll be here at ten o'clock? I and the boys allus sleep in the haystack Friday nights. Yer welcome to that!"

The parlor, sitting room and kitchen full, we retreated to the haystack. In response to a question on the point the old gentleman said that—

"Friday nights it's a party bad, but Sunday it's wuss. Last Sunday night there was ten of 'em, and the girl is gettin' more and more partikilar. The more she gets the more she wants!"

On the haystack, with a stiff breeze driving away the mosquitoes, we heard Dan drive up. One of the last remarks of the old man before we fell asleep was, "Yes, gentlemen, courtin's hot in Nebraska!" And we believed him.

—A picture of life in Mexico: Two gentlemen of the highest rank in society meet in the evening in a street of the capital. "What o'clock is it, senor?" politely asks the first. The other stops, draws his revolver and convers his interlocutor, then takes out his watch and gives the desired information. Number one thanks number two, without the least surprise or remonstrance at the measure of precaution.

—Texas is to have an exhibition of children at its State Fair, in Houston, and the San Antonio Herald says it does not believe there is another community of its size in the United States that can produce so many perfectly beautiful and healthy children as the city of San Antonia and surrounding country.

—When we read the interminable sermons of some writers, we cannot help thinking that their readers are in danger of being sentenced to death.

A PLACE FOR THE LEAN!

Say, old boy, where shall we meet?
Why, at Garrety's, on Daniel Street,
He's such a jolly fellow;
His LAGER is always fresh and prime,
It never wants a "head" and is
Refreshing, cool and mellow!
You require, my boy, some filling out,
You're thin, and meagre-looking;
Lager would give you the proper size.
Look at the host, he once was scant,
His BEER has made of flesh no want,
Go thou and drink likewise.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS. Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY?

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawf6b18

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

—IF SO, USE THE— AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. S. NORTON only Agent for selling the —A correspondent of the Scientific American writes as follows: "I once had occasion to examine the bottom of a mill-pond. I constructed a float out of inch-plank, sufficient to buoy me up; through the centre of this float I cut a hole and placed a blanket over it, when I was enabled to clearly discover objects on the bottom. I am satisfied, where water is sufficiently clear, this plan can be successfully used for searching for lost bodies and articles. I would suggest that this experiment be tried on the sea; for I am satisfied that, in a ship like the Great Eastern, where an observatory could be placed at the bottom, with sufficient darkness, by the aid of glasses we could gaze down into the depths of the sea, just as we now survey the starry heavens at midnight."

—The last joke upon the French Society for the Protection of Animals is to the following effect; A countryman, armed with an immense club, presents himself before the president of the society and claims the first prize. He is asked to describe the act of humanity on which he founds his claim. "I saved the life of a wolf," replied the countryman: "I might easily killed him with this bludgeon;" and he swings his weapon in the air, to the intense discomfort of the president. "But where was the wolf?" inquired the latter; "what had he done to you?" "He had just devoured my wife," is the reply. The president reflects an instant and then says; "My friend, I am of the opinion that you have been sufficiently rewarded."

LAKE DWELLINGS.—The English journals report that during recent explorations in the moss on the shores of Loch Etive, Argyle county, Scotland, the remains of an extensive lake dwelling were discovered. The platform of this structure is sixty feet in diameter, and the dwelling in the middle is fifty feet long and twenty-eight feet broad. There were also discovered in a large cairn a structure composed of huge stones, and consisting of two chambers, each twenty feet long, connected by a narrow passage of nearly the same length. One broken urn and the remains of four others were also discovered. Loch Etive is an inlet of the sea on the northwest coast of Scotland, running up for over twenty miles, and varying in breadth.

—Quite a little scene occurred last Sunday in a Mobile church. A tenant and a landlord had some difficulty about rent, and the upshot of the matter was that the tenant refused to pay a certain portion demanded. In taking up collection in church, the landlord, seeing his tenant deposit one of Uncle Sam's promissory notes, openly dunned him for his rent, but the debtor only replied, "You must be a fool to think I am going to pay you in church," and as the landlord began to talk louder and attract attention, the debtor flung the contents of his snuff box into the landlord's eyes and resumed his seat, and the services went on.

LET EVERBODY READ the invaluable medical and physiological treatises published by the "Peabody Medical Institute," Boston, "The Science of Life, or Self-Preservation," will, when carefully perused, convince the most skeptical reader that it is comparatively easy to avoid the ills which beset the young and thoughtless, and that the weakened forces of manhood may be re-established—the happiness and usefulness may be restored to those whose constitutions have been prematurely broken down. "Sexual Physiology of Woman," one of the publications of the Institute, is filled with matter of vital importance to females. Read by all means the advertisement of the "Peabody Medical Institute," in another column.

—A family in Columbus, O., afford a most hopeful philosophy, if any Democritus wishes to try it on. Recently one of the two children in the household died the day before a circus came into town. The parents and surviving child thought how the cherub, when in the flesh, would have reveled in that circus, and they honored its memory by attending. In the afternoon they prepared the dead infant for its long home, and returned to the evening's amusement.

—A laughable incident took place in the parlor of the Union hotel at Saratoga a day or two ago. Two countrymen were gaping around the room, when a lady approached wearing a fashionable trail. One of the party dodged it, but the other walked across it, and on finding out his error apologized with "I beg your pardon, madame; I thought you had passed some time ago."

—Some ingenious Yankee has invented a process by which maple sugar can be made out of common New Orleans molasses, flavoring it by steaming maple wood. A contemporary says: "The next thing we are looking for from that land of prolific ideas is a process whereby they will make honey from cod liver oil, flavoring it with beeswax."

—Of the new "Saratoga stride" the local paper says; "It is really hard to do. You have to practice it a good deal in your room, and then if you don't get your fins—we mean your arms—to hang just right, you spoil it all, and you hear them whisper as you pass along, 'She hasn't got it right.'"

AGENTS WANTED FOR

ROMANISM AS IT IS. This Book, an elegant Octavo Volume, containing 750 pages, and 192 first-class engravings, is an exhaustive and Standard work, eminently adapted to the times. It fully uncovers the Roman system from its origin to the present time, exposes its baseless pretences, its frauds, its persecutions, its gross immoralities, its opposition to our public schools, and civil and religious liberty; it shows its insidious workings which strongly tend to bring this country under full Romish control. Prospectus and Books ready on application. CONN. PUBLISHING CO., Hartford, Conn. 4ws5

THE

NOVELTY CLOTHES WRINGER.

Nothing, except the Sewing Machine, has ever been invented which so much relieves the labor of the household as the Wringer. But its usefulness does not end here. The saving of clothing is of much greater importance. It is often remarked that articles of fine texture, last twice as long when wrung in a Wringer as when wrung by hand. The NOVELTY has Cog-wheels on both ends, * * The rolls are allowed to separate at either end. These, besides other advantages which it contains, seem to be indispensable to a practical wringer.—New York Independent.

The Novelty Wringer has become an indispensable institution in thousands of families. And we believe its great and increasing popularity is fully merited—for the Novelty evidently possesses all the requisites of a first-class, practical machine. Indeed, after using one for many months in our own family, we are prepared to indorse the Novelty as unsurpassed (the laundress says unequaled,) by any of the several wringers previously tried.—Moore's Rural New Yorker.

POLITICAL.

After the nomination of Hon. Wm. B. Washburn for Governor of Massachusetts was made, Gen. Butler made a speech in which he declared his intention of supporting the nomination—a declaration that his opponents would not have made had the General been the nominee.]

The Tribune accepts the situation, and endorses the nominations of the New York State Convention.

THE COTTON SEED OIL Factories around New Orleans, it is reported, have been compelled to suspend operations for the want of seed, the supply of which has given out. The business, however it is stated has not been profitable. White refined cotton seed oil has been used principally to adulterate lard and sperm oil, and the large hog crop of 1870 put down the price of ard oil so low, that cotton seed oil was no longer in demand for purposes of adulteration. The value of the cotton seed cake used for fuel has also been greatly diminished by the decline in corn and other grains.

THE WITHDRAWAL OF WHALERS.—The American fleet of whalers, it is reported, is being reduced continually, by the withdrawal of ships from the trade. One-third of the whaling vessels belonging to Provincetown, Mass., it is stated, have been devoted to other occupations. The former large whaling fleet sailing out of Provincetown was gradually reduced so that only nineteen remained last year on the list. This year six vessels, comprising one brig and five schooners, were dropped from the roll. These vessels were chiefly engaged in the whale fisheries on the Atlantic ocean.

INSANITY is greatly on the increase in England. In 1859, when the population amounted to 19,086,701, there were 36,762 lunatics, or nineteen out of every ten thousand persons. In 1871, with a population of 22,704,108, there were 56,755 lunatics, or twenty-five out of every ten thousand persons. Of the 56,755 lunatics there were 6110 private patients, 50,185 pauper patients, and 460 patients in prisons.

P. MORANZY was killed at Cabot, Vt., on Wednesday, while at work on the Portland and Ogdensburgh Railroad in a cut, digging under a large stone, which started suddenly and rolling over him caused his death.

A BRIG was wrecked on Drogheda bar, Ireland, recently, and while the lifeboat men stood by on account of the heavy surf, a woman put out in a boat and saved one sailor. Six men were lost.

THREE WITNESSES from Sampson county, North Carolina, on their way to testify in court against the Ku-Klux, were attacked by disguised men, and one was killed and others badly wounded.

A TERRIBLE EXPLOSION of fire damp occurred Sept. 28th in one of the mines in the Canton of Grisons in Swizerland, and thirty persons were killed.

MRS. REUBEN BAKER was run over at Lawrence on Wednesday last and killed by a train on the Boston and Maine Railroad.

Bostons 9, Clevelands 7.

MERITED PRAISE.—Considering the almost illimitable resources of the United States, and the numerous respects, particularly those having reference to standing expenditure, in which the government of that republic is in a position of advantage far beyond the the majority of European states, the wonder is not that this point in the United States financial history has now been reached, but that it was not attained long ago. Other states borrow; the United States pay off debt. Other states habitually exceed their income; the United States habitually lives within its income, and stands almost alone among the governments of the world in having a large surplus applicable, and actually applied, monthly and annually, to the reduction of the capital of the debt. Then, as regards natural resources, facilities of future expansion and development, the extent of the field for immigration, freedom from that modern curse—the necessity of keeping up large standing armies—and the possession of large tracts of government land ever increasing in value—on each and all of these points the position of the United States is superior to that of other nations. The appreciation of the credit of its government in the market, therefore, is perfectly natural, and will doubtless go on until a much higher range of value is attained.—London Economist.

—Everybody rejoices over the decision of Mr. Jeremiah Prescott to remain Superintendent of the Eastern Railroad, and everybody hopes that he will soon have a higher position in the service of the same corporation.—Boston Times.

—Three negroes were lynched on Wednesday night at Winchester, Tenn.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

Mr. Beard, an employe in the shop of the Boston, Concord & Montreal Railroad at Lake Village, was caught in the shafting which he was oiling, Friday morning, and went around 50 times in 20 seconds, escaping with a broken ankle and the loss of all his clothes—as we learn by a correspondent.

Hon. John P. Hale was knocked down by a fractious horse on Central street Dover, on Thursday, and somewhat injured in the side, legs and head. The injuries are quite serious.

On the 21st, in Tamworth, Mr. Daniel Berry was stepping into his wagon and fell, catching one foot between the springs and body. His horse ran, dragging Mr. B. a mile, and inflicted such injuries as to cause his death next day.

A New Hampshire court has decided that a railroad coupon, although marked good for thirty days only, and that period had expired over three months, remained good until it was used.

Mrs. J. B. Hidden of Nashua has two hundred and six pounds of citrons from one seed.

Fourteen dogs died from poison last week in Dover.

T. W. Thompson of Newmarket gets nearly twenty-four pounds of Early Roses from seven ounces of seeding.

An Exeter couple had a knot of a durable character tied for them by a Haverhill, Mass., clergyman, but couldn't get put up at H. as Jim Fisk's New York band filled the hotel. They made tracks for home.

L. Hardy of Ossipee has raised from one seed 116 pounds of Hubbard squashes.

The house and barn of Mr. T. P. Nutter, in Hebron, were burned on Monday morning, with the contents.

Edward Adams of Mason Village has been arrested for killing a horse by fast driving.

Farmington is to be supplied with water from a large reservoir outside of the town. The elevation is sufficient for a stream seventy feet high.

The buildings burned in Salem last week were set on fire by a boy shooting a woodchuck under the haymow; loss $2500.

NEW PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

The October number of Good Health contains an essay on the Asiatic cholera and several other articles on topics peculiar to its field.

The October number of The Manufacturer and Builder contains a very large amount of valuable practical instruction for artisans in various specialties. Many of the papers are illustrated in excellent style.

A DANGEROUS RIDE.—Four little Poughkeepsie boys took a dangerous railroad ride recently. An extra locomotive on the Hudson River road had stopped there a few minutes, and supposing it a switch engine employed at the depot, they jumped on the rear of the tender. Three sat on the guard, only six inches wide, and the other got astride the bumper. Soon after the engine started it was running forty miles an hour, and the boys were terribly shaken. They could not be seen from the engine; the dust and smoke concealed them from the flagmen they passed, and their cries were drowned by the noise. A sharp man at Poughkeepsie suspected trouble, and the engine was stopped by telegraph at New Hamburg. The boy who was astride the link was unable to walk when taken off, his legs being awfully chafed. The hands of the other boys were blistered terribly, and the blood oozed out from under their finger nails, so tightly had they grasped the woodwork of the tender. They were nearly exhausted, and a short distance more would have killed them.

—A clergyman who had been staying for some time at the house of a friend, on going away called to him little Tommy, the four-year-old son of his host, and asked him what he should give him for a present. Tommy, who had great respect for the "cloth," thought it his duty to suggest something of a religious nature, so he announced, hesitatingly: "I—I think I should like a testament, and I know I should like a pop-gun."

—A day or two ago a horse in Maine backed a carriage, containing two ladies, off a bridge, and the whole establishment fell ten feet down into a brook, two feet deep. Neither the ladies, horse, carriage nor harness suffered injury, and after extricating themselves the ladies got the team out and drove on.

—A Boston speculator, who recently bought a large lot of unimproved land, proceeded to erect a block of six houses on the wrong corner. The blunder was not discovered until the brick had been piled to the third story, when the owner demanded a double price. The houses are coming down.

—In a strangely innocent tone the Newburyport Herald says: "If Mr. Jewell should not be elected to the Legislature, of which there seems now to be much doubt, however unfortunate, it would be necessary to select another Speaker." Sartin!—Boston Times.

—Careless target practice continues at Fort Tompkins, in New York harbor. A thirty-pound Parrott shell went screaming through a pilot boat's jib recently.

—Large numbers of Bonapartist agents are said to be now in France.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

LEWIS RICE for more than thirty years has stood in the foremost rank of hotel keepers in New England. The high fame of the AMERICAN HOUSE, BOSTON, will suffer nothing by comparison under the supervision of Lewis Rice & Son, for they are ever alert to the wants of the public, and supply all modern improvements for the convenience of guests.

Cramps and pains in the stomach are the result of imperfect indigestion, and may be immediately relieved by a dose of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. A tea-spoonful in a little the sweetened water is a dose.

Heavy oats are good for horses; none will deny that; but oats can't make a horse's coat look smooth and glossy when he is out of condition. Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders will do this when all else fails.

What is the European question to us? Let the crowned heads fight it out while we supply their armies with provisions.

Old Things Have Passed Away.

This is at least true of the old method of treating the long abused and much abused human body. It is no longer considered wise to put a patient to torture in order to cure him of a disease in which pain is already undermining the energies of his system. True science ranges itself on the side of nature, and endeavors to assist her in her fight against disease. This is the province of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, the most approved tonic ever advertised in this country. It may be recommended as a fall medicine, par excellence; for it is in the fall that biliousness, dyspepsia and malarious fevers are especially prevalent. The frame, exhausted by the heats of summer, is relaxed and feeble at its close, and requires, we may say demands artificial assistance. Afford it assistance in occasional doses of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and the evils referred to may be escaped. Throughout the far West, and on the steaming alluvial of the southern rivers, all the varieties of periodical fever are probably rife to-day. Had a course of Hostetter's Bitters been commenced by the sufferers a month ago, i. e., before the unhealthy season set in, seven-eights of them would in all probability be in their usual health at the present time. So much for want of forecast. So much for not keeping in the house, and using daily, the best safeguard against epidemic and endemic fevers.

As flocks of imposters and imitators are trying to follow in the wake of the great American remedy, therefore be sure that the article you buy is genuine and verified by the proper trade marks. The true article can only be obtained in bottles. Beware of the spurious bitters sold by the gallon or in keg.

.... Monday afternoon near the Kearsarge Mills, a man named Meed, employed by the Eastern Railroad while shackling cars accidentally fell under the wheels and had a leg taken off above the knee.

CLARA SHEEHAN was arrested on Friday by City Marshal Johnson and Asst. Marshal Barsantee, on suspicion of having stolen $300 from Mr. Timothy H. Chellis; and on searching the cellar of a house kept by one Carrie Swain, $225 of the money was found.

Andrew Wilson, a runaway from the Reform School, was caught Friday evening by the same officers and Assistant Marshal Entwistle, while at supper in a house on Sagamore Creek, and locked up. He will go back to the School today.

THE EXETER NEWS LETTER says the statement that County Commissioners Pillsbury and Hobbs have accepted positions at the County Farm is a "conspicuous inexactitude." We copied the statement as a matter of news from an exchange, but did not say that the editor of the News Letter had secured the position of soap furnisher to the institution. The News Letter states that n making the change the Commissioners desired to reduce the expenses and "had no desire to reflect upon the late Superintendent."

City Council, Thursday, Sept. 28th.

Ald. Hatch in the Chair. Notice from the Adm. of Sampson L. Russell, that the Heirs desired the city to remove the Stone crusher from the Wharf. Referred to the Com. on Streets.

Appropriation of the Fire. Dept. exhausted except $132.70. Referred to Com. on Finance. Janitor of the Court House reported that some keys had been lost during the Firemen's Muster, referred to Ald. Mendum and Marvin.

Two of the police force having been "docked" two days' wages each for absence occasioned by sickness, the Com. on Accts. recommended that their bills for the same be not paid. Ald. Marvin moved that the bills be paid; yeas, Ald. Waldron, Marvin and Giddings; nays, Ald. Wendell, Mendum and Annable,—the motion being negatived by the chairman.

Wm. H. Allen, C. H. Sides & Co., S. W. Moses & Stoddard & Beacham's bills for use of horses and carriages by police dept,— referred to Com. on Police.

Com. on extension of Wibird St. asked further time,—granted.

Request of Kearsarge S. F. E. Co., No. 3, asking leave to take the steamer to the Fitchburg Firemen's Muster, Oct. 10 and 11, was granted.

The Board then went into Committee of the whole on the bills of the Firemen's Muster.

A RAIROAD SCENE.—"Has either of you gentlemen lost anything?" was the inquiry of a conductor on the Eastern Railroad an evening or two since.

"No," was the response.

"Are you certain?"

One of the gentlemen put his hand in his pocket and started to his feet with the exclamation: "I have!"

"What was it?"

"A $50 dollar bill!"

"Here it is," was the response, and the conductor passed on. He had picked the valuable bit of paper from the floor of the aisle and searched until he found the owner.

"By gracious, I must give that man $10," said the owner of the $50.

"No use to offer it," replied his companion, "he wouldn't take it—George Batchelder is a man who does the right thing, and he wouldn't accept a dollar under such circumstances anyway."—Eastern Argus.

—A contemporary remarks that "about the commonest proof we have that man is made of clay is the brick that is often found in his hat."

THE STATE FAIR.

The address before the Association was delivered on Thursday by Hon. J. Stanton Gould of New York. Senator Patterson, Gov. Weston, Ex-Gov. Harriman and Hosea B. Perkins, Esq., of New York, followed with speeches pertinent to the occasion, after which the members of the Association and invited guests, marshalled by President Natt Head and Secretary Aaron Young, proceeded to the big tent and partook of a dinner served by Messrs. Peirce, the landlords of the Rockingham House.

The Fair was a financial success, we presume, and it was evident to those present that its chief contributions came from Portsmouth. Had no stock or trotting horses been entered from Portsmouth, the Fair, which was by no means a more extensive affair then any county in the State can outdo in short notice, would have been a slim exhibition.

The Fair closed on Friday. Premiums were awarded to parties in this vicinity as follows:—Best Jersey bull, 3 years, Ephraim Pickering, Newington, $15; best Ayrshire bull, 3 years, "Ranting Robin," Frank Jones, Portsmouth, $15; best cow, 4 years, F. Jones $15; best cow, 3 years, F. Jones, $10; best bull, 1 year, F. Jones, $8; best calf, 14 months, F. Jones, $5; best Ayrshire herd, F. Jones, $15; best bull, 2 years, C. Hayes & Son, Portsmouth, $8; best bull calf, 4 months, C. Hayes & Son, $5; best heifer, 2 years, C. Hayes & Son, $8; best calf, 8 months, C. Hayes & Son, $3; best ten yoke, town of Rollinsford, $30; second best, city of Portsmouth, $20; recommending gratuity of $10 to Lee; best town team owned by one man, Frank Jones, Portsmouth, $15; best musk melons, A. K. Warren, Portsmouth; cabbages, A. K. Warren, $2; onions, A. K. Warren, $2; turnips, A. K. Warren, $2; half acre peas, A. K. Warren, $5.

COMPLIMENT TO PORTSMOUTH MECHANICS.—The U. S. S. California which was built at this Yard, and mostly fitted out here, arrived at the Mare Island Yard recently, having made the greater part of her passage from the Atlantic to the Pacific, under sail, dragging her propeller. She out-sailed two first class clippers, which left about the same time, and frequently went thirteen knots with a moderate, whole sail breeze. She has been much admired by all who have visited her, not only on account of her fine proportions, but also for the fine order in which she has been kept. After caulking and a few arrangements for the convenience of Admiral Winslow, she will be the flagship of the Pacific squadron.

The Saranac, a side-wheel steamer, which was the flagship previous to the arrival of the California there, is a noble vessel of the old style of construction, was built at this Yard, under the superintendence of B. F. Delano, Esq, and is pronounced "of the best material, finished in the first style of workmanship, and one of the best vessels in the navy." All honor to Portsmouth mechanics.

....We are pleased to learn from his brother that Mr. Jefferson C. Rowe, at the City Hospital in Boston, is rapidly improving from his injuries at the Revere disaster, and that he will soon return to his home in Portsmouth. His limbs are all doing well, the first amputation of his right arm being the only case in which the knife has been used. That is healing nicely. On Wednesday he was able to stand on one leg, and with a little assistance to get in and out of bed. He will probably soon be able to walk without crutches, as whole as ever, excepting the loss of his arm.

THE HUTCHINSON FAMILY, "Tribe of Asa," are coming Oct. 6th.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of receiving the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. Morning Chronicle.

THE ROMANCE OF THE NEGRO.—The abolition of slavery, according to Mr. Edward A. Pollard, a Southern writer of some notoriety, has developed traits in the negro little dreamed of by their former masters. In an article in a recent Magazine, devoted to "The Romance of the Negro," Mr. Pollard remarks that prior to the abolition of slavery, the slaveholders had but a faint perception of the qualities of the black man. They regarded him merely as a thing representing a certain amount of productive force, and estimated his value, body and soul, in dollars and cents. A Southern gentleman who, even with the best intentions, should have sought any familiar intercourse with the negro, would have been suspected as an abolitionist in disguise, and been condemned as a "low person." Since the abolition of slavery, Mr. Pollard observes, no candid person of the South can deny that the negro has exhibited unquestionable evidence of improvement. He shows the greatest eagerness for knowledge and improvement. In the free schools of the South, the black children out-number the whites in proportion to the population of each race. There are far more poor whites than negroes who are idle at the South. The freedmen do not fall into the vices to which it was predicted they would become a prey. Intemperance is almost unknown among them; they are so provident in their habits, that it is a surprise how many comforts they realize from their scanty wages. These confessions from a former slaveholder, who looked upon the abolition of slavery as the end of all things, are commended to the consideration of some of our Northern Democrats who have not yet outlived a similar belief.

GOOD ADVICE.—The Richmond Whig very sensibly advises the people of the South to cease their regrets for what cannot be helped, abandon for the present the idea of obtaining payment for the emancipation of their slaves, and turn their hands to a better business. "Let us (it says) go on raising tobacco, wheat, corn, vegetables and fruits, improving our lands, developing our trade, establishing manufactories, attracting population, living economically, and doing our duty as good citizens, and it will not be long before we will find ourselves independant and prosperous. Material wealth will carry with it political influences, and we may resume our place as the first and foremost of the American States." Better words could not be spoken. Let them also welcome to their State every honest man who comes among them, with or without a "carpet bag," to help them in their good works by his industry and skill, instead of hunting him down and driving him out by their Ku-Klux, and the prosperity and power which they so fondly anticipate will be all the sooner a reality.

HOW IT IS DONE.—Honest men, of course, don't see how millions can be spent in carpeting and whitewashing the New York Court House, or in buying chairs for the City Council, nor what kind of vouchers could be presented on which such vast sums could be drawn from the treasury. The affidavits of some of the men who did the work show how the work was done. One had a bill against the city for $1000. After many vain attempts to collect it he was told that if he would make it $10,000, it should be paid. He did so, got his $10000, and the thieves keeps the rest. Another with a demand for $40,000, had to increase it to $400,000, before he could obtain what was honestly due him. Every man who has done anything for the city appears to have been compelled to aid the Ring in this fashion to plunder it. It is not to be wondered at that the vouchers, which contain such evidence of fraud, have disappeared.

—A Cincinnati riverman contemplates building a new steamboat, and the cost of fuel entering largely into the expense of running a boat, he desires to economize in this one item. With a view of carrying out this object, he has been reading circulars and advertisements in newspapers to learn all the latest improvements in machinery. He says he has seen a boiler advertised which saves 43 per cent. of fuel, a valve which saves 25 per cent., a governor which saves 15 per cent., a grate which saves 12 per cent., and a lubricator which saves 6 per cent. Total, 101 per cent. Combining all these improvements, he argues that an engine will run itself and produce a balance of fuel for culinary purposes.

—A colored woman was seized and drawn into the canal by an alligator at Franklin, La., a few days ago, while she was washing clothes off the bank, but she was too smart for his alligatorship, and managed to escape, though the creature got her head into his mouth. She received some severe cuts during the struggle. The story and the woman are both tough.

—A feminine child of this world, no doubt wise in her generation, naively says: "I never dress much for the play, because every one is looking at the stage, but no one is more particular about their dress at church."

—The "Heathen Chinee" shoemakers at North Adams indulge in a grand drunk, lasting four days, just once a year, and do their biggest day's work the day they resume operations.

—Buffalo is comparing a 3,000-pound cheese with the moon.

—Steak, ten cents a pound in Vermont.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY! DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS. Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects. WHAT ARE THEY? THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when you find it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

THE PORTSMOUTH & DOVER RAILROAD PROJECT.

To the Citizens of Portsmouth:

FELLOW-CITIZENS:

By the published proceedings of the Board of Mayor and Aldermen at their last meeting, it seems that the scheme to involve this city in the building of the proposed Portsmouth and Dover Railroad—in fact of placing upon us the burden of constructing this road—is about to be consummated. Do you understand and comprehend the magnitude and importance of this undertaking? From the apathy and indifference that prevail in the city upon the subject, except among the little knot of schemers, enthusiasts and feed attorneys who are engaged in so persistently pressing the city into the scheme beyond the power of retraction, I think you do not—can not.

This road has been chartered again and again, and talked about for fifteen years past, yet no one that I have heard of has ever had the temerity to take stock in it. The route is one of the most expensive to build upon, owing to the bridging required. The cost of the road has never been set at less than half a million, and probably at least three-quarters of a million dollars will be required to construct it now, with the advanced prices of materials and labor. Will this road, at such an outlay, pay? It is absurdity itself to think so. What are the elements and sources of business between Portsmouth and Dover to warrant the construction of a railroad? What inducements can we offer the people of Dover to come here to trade? What market have we, and what is there that we want to go to Dover to purchase? Do not our merchants and traders go daily to Boston and beyond for their supplies, which are chiefly received by railroad? And do not the merchants and traders of Dover receive their supplies from the same sources and by the same facilities, just as cheaply as we obtain them? Is it not folly then to suppose that with the first markets as freely open to them as to us, they will come here and buy of us at second-hand?

"But there are the articles of heavy goods—this road will surely secure these," it will be said. Well, will the freight on a few hundred hogsheads of salt and molasses, and a few thousand tons of coal pay wear and tear, running expenses, and interest at seven per cent. on three-fourths of a million of capital?—Then there is the river still, over which these goods go now, and over which they will continue to go, railroad or not, because the cheaper mode of transportation for such freight.

"But when the road is built through to the Weirs' it will bring us ever so much nearer to Montreal; then it will surely pay." Well, again, when the road shall be thus extended, (and nobody knows when this will happen,) what then? Why it will strike the Boston, Concord and Montreal Railroad. But will that road switch off its freight shipped to Boston and send it down to Portsmouth, and will the passengers change cars and also come down to Portsmouth, just to ride over the Portsmouth and Dover Railroad? It would be very kind in them to do so, but will they do it? Absurdity again. The truth is, the Portsmouth and Dover Railroad, as its name implies, will be a railroad between this city and Dover, and the question whether it will pay or not must depend upon the commerce between the two cities. That it will be able to divert business of any material amount from the great through lines that cross and recross the interior, constructed and being constructed, is unreasonable. That it will be able to earn interest on its cost is simply impossible, and must be so viewed by every sound, thinking mind. This point needs no stronger confirmation than the fact that after the long lapse of time it has been agitated, the road has no stock-list at all—no capitalist having the courage to venture his money in it.

Now, fellow-citizens, examine the plan contrived and pending in the Board of Aldermen to involve the city's credit in this scheme, and to be consummated next Thursday evening, doubtless, unless you are aroused to resist it. This plan is to pledge the city to a guarantee of dividends on the capital stock of the road to the extent of three thousand sixty-nine shares, or $369,000, at the rate of seven per cent. to be paid semi-annually perpetually, or for one hundred years, which amounts to the same thing. Semi-annual interest on this sum at seven per cent. exceeds $26,000 a year to be added to our tax-list and assessed upon us each year; for be assured the road will have not a dollar over its running expenses and wear and tear to go towards this interest.—The amount thus to be added to our annual expenses exceeds the sum we raise for the support of all our schools, and is nearly equal to each of the items of our state and county tax. The city will thus be required to pay for the luxury of a railroad to Dover more than a hundred thousand dollars every four years, more than a million every ten years, and more than ten million in the whole period!

Fellow-citizens, are you ready thus to be involved in a scheme of such proportions, and saddled with a never-ending burden of such weight, without discussion or consultation?—If the magnitude of the project is vast, its coolness is certainly quite without parallel.—I have said this road has no stock-list. This is true. None of the gentlemen who are engaged in so persistently engineering this gigantic scheme upon the city, nor any one else that I am aware of, has subscribed for a single share in the concern. But these magnanimous gentlemen very generously propose to have 4000 shares of the stock, amounting to $400,000, subscribed for immediately when the city shall have guaranteed seven per cent. interest on 3,069 of them, or $369,000 of the amount they propose to take. Now the great generosity of these men strikingly appears when it is considered that these 3,069 shares carrying interest at the rate of seven per cent. guaranteed by the city, will be worth and readily sell in the market for ten per cent. premium, and that ten per cent. on 3,069 shares added to $369,000 will make the sum of $400,000 within a trifle, or just the amount of the stock which they so very liberally propose to have subscribed!

Thus it seems, not only that there is not a single bona-fide share of stock in the concern, but that these gentlemen do not propose there shall be. They do not contemplate putting a dollar of their own money into the road, (they are too sharp for that,) and they well know that nobody else will take stock in it. They intend to build the road entirely on the credit of the two cities, or if Dover refuses, then on that of Portsmouth alone. The only subscribers to the stock are to be the two municipalities, or if one declines, then the other alone. Not a dollar it seems is expected or contemplated from any other source. This is certainly an interesting position for Portsmouth to be placed in, and conclusively shows that these men have no confidence in their scheme as a paying one. The terms of the law upon which their plan is based are, that the cities and towns interested may "aid" in the construction of the road. This plan gives a new definition to this word, and therefore whether strictly legal or not, I leave for the lawyers among them to decide. It is evidently a new way to aid a work, to be required to do the whole of it.

What I have said of the enormous burden which this scheme will impose upon you, upon the city perpetually, is based upon the idea that the sum now sought will be sufficient to complete the road; but it will not be, even if Dover comes into the plan. More will be required in any event, and if Dover refuses to be a party to it, as is probable, we shall be called upon to double the amount of our guarantee, on the plea that we must put in so much more to complete the work and save the first investment.

Now, fellow-citizens, can we afford to embark in so gigantic and wild an undertaking, and one so wrong and unjust? Is it wise to mortgage one-twentieth, almost certainly one-tenth of our property to an enterprise that promises nothing, and burden ourselves with the payment of the high rate of seven per cent. interest on the amount staked perpetually? Our tax rate is now in excess of 2 1-4 per cent, more than double that of Boston, and the highest of any considerable place in New England, except Portland. With this scheme consummated, it will speedily go up to 3 per cent. Will such a state of things tend to promote business among us? Will it not rather have just the opposite effect and drive both capital and business away from the city? Will it not impair our credit and compel us to pay higher rates of interest on all of our obligations in the future? Owing to our prudence and care in our financial matters heretofore, our credit has always stood first-class.—But with this project successful, will it continue to stand so? Can we expect to make a distinction between our creditors and hereafter borrow for 5 or 5 1-2 per cent., when we voluntarily offer 7 per cent. on so large an amount for such an ill-considered purpose?

Then if you would not have this great burden fastened upon you and upon the city perpetually, you must arise in your power and tell your servants in the City Council in terms not to be mistaken, that they must not do this deed. Tell them it must not be done upon their peril, at least not until you are consulted and your voice is heard.

Gentlemen of the Board of Mayor and Aldermen, I beseech you to pause before you fasten this great wrong, not to say gigantic fraud, upon the city. Be wise and just, gentlemen, and do not act hastily in a matter of such magnitude. It vitally concerns the whole people. Refer it to them for consideration and discussion. It has never yet been discussed, and is not understood. Its projectors seem from the first to have realized that it would not bear light and ventilation. The press has been singularly silent upon it.—Let it now be fully investigated, gentlemen.—Let there be no hurry in a matter so grave.—If the huge load is to be placed upon us, let it be by the voice of the people, and not upon your responsibility. Whatever may be your powers in a strictly legal sense, you have no moral right to take a different course, if you act upon the matter at all, and you will forever regret your action if you do.

THE EARLY BIRD'S FATE.

The queerest cuss I ever sor
Was a ragged student of the lor,
A resident of Omahor.
He studied airly, studied late,
And always riz at 4 past eight.
He had an elongated por,
And what they call a lantern jor.
When other folks was snug in bed,
This limb of the lor sot up and read.
He wore a black alpacker coat,
And nary neckte round his throat;
A woolen blanket yaller and blue,
He slung around him when it snew.
Last year, 'twixt garden sass and hay,
This limb he moved to Ioway.
The jedges catekized him thar,
And he was remitted to the bar.
He slept in a closet near the sky,
And practyzed strict economy
By living on milk and apple-pie.
When his ajus daily toil was done,
He wrastled with "Coke upon Littleton;"
And when he tired at dead o'night
He sot like an Oophalopeepotite,
And whistled an upper-attic air
With a skill at once well done and rare.

"Some day," says I, "this cuss will find
His constitution undermined.
This trifling close to Heaven long
Is a sort of sacrilegious wrong:
And Heaven will kinder retribute
By punishing this bold galoot.
This constant turning night to day
Don't sometimes gen'rally always pay;
'Fore long he will be found dead set,
With an injunction on his wind, you bet.
I believe what a sound old poet once writ:
(In words as hefty of sense as wit):
'A man that from July unto June
Is too fond of stirring must be a spoon.'
It's wise and healthy to rise with the lark,
If we only turn in with the goose at dark;
But to stay up with the reprobate owl,
And turn out at the crow of the barnyard fowl,
Is a terrible crime agin Natur," says I,
"And she'll deal out the penalty by and by."

One cold March day, at a quarter past 2,
This prophecy of mine come true.
The lawyer cuss was found stone dead,
With his head on the floor and his heels on the bed.

When the jury met for to settle as how
He died, they had a long pow-wow.
Smith said, "Konipition fits;" Jones said "no."
Till the fambledy come they couldn't decide
How in the dickens the quecr cuss died.
When she warsted his habits, war thun
The jury concluded to ponder again.
So they pow-wowed a spell, and at last took a vote,
Which the same as a moral I here below quote.
They agreed on a verdick, viz: "He died, it is plain,
Of too airly arose in a roomatic pain."

Gath Brittle.

THE COLONEL'S SUPPER.—In the fall of '62 our regiment (the—th Ohio Volunteer Infantry) were "circling around" through Maryland, and the orders were very strict about foraging. Consequently, the boys who would forage anyway, were often put to their wits to get the "necessaries" into camp without detection. One afternoon the band went out, as usual, to practice in the woods near the camp. A nice, fat shoat in his perambulations after acorns and other "shack" wandered near where the boys were playing. The temptation was too strong. The fife and drum were hushed, and a well-directed shot from Dick's "Navy" laid porky low, and he was soon dressed and ready for transportation. It was nearly time for dress parade, and how to get the animal into camp was the question. Suddenly an idea struck Dick, our fife-major, and was soon put into execution. The bass-drum was uncorded and the carcass deposited therein. The drumhead was replaced and the band took up the line of march for camp. The regiment was just forming for dress parade, and the band had to go immediately on the parade ground. "Troop, beat off!" and up the line went the band, G——, our bass-drumer, looking rather white around the gills, but nary beat from the big drum. When opposite the Colonel, who was beginning to look livid at the eccentric movements of the band, the order came, "Music, halt!" (To G——,) "Why don't you beat that drum, sir?" G——, thinking the boldest way the safest, stepped up in front of the Colonel, and whispered, "Colonel, we've got a pig in the drum." Quick as lightning came the reply, roaring along the line, "Sick, you are? Then why in h—l don't you go to your quarters? Be off! Music, forward, march!" It is needless to say that the Colonel had pork-steak for supper.—Grand Army Jour.

ROMANISM AS IT IS. This Book, an elegant Octavo Volume, containing 750 page, and 100 first-class engravings, is an exhaustive and Standard work, eminently adapted to the times. It fully uncovers the Roman system from its origin to the present time, exposes its baseless pretenses, its frauds, its persecutions, its gross immoralities, its opposition to our public schools, and civil and religious liberty; it shows its insidious workings which strongly tend to bring this country under full Romish control. THE

NOVELTY CLOTHES WRINGER.

Nothing, except the Sewing Machine, has ever been invented which so much relieves the labor of the household as the Wringer. But its usefulness does not end here. The saving of clothing is of much greater importance. It is often remarked that articles of fine texture, last twice as long when wrung in a Wringer as when wrung by hand. The NOVELTY has Cog-wheels on both ends. * * The rolls are allowed to separate at either end. These, besides other advantages which it contains, seem to be indispensable to a practical wringer.—New York Independent.

The Novelty Wringer has become an indispensable institution in thousands of families. And we believe its great and increasing popularity is fully merited—for the Novelty evidently possesses all the requisites of a first-class, practical machine. Indeed, after using one for many months in our own family, we are prepared to indorse the Novelty as unsurpassed (the laundress says unequaled,) by any of the several wringers previously tried.—Moore's Rural New Yorker.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1871.

THE NEW YORK MAIL reveals more astounding frauds of the Ring. Ingersoll, Garvey, Keyser and their mysterious companies all reappear as chief partisans in the wholesale plunder that has been going on under both the county and city administration, while new comrades of the now notorious gang are brought to light. Keyser & Co. appear to have received from the city $1,149,874, in addition to their $1,231,-819 levied from the county. This example of impartiality with which the county and city have been plundered may answer for the rest of their equally celebrated contemporaries in the same business. The New York Printing Company received $260,000, and the Transcript association, which is part of the New York Printing Company, received $200,000. One contractor for clearing streets received $1,300,000, and another contractor $360,000. Gas-lamps and street-signs in one year cost $130,000, and brooms and brushes for street-sweeping cost $32,000. Lamp-posts in one year cost $200,000 to one contractor and $19,000 to another.

DEMOCRATIC PAPERS in California are busy trying to explain the defeat of their party at the last election. They tell us it was unfortunate Gov. Haight did not abide by his original determination not to accept a re-nomination; the one term principle should apply to Governors as well as Presidents. We read that on the subsidy question and opposition to the Chinese the Republicans took the same grounds as the Democrats. The fight was against Haight, who made many blunders as Governor, among others sanctioning the disgraceful "Lottery Act." The Germans left the Democrats in California on account of the strong sympathy manifested by them and the Irish for the French during the war. The papal procession in San Francisco roused the spirits of the Protestants, and all the Italians were driven into the Republican fold, owing to the indiscretion of the Papists over the occupation of Rome. Then came the news of the attack upon the Orange procession in New York, with the blunders of the Democratic politicans. The black men, two thousand strong, voted the Republican ticket, for the first time. Such a combination of circumstances as the above defeated the Democrats of California, and served them right. Hereafter let them treat black men, Italians, Germans, and all citizens alike.

—Friday, we heard some one coming up the stairs, leading to the Journal Job Rooms, puffing and blowing, and soon a man (from Berwick) with a big cabbage in his arms appeared. After we had a look at it, he picked it up and carried it off. It was quite a job for him to get it up and down two flights of stairs just to show it to us. It is customary to leave such "big things" with the printer, but the man probably didn't understand that. Don't show us any more cabbages unless we can test them.—Biddeford Journal.

The man with the cabbage-head in his arms would have left it, had he not found your office well supplied with a bigger one than he had. Ask George why this is thus; he'll tell.—Biddeford Journal.

Don't you believe everything you read, Ed. John was located at St. Albans with an agricultural editor, you know, and remained with him at 'Eary 'Ogan's, notwithstanding the committee had provided him with a more suitable companion. Marden knew how 'twas, as did the man from Webster, Mass. Cabbages, indeed! What is one cabbage amongst a crowd of one, with Butler at the front?

THE STATE FAIR.

On Friday, four horses contested in the 2.55 trot. Rob Roy of Concord won after five heats, in 2:42, 2:45 1-2, 2:46, Lady Sherburne of Concord getting the first heat in 2:42 1-4, and Lady Rogers of Manchester and St. Lawrence Maid of Portsmouth making a dead heat of the second in 2:45 1-4. For the stallion purse there were only two contestants, Shakespeare of Concord and Young Draco of Durham, and after a very close contest Shakespeare won in 2:43 1-2 2:43 1-2, 2:44. A pacing-match between the black gelding Wonder of Dover, General Grant of Great Falls, and the chesnut gelding of George Russell of Exeter, was won easily in three straight heats by Wonder in 2:42 3-4, 2:36 3-4, 2:42 3-4. A foot-race by boys half a mile, was won in 2:26. George H. Pierce's half-century pair of horses, one 17 years old and the other 34 trotting a mile with four in his carryall in 3:23, and Frank W. Miller's Old Jack, 17 years old, changed the chief-marshal's saddle for a sulky, and did one mile in 3:02 and another in 2:58 1-2.

POLITICAL.

A Concord dispatch to the Boston Journal says it is reported that the Democrats have sent out a secret circular asking the opinion of their prominent men on the propriety of calling an extra session of the Legislature, under a certain contingency which, it is thought, may occur.

MASTER G. WASHINGTON CONKLIN, of Staten Island, barely nineteen years of age, has actually married three different women. The third time brought him to grief. The ceremony of marriage had been only just concluded, the bride being a farmer's daughter yet in her teens, when a matron of forty-five presented herself and claimed Washington as her own. He has been "locked up for examination."

A GIRL of seventeen years located a farm in Kansas three years ago. The land was perfectly wild, and she employed no male help, but her success has been such that, on Tuesday of last week, she was offered for her farm ten times the amount she paid for it. She refused the offer, and says in five years more she will retire to the east and live on the interest of her property.

A CITIZEN of Janesville, Wis., on a recent trip to St. Louis, took a sleeping-car berth on a through express train. In the night he got up, and, clad only in his sleeping garments, went out on the platform of the car to look at the moon. The door closed with a spring lock, and the porter of the car was asleep. He says he never enjoyed a fifty-mile ride as he did that one.

Two ENGINES on the Boston & Maine Railroad collided near Prison Point, Charlestown, Friday, and delayed the trains four hours. Loss $4000.

P. S. GILMORE has secured the British band of guards for the international musical festival. He now goes to Paris and Berlin.

BOSTON & MAINE RAILROAD EXTENSION.—The following are the assignments of the contracts on 32 miles of the extension of the B. & M. Railroad:

Bonnallie & Robbins, Sections 6, 16 and 17, excepting the bridge and arch masonry.

P. Maney & Son, Sections 7, 10 and 11, grading, culverts and paving.

Shannahan & Dolan, Sections 8, 9, 19 and 20, grading, culvert masonry and paving.

Ward Brothers, Section 12, grading, culverts and paving.

J. A. Gordon & Co. all the work of Sections 13 and 14.

Andrews & Haines, all the work of Section 15; and the masonry of Sections 16, 17 and 18.

Savage, Berry & Co., all the grading and masonry of sections 21, 22 and 23; arch and bridge masonry of Sections 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12 and 19.

The Directors have ordered the remainder of the extension to be located at once and put under contract. All the grading and masonry to be finished by June 1st, 1872.

The "sections" are from one and three quarters miles to two and a quarter miles long, and commence to number from Salmon Falls, section six commencing at the crossing of the P. S. & P. track at North Berwick. The sections contracted for by Messrs. Ira Andrews and Ferguson Haines, are in length five miles and 800 feet westerly from Wharf street, Saco, and their contract is for all the masonry and retaining walls for said sections and for the grading of section fifteen. The road will run 260 feet from the P. S. & P. track at the Alfred crossing in this city, eight feet below the grade of the Alfred road which will require a road grade for the bridge crossing of six feet; it crosses Main, Thornton, and Elm streets at grade, is about ten feet above Smith street, and crosses Gooch island about seven feet above the level, runs three feet below the highest knoll back of Calef block, Saco, and crosses Cataract bridge at grade, thence 10 feet above the crossing on Common street, and seven feet above that on James, striking Beach street at grade. We understand the sections east of Little river, Scarboro, and west of North Berwick village have not been contracted for at this time of writing.—Biddeford Journal.

—It is stated that the ocean waters flow under the bog crusts in Florida for many miles, and that salt water fishes have been taken in "sink holes" or openings in this crust sixty miles from the sea shore. This accounts for the recent sinking of a whole county.

—A letter from Bonn tells a story of a German General, who, on inspecting his troops, not long ago, addressed them thus: "Now, my children, we can once more get seriously to work. The pastime of war is at an end, and drill must go on regularly as heretofore." —Tipsy customer: "A pint o' whisky, please sir." Publican: "Ye'll get nae mair whisky here, McTanish. Haven't I told you in plain English? D'ye want it in Latin and Greek?" Tipsy customer: "No, thank ye, sir; I want in a bozzle."—Punch.

—Eighteen copies of the first edition of the Bible ever printed are still in existence. They were printed in Metz between the years 1440 and 1445. Mr. James Lennox of New York owns one of the copies, having purchased it at a cost of $3200.

THE EUROPEAN QUESTION.

What is the European question to us? Let the crowned heads fight it out while we supply their armies with provisions.

THE AMERICAN QUESTION

Old Things Have Passed Away.

This is at least true of the old method of treating the long abused and much abused human body. It is no longer considered wise to put a patient to torture in order to cure him of a disease in which pain is already undermining the energies of his system. True science ranges itself on the side of nature, and endeavors to assist her in her fight against disease. This is the province of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, the most approved tonic ever advertised in this country. It may be recommended as a fall medicine, par excellence; for it is in the fall that biliousness, dyspepsia and malarious fevers are especially prevalent. The frame, exhausted by the heats of summer, is relaxed and feeble at its close, and requires, we may say demands artificial assistance. Afford it assistance in occasional doses of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and the evils referred to may be escaped. Throughout the far West, and on the steaming alluvial of the southern rivers, all the varieties of periodical fever are probably rife to-day. Had a course of Hostetter's Bitters been commenced by the sufferers a month ago, i. e., before the unhealthy season set in, seven-eights of them would in all probability be in their usual health at the present time. So much for want of forecast. So much for not keeping in the house, and using daily, the best safeguard against epidemic and endemic fevers.

As flocks of imposters and imitators are trying to follow in the wake of the great American remedy, therefore be sure that the article you buy is genuine and verified by the proper trade marks. The true article can only be obtained in bottles. Beware of the spurious bitters sold by the gallon or in keg.

PINK AND WHITE TYRANNY,

BY MRS. H. B. STOWE, author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "The Minister's Wooing," &c.; published by Roberts Bros., Boston. This vivid story of modern society presents the extravagance of the newly rich, who have never learned the use of money, and the failure of the substitutes by which people who live by sensation try to supply the place of honor and religion. The pen which was of such service in riding us of the tyranny of black slavery, cannot but have great influence against the pink and white tyranny of women of fashion. For sale by NAVAL.—Lieut. Frank D. Webster, U. S. M. C., is detached from duty at this Station and ordered to U. S. S. Congress.

FIRE AT NEWCASTLE.—Early Saturday morning, fire was discovered in the house of Mr. Charles Simpson on the "Preble farm." Mr. Simpson mounted his horse and rode into the village. His fellow citizens rallied and saved the house after it had been burned $300 worth. Insured.

MRS. MARGARET J. HARTNETT was summoned before Judge Page on Saturday for assaulting Michael Buckley, a day or two since. Margaret made the assault with her tongue and a door key, both of which seemed to have made an impression. She promptly paid $5 and costs, and shortly after retaliated on Michael by getting out a warrant for the arrest of Buckley for an assault on herself. Judge Page will act as referee in the case to-day.

JAMES F. JENNESS, ESQ., whose success in collecting old and rare coins, in bagging birds and in bringing home trout is well known in this vicinity, has this year come out strong as a fruit raiser. On Saturday we saw in the counting room of H. Eldredge & Son, for whom Mr. Jenness is book-keeper, several large baskets full of magnificent Duchesse pears, a part of six bushels gathered from a tree less than twenty feet in height, in his garden on Hanover Street. The size of the fruit and the yield are greatly disproportioned to the size of the tree, and had we not seen both we should have regarded the story as somewhat of a fiction. Capt. Eldredge has promised us some of those pears when they become fit for eating, and we sha'n't forget it if he does; we have a weakness for pears.

MR. A. J. PENHALLOW desires to explain his remarks at the recent Railroad meeting as follows:—"Wishing to show our City Fathers the difficulty of managing railroads and to impress upon them the nature of their responsibilities should they add to their present duties the management of a railroad, I cited the case of the Eastern Railroad. I added the remark that by the recent developments in regard to that Road the aspect of railroading generally had become changed. Hitherto railroads had been a valuable item in the element, but now they are dreadful engines of Almighty wrath to sweep from the face of the earth a generation that does not suit Him,—a beer and rum drinking race. I intended also to convey the idea that in seeking a solution of some of the dreadful calamities of the present time the first inquiry should be, how far if at all, they are chargeable to the account of Beer, Rum & Company."

MANY PAPERS have claimed for their respective places of publication the possession of the "champion mean man;" but we confidently claim for Portsmouth not only the champion mean man, but the proud title of "champion mean city,"—the City Government, at its last meeting, having economized by taking out of the salary of a police officer who had been absent two days, the pay for two days—though the absence was occasioned by sickness, and one section of the Police Regulations is as follows:

Policemen wounded or otherwise disabled while in the performance of their official duties, and those rendered ill in consequence of unusual or extraordinary exposure or hardship beyond the regular line of their duty, shall receive pay for the period of service necessarily lost in recovery; but in cases of ordinary sickness, pay will not be allowed for more than ten days.

If any other city has been engaged in "smaller" business than the above, or any man has been engaged in any meaner business than fugling such a measure through, we wait to hear it.

THE OLD TEMPLE, under the management of Mr. John W. Stavers shows signs of rejuvenation. In addition to the many improvements made in the past, the industrious proprietor is constantly at work, endeavoring to make the only resort for public entertainments in this city more comfortable for the public. The removal of the old chimneys and stoves not only gives more space but relieves audiences from the uncomfortable experiences which formerly attended them when seated under the heated stove pipes. Much of the work done cannot be seen, from a casual glance in the audience hall, but an inspection of the building back of the stage and in the basement shows that some one has been busy for many months. The stage fittings are greatly improved and the anterooms made tenantable. Mr. Stavers' arrangement for future operations are quite extensive, and he is contemplating a more convenient entrance into the north-east corner of the hall, for the purpose of preventing the unavoidable crowding which now ensues when a large audience gathers, (as at the Lingard entertainment,) some desiring to be seated only and others wishing to purchase tickets. This is a much needed reform.

Mr. Thomas P. Moses, a veteran artist whom our citizens should be proud of and who needs proper encouragement, has finished a drop curtain, 32 feet by 27, for the stage. Those who have seen it are loud in their praises and it certainly merits all the encomiums that have been lavished on it. It was copied from a steel engraving, every figure being extended by exact measurement that the proportions may be preserved. It represents the famous scene in the Valley of Unkiar-skelessi—"Turks on the Bosphorus at the celebrated Treaty with Russia, 1833." Mr. Moses has spent all his leisure time for a year on this work of art, and proposes to exhibit it first in connection with an entertainment of his own—in which we wish him most abundant success and bespeak the liberal patronage of the public.

THE PUBLIC FORUM, J. L. Foster's new paper at Manchester, was launched Sept. 30th, and Joshua responds to our notice of him in a characteristic manner, as follows, to wit, viz:—

"Old reptile" is good. The critter is afraid of snakes again. When we used to apply the corrective whalebone for his benefit, he thought he felt scorpions and all manner of wiry, crooked and crabbed reptiles crawling over the ossified railway of his back * * * * * * * * and down the legs of his breeches. It was a terrible infliction and frightened him out of half his hopeful growth. Now he is terrified again and well he may be. Perhaps we ought to be Ku-Kluxed for cruelty to animals.

We are pleased to notice that Joshua's Connecticut sorrows did not succeed in reducing the exuberant courage he always owned to possessing—courage equal to that of a whole menagerie of living wild beasts of prey, with the performing donkeys thrown in,—the possession of which by him is another proof that physiognomy cannot always be depended on to indicate a man's character. The Public For-rum is well printed, on good paper; its politics will of course be as far advanced backwards towards the dark ages as though it was edited by Jeff Davis or that venerable calamity, Alexander H. Stephens,—for this modern Joshua proposes to outdo the one of old, who merely commanded the sun and moon to stand still, and will undertake to turn the world back for ten years or so. We count the new sheet equal to a clean Republican gain of 300 votes in Manchester and vicinity and of 1000 in the State, if it can only be kept running till next March; so we hope the Mirror will never laugh at Joshua's weekly announcements of what a terrible being he is, or he will clear out from Manchester as he did from New Haven, and we shall then be obliged to work to secure the Republican gain which will otherwise come to us without exertion. Brother Mirror, never ask Joshua where he keeps his private graveyard, nor what he does with the bones of all the Republicans he devours, as he is very sensitive on those topics. Pet him up; call him "lengthened sweetness long drawn out," and all will be well.

JOHN ROGERS, aged 61 years, defaulting cashier of the Pejepscot National Bank of Brunswick, Me., has been sentenced to State Prison for six years. He received but $400 salary for his services as cashier, and Judge Shapley stated that had it not been a National Bank he would have had the Directors indicted for offering such an inducement to embezzle.

Morning Chronicle.

GOVERNOR WENTWORTH AT WOLFEBOROUGH.

Governor John Wentworth was the last Royal Colonial Governor New Hampshire had. While living at Portsmouth and under appointment from the English Crown, attending to his official duties, he conceived the idea of opening communication with this then desolate wilderness, the country about the Winnipissecogee.—According to the historian Neal, the Governor, in his letter dated Portsmouth, 25th April, 1768, writes as follows to Col. Thomas M. Waldron of Dover: "Mr. Benjamin Hart, overseer of my designation in the Wilderness, and Mr. Webb, who is to reside there as farmer in the future, are now on their first expedition to clear a few acres, and build a humble habitation for me." The motive of His Excellency was certainly commendable. He not only wished a spot to which to retire for pleasure a portion of the year, but he also desired to develop the resources of this section. He further says in the same letter: "I beg your favor in this matter. We are young settlers, and depend greatly upon the benevolent aid of the country to promote our work. If the said aid, and other advantages encourage me, I will take measures to populate that part of the Province within ten years more usefully than is now seen from this town to Florida." In the columns of the New Hampshire Gazette of July 17, 1770, it was announced that "Last Tuesday His Excellency our Governor, set out for his country seat on Winnepissocogee Pond, and we hear his lady sets out next week for the same place to reside during the summer season."

The Provincial Road, which he constructed from Portsmouth to Wolfeboro', was forty-five miles in length, and was built in 1770. The Governor's Mansion was completed in 1770. It was located about five miles to the eastward of Wolfeborough Bridge, and is described as having been a very spacious and elegant establishment, and constructed in the best art known at the day. It is situated near the shore of what is called here "Smith's Pond," and, as has been described, at the head of a long lane of beautiful elms, leading to the pond, some few of which are still standing. Some fruit trees which the old Governor set out yet remain. The mansion was destroyed by fire in 1820. The grounds are represented as having been well stocked with game. The "proud monarch" enjoyed himself here undoubtedly, and would longer have done so, but for the (to him) unlucky fact that when our Yankee race was like to break loose from British rule, he was forced to leave his summer retreat between two days and reach Portsmouth where he embarked for England. This was the last of the royal gubernatorial line in New Hampshire.

The establishment of the communication between Wolfeborough and Portsmouth was but a part of the plan of that early day, which was to connect with the college at Dartmouth. In 1871, therefore, a road was surveyed for that purpose, in accordance with an act of the Legislature of that year. The New Hampshire Gazette of Aug. 23, 1771, announced that "His Excellency, Gov. Wentworth, with a number of gentlemen, set out from here (Portsmouth) for Dartmouth College by way of Wolfeborough." They went to be present at Commencement exercises. All we now see of the palatial residence of Gov. Wentworth is the foundation of the buildings. After he took his flight his territory passed by confiscation into other hands, and is to-day in the possession of good farmers, who cultivate the soil.

To those strangers who visit here, it well repays a drive to the Wentworth grounds or the "Governor's Farm." It has often surprised many why the Governor selected a site so remote from the the Lake, on the shores of which he might have found far more beautiful scenery.—Wolfeboro' Cor. of the Salem Gazette.

A Wolfeborough correspondent of the Liberal Christian, referring to Gov. Wentworth, says:—

His estate here embraced about a thousand acres. He enclosed, with a high fence, a park of a hundred acres, and kept in it moose and deer. His headquarters were at Portsmouth, where indeed he was born, but every Summer he came up to Wolfeborough, where he lived in almost royal style, cutting a road through the forests all the way from the former town to the latter, especially for his own use and convenience. He married a Mrs. Atkinson ten days after the death of her first husband. It is said of her that she once wished to join a husking party which had assembled on the grounds of the Wolfeborough estate. The Governor stoutly interposed his objections, and threatened that if she so demeaned herself he would fasten her out of doors. Nothing daunted, she carried her purpose into execution, and when on her return she found he had made good his word, she threatened to drown herself, and started for the pond. Alarmed at such a turn of affairs, he came to terms, as doubtless many a husband in like manner has done since that day as well as before, and ran out to entreat her to come back, which she did, and, entering the house before him, fastened him out! I wonder if this also has ever been repeated like the other!

The Governor of colonial times remained loyal to the King in the days of Revolution. But when he sought to procure from Wolfeborough carpenters to build barracks for Gen. Gage's troops in Boston, the spirit of the townspeople rose so terribly against him that he was compelled to fly for safety. He took refuge in Fort William and Mary, and in a year or two left for England, where he was created a baronet, and his wife became lady-in-waiting to the Queen. He died in Halifax, in 1820.

His splendid estate on Smith Pond was confiscated. It is now divided into various farms, while much of the land is yet uncultivated. The noble mansion was many years ago burnt to the ground, but there is still the cellar out of which several trees have sprung and attained a goodly growth. There are still the neglected trees of a once extensive orchard a few rods distant from where stood the house. There are the traces of the broad and finely constructed avenue that led to the door from the main road, a quarter of a mile away. It was not so easy for us to determine where the husking took place, but we were quite sure we saw where the door must have been where, on a certain night, the Governor tried to enter in, but couldn't. An interesting spot is this where Royalty once had a seat in the lake region of New Hampshire, and none should visit Wolfeborough without making it a visit.

Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, passessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammations of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawis6b16

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but many in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. The demand for the Averill Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

THE RULE OF "RETIREMENT."—The suicide of the late Professor Mahan, of West Point, together with the forced retirement of Surgeon General Wood, and, perhaps, the "shelving" of other military and naval officers, have led to a partial revival of the vexed questions of promotion, preferment and retiracy in and from the military and naval services of the United States.

The late act of Congress, by which certain officers are "retired" at sixty-two years of age, without apparent reference to their physical or mental efficiency, would certainly seem, at the first glance, a hard if not an unjust one. It would not, however, present so hard or so very unjust an aspect if the "retired" officers were still eligible to commands in navy yards, naval stations and other shore duties. But by the latest interpretation of the law, on this subject, it appears that those officers thus "retired may not be appointed" to such duties, but must be considered as "shelved" to all intents and purposes until a "crisis" of some kind or other shall make their services imperatively needed again.

It is certainly not extraordinary that, under these circumstances, officers who have spent their youth and earlier manhood in the service should feel that to "retire" them in the very prime period of their official lives—when they have gained, by experience and hardships, the knowledge that should render their services more valuable to the country—is a piece of flagrant injustice, and calculated to injure the efficiency of the service to which they belong, even though it may be beneficial to the younger ambitions of those who have been impatiently waiting to step into the shoes of their elders and superiors.

In the recent great war between France and Germany the whole merit of the victory of the latter over the former is due, in a military sense, to Count Von Moltke—a veteran of nearly eighty. If our rule of "retiracy" had obtained in the Prussian service, where would he have been at the time his military genuis was wanted? "Shelved" for nearly twenty years, and so, probably, forgotten; for the memory of princes and potentates is as unstable as the gratitude of republics.

Many, if not most, of the greatest military achievements have been accomplished by veteran soldiers and sailors, men far beyond the limit of active usefulness assigned by the congressional wiseacres, who appear to have considered a man worn out at sixty-two, and it is therefore no wonder that the most distinguished officers of our dual military service, are dissatisfied and despondent, nor that many of them have sought and are still seeking the rewards of merit in foreign climes, where the years spent and experience acquired in service are not counted against them.—Phila. Rec.

—Col. Hardee, who was a Confederate soldier during the rebellion, and who still thinks that the war was "a wicked war," has in these piping times of peace turned his attention from the slaughter of men to the more commendable killing of insects obnoxious to vegetation. He recently addressed a meeting of farmers at the Florida Land-Agency, and claimed "to have utilized concussion in the perfect annihilation of the horticultural pest known as curculio." He first noticed that the blowing of a whistle by a locomotive on a railway passing near him had drive the curculio to the extreme end of his orchard. He concluded that the insects didn't like the jarring, and by way of confirming his opinion he ignited two pounds of powder placed in the hollow of a live-oak stump. The result was that not only the curculio, but every winged insect in the orchard was destroyed. He adds that concussion is "a great fertilizer"—that it destroys "animalcules" and renders sickly localities perfectly healthy. When there is little or no thunder, he argues, there is a great deal of yellow fever. How concussion affects air, soil, or trees he doesn't know; he only knows the facts. "I claim," he says, "that the Yanks were indebted to King Gunpowder for their healthfulness during the late wicked war." Well, they certainly would hardly have had a healthy time without it.

—The Indianapolis Sentinel says it can prove that the Chicago sharpers rope in and rob every fool from the rural districts that ventures within the metropolitan precincts. Why didn't the editor call on us when he was here? Bring on your proofs. Hoo-ster witness?—Chicago Post.

—In Marion County, Georgia, the blacks are subscribing to the stock of a contemplated railroad, proposing to work out their subscription, receiving one-half of their daily wages in cash, the remaining half to go toward paying for their stock.

—The order of Charity in Lowell, have volunteered to serve as nurses in the city small pox hospitals. The number of new cases has diminished since Sunday and the people are hopeful that the pestilence is on the decrease.

—A Terre Haute man refused to pay for the funeral notice of his mother-in-law.

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.

The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ is torpid, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the lacteals are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup nourishes the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is a new order of things, a good appetite, a good nutrition, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, and if a person is very bad, if the lungs are not entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up, there is hope.

I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's medicines will do to cure Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.

It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep in-doors in cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in a gentle and warm sunshine.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason. A man who has been partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is far more liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and it is precisely the same in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not genial and pleasant. Confirmed consumptives' lungs are a mass of sores, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The great secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to subdue inflammation instead of provoking it, as many of the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety to the patient be exposed to the biting blasts of winter or the chilling winds of spring or autumn. It should be carefully shielded from all irritating influence. The utmost caution should be observed in this particular, as without it a cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutricious diet, and all the medicines continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.

I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty these many years, with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment whom I have never seen.

About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

ROMANISM AS IT IS. This Book, an elegant Octavo Volume, containing 750 pages, and 175 first-class engravings, is an exhaustive and Standard work, eminently adapted to the times. THE

NOVELTY CLOTHES WRINGER.

Nothing, except the Sewing Machine, has ever been invented which so much relieves the labor of the household as the Wringer. But its usefulness does not end here. The saving of clothing is of much greater importance. It is often reduced the articles of fine texture, last twice as long when wrung in a Wringer as when wrung by hand. The NOVELTY has Cog-wheels on both ends. * * The rolls are allowed to separate at either end. These, besides other advantages which it contains, seem to be indispensable to a practical wringer.—New York Independent.

The Novelty Wringer has become an indispensable institution in thousands of families. And we believe its great and increasing popularity is fully merited—for the Novelty evidently possess all the requisites of a first-class, practical machine. Indeed, after using one for many months in our own family, we are prepared to indorse the Novelty as unsurpassed (the laundress says unequalled,) by any of the several wringers previously tried.—Moore's Rural New Yorker.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1871.

POLITICAL.

Mr. Pendleton having said in one of his recent speeches that there wasn't money enough in the country by $150,000,000 to pay the taxes if the people were required to pay them all in one day, Senator Morton shows the absurdity of the assertion by retorting, "Well, now, that is a tremendous thought; and it is an appalling fact that if the people were required to eat in one day all they now eat in the course of a year they would inevitably burst."

The New York Tribune says Secretary Boutwell is doing the country a real service by his lucid and convincing expositions of the condition of the finance of the country. His speech at Cincinnati is well calculated to strengthen the national credit abroad and silence cavilers at home.

On the 5th of March, 1873, the official term of twenty-four United States Senators will come to an end. Of these Garrett Davis of Kentucky, George Vickers of Maryland, and Francis P. Blair, Jr., of Missouri, are Democrats, and the remainder Republicans. Among the latter are some of the very ablest men in the present Senate—Trumbull of Illinois, Patterson of New Hampshire, Conkling of New York, Morton of Indiana, Harlan of Iowa, Morrill of Vermont, Cameron of Pennsylvania, and Sherman of Ohio.

The Omaha Herald (Democrat) displays its rooster at the defeat of the new constitution in Nebraska, and frankly remarks: "We call upon the Democracy to take a square look at that rooster. He is a democratic chicken, and is something of a stranger in these parts. The noble bird will not be likely to be seen again for many moons."

"Five years ago," remarks the Philadelphia Press, "we fought the Democracy with the spelling book and whipped them. This year our weapon is the arithmetic, and it is just as deadly."

The Ohio State Journal says that the Democratic factions in Ohio are quarrelling fiercely. The friends of Pendleton and Thurman are working to destroy the prospects of either for the Presidency.

The New Jersey campaign promises to be hot.

Secretary Boutwell has returned from Ohio and reports the canvass active on the part of the Republicans with a much better campaign organization than they ever had before. The interest centres chiefly in the legislature, and it is heightened by the situation of affairs in Hamilton and Cuyahoga counties, where the democrats have accepted a mixed ticket presented by disaffected Republicans, the success of which may endanger the legislature. On the State ticket Republicans confidently expect 25,000 majority.

Senator Lewis writes from Virginia that the recent State Republican convention healed all dissensions in the Republican party in that State, and that Virginia is sure to give the republican nominee for President in 1872 a good majority.

THE TAMMANYITES of New York city chose delegates to the Democratic State Convention on Saturday. They have arranged for the passage of 3000 roughs to go to the convention and if moral force will not win physical force will be used. The disgraceful scenes on board of the cars last year will be repeated, and the Jersey authorities will be again on the alert to capture the gang. The clerks in the city department offices have received communications signed by Tweed, asking a contribution of two per cent. on their annual salaries to go to the Tammany election fund.

THE SPEECHES OF SECRETARY BOUTWELL are having an excellent effect, not only in Ohio, but throughout the country. His defense of Grant's administration is a most powerful one, and his showing of the financial condition of the country is a proud record for the administration. A comparison of it with that of the next most extensive administration in the country, that of New York, does not afford much of an inducement for the people to change the Republican for a Democratic rule.

REV. A. A. MINEE, of Boston, went down to Washington to look after Henry Wilson, fearing he was using his influence against General Butler. Wilson protested that he was minding his own business, and to prove it he posted off to Richmond to attend a convention, leaving the Puritans of New England to look out for themselves.

ATTORNEY GENERAL BLODGETT of Georgia was acquitted on Saturday of the charges of swindling and cheating brought against him.

CAPT. JOHN MASON.—The following brief sketch of Capt. John Mason, is from Mr. Tuttle's address before the New Hampshire Historical Society last June, and we are glad to know that Mr. Tuttle proposes to prepare a complete memoir for publication.

Captain Mason was born in King's Lynn, a seaport and parliamentary borough in the noathern part of the county of Norfolk in England, some years before the celebrated Spanish Armada threatened England. In 1610, he had charge of a naval expedition sent by King James to subdue a formidable rebellion in the Hebrides. In 1616, he went to Newfoundland as governor of a plantation begun there in 1610, whereof the famous Sir Francis Bacon was one of the adventurers. While there, Mason surveyed the island and made an accurate map of the same, which was published in London in 1626. He also wrote a full and complete description of Newfoundland, which was printed in Edinburgh in 1620. This is a work of great merit, and seems to have utterly escaped the notice of historians, even those of Newfoundland. Only two copies of the original are known to be preserved. It led to the taking out of a patent for the territory of Nova Scotia by Sir William Alexander, the year following; beside awakening an interest in American colonization among the Scotch. In the year 1617, Mason explored the New England coast.

The second patent granted by the great council for New England was to Capt. Mason, of the territory lying between the Naumkeag and Merrimac rivers, which he called Masionna. In the same year, 1622, he and Gorges procured a patent of the land on the seacoast lying between the Merrimack and Kennebec rivers, which they called the Province of Maine. The next spring, 1623, he sent a colony to settle on the west bank of the Piscataqua River, which was the beginning of the first settlement in this region. War breaking out between England and Spain in 1624, and a year later with France, Mason was appointed treasurer and paymaster of the king's armies; and thereupon his attention was withdrawn, for some years, from his little New England colony. At the close of the war with France in 1629, Mason took from the council of New England a patent for the tract of land lying between the Merrimack and Piscataqua rivers, which he called New Hampshire. The next year he sent additional colonists to the Piscataqua, and the plantation rapidly increased. The year before, Mason and Gorges procured a patent from the council for a large inland tract of land embracing Lake Champlain and that region, supposed to be very rich in valuable minerals and in beaver.

In the autumn of 1631, Mason, Gorges and others formed a partnership in London for the purpose of carrying on trade and settling the country at the Piscataqua. In 1632, Mason was elected a member of the great council of New England, and soon after vice-president of the same. He was about this time chosen treasurer [illegible] of the council of the association of the three kingdoms for a general fishing in the Hebrides, the greatest enterprise of the kind ever undertaken in England. It was about this time he was appointed captain of the South-sea Castle, a fortress at the entrance to Portsmouth harbor in England, and the most important one in the kingdom. In 1635, he was judge of the courts in Hampshire. He was also appointed commissioner to visit, annually, all the forts and castles in England and report their condition to the admiralty. In October of this year the King appointed him vice-admiral of New England. While he was preparing to come hither to assume the duties of his office, he fell sick and died in December. He is buried in Westminister Abbey in London.

EX-GOV. HARRIMAN has prepared a lecture which he proposes to give before lyceums the coming season, upon the late Gen. George H. Thomas, one of the best officers ever in the American army. We have no doubt the Governor will make a very interesting lecture on the grand old hero, and that his lecture will be in demand by lyceums. He has made a happy selection of a subject.

An Unprotected System.

Do not fancy because you feel strong that you are impregnable to sickness. Whole neighborhoods are frequently prostrated at this season by malarious fevers. Vigorous muscles and strong sinews, broad shoulders and sound lungs, are no defence against the mephitic vapors of autumn. Frames which have withstood the summer heat may succumb now. Many an athletic man, whose family depends for its support on his industry, now lies prostrate, weak and helpless as a babe, under the periodical assaults of chills and fever, or bilious remittent fever. This could not be if all were wise enough to provide against such a contingency, by toning and fortifying the system with HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. This approved vegetable tonic is absolutely harmless, so that it is sheer folly not to take it as a safeguard at a season when diseases of the liver, the stomach, the bowels, and indeed all the visceral organs are generally prevalent. To keep the system in order and insure health, or to put it in order when this precaution has been neglected, is the duty of every human being who values life. For both these purposes Hostetter's Bitters is designed, and it answers both. Petty local dealers are endeavoring, in many parts of the country, to substitute preparations made of impure and dangerous materials in its stead. Give them a wide berth. They are prepared by unskillful experimentors, who want to turn a penny at the expense of the public health.

FISK & HATCH,
No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.
September 25th, 1871.

Of the FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $4,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.

The five years' option having expired on all series of FIVE-TWENTY BONDS, except 1867s and 1868s, they are liable to be called in for payment. The redemption of 100 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchases by the Government during the ensuing four months, with the premium thereon, will release about 150 millions of invested capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek reinvestment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sixes

have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought

17 per cent. less than Ten-forties.
20 per cent. less than Five-twenties.
23 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,

and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their outstanding debt by the Trust Deed is $15,000,000. Price (at present) 93 and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1.

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $934.16.

$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $477.08.

$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $93.42.

Only a small amount of the latter denominations remains, and no more can be made. Bonds are in coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.

This debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company in order more speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work —the most important internal improvement now progressing in the country— is rapidly approaching completion. It will establish another and superior line of communication between the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the Eastern States, and nearer to the political and commercial capitals of their country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line that the larger cities of the West are projecting feeders to connect with it, so as to avail themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are passing into the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers, [illegible] Eastern terminus, the head of reliable navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad carriage.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC SIX PER CENT. BONDS are as safe for investment as Government Bonds. Their amount fixed by act of Congress at $25,885,000, is secured by property worth four times their value; they can only be bought in the open market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors both at home and in Europe; they have a ready market in all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are steadily increasing, and will probably reach $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a handsome surplus after payment of expenses and interest. Present price, 101½ to 102.

When the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, in 1872, and the Bonds are dealt in at the Stock Exchanges of the world, we have no doubt they will be equally popular with the Central Pacific. Both principal and interest of the CENTRAL PACIFIC AND CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS, are specifically payable in gold coin in New York; the interest on the former being paid January and July, and of the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.

We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, EIGHTY-ONES, and CENTRAL or WESTERN PACIFICS, or receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. The bonds or money may be forwarded by any responsible Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid. FISK & HATCH.

P. S.—Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, on which we allow Four Per Cent. interest.

Certificates of deposit issued and collections made in all parts of the Union.

POLICE NEWS.—City Marshal Johnson was summoned to Hampton on Saturday to arrest Frank B. Gray of this city for breaking and entering the house of Joseph Jenness of North Hampton on the 6th of September, stealing therefrom a watch and chain, which Gray confessed to have "spouted" to a pawnbroker in Boston. He was brought to this city for trial. Gray says "rum did it." He is a graduate from the House of Correction. Gray was committed to jail in default of bail on Monday.

Delbert Wilbur, a Newbrunswicker, who has been mate of Brig Idalia, Gordon master, was arrested by officers Entwistle and Barsantee on Sunday, for larceny of sails, rigging and blocks from the Brig. He offered the stolen property to several junk dealers, Saturday night, but failed to find a purchaser. The value of the stolen goods is between $200 and $300. When arrested he was concealed in the galley of a vessel at Railroad Wharf. The sails were recovered, but the rigging and blocks are still missing. Wilbur acknowledges his guilt and pleads drunkenness as an excuse. Judge Page required Wilbur to furnish $300 bonds for his appearance, and he went to jail.

Richard Kingsley was committed to jail again in default of $1000 bail, for assaulting David Berry.

Joseph Marshall of Seabrook was arraigned for murdering Jos. E. Knox of that town. The alleged murderer is 23 years of age and the victim 17 years. On Saturday they went to Boar's Head in a boat together in an intoxcated condition. Persons living near the seashore saw them clinch each other in the boat and afterwards heard one say, "I'll cling (or swim) till I die." Marshall returned home on Sunday but said nothing about the absence of Knox. We hear that Marshall had an old grudge against the Knox family and had said he would injure them. His character is said to be bad. The case was continued to Wednesday.

AT THE STATE FAIR, the two-year old grade Ayrshire Heifer "Clover," raised and owned by Frank W. Miller of this city, was awarded second premium. And the three-year old filly Lady Leet, owned by James I. Christey of Dover, received first premium.

In Carriages, Came Brothers of this city swept the field, receiving the first premium for best top buggy, best open buggy, and best carryall; and a special award of gold medal by the Society, for the superior excellence of workmanship and elegance of styles of their carriages. Good, so.

The Domestic Sewing Machine, of which Mr. E. A. Joy of this city is State Agent, received first premium—as very many people think it well deserves.

THE ESTIMATED AMOUNT of coal shipped to Portsmouth this year is 60,000 tons; with an average of 250 tons to a cargo, it takes 240 vessels to bring it. The facilities for discharging the coal are not sufficient, there being room only for one engine at Railroad Wharf, which takes out 300 tons per day. The largest amount taken from one vessel in one day was 225 tons, which was shoveled by four men. A few years ago there was freighted over the C. & P. R.R. 1300 tons; this year it will average nearly 40,000.

PERSONAL.—"Howard Glyndon," the well-known correspondent of the New York Evening Mail and other papers, called on us on Monday and had a look around our venerable and good old city. The brilliant correspondent is equally agreeable as a companion, and was highly delighted with the quiet of Portsmouth's streets—which quiet the P. & D. Railroad men propose to destroy by increasing the business of the place, if they can manage to get the line built.

AN ADVERTISEMENT in the Chronicle of Saturday for a chance to do housework by a young girl, brought in three applicants within three minutes of each other. Perhaps it would be a good idea to import Swedes for the supply wanted, as American girls who are willing to do house work are very scarce.

RENTZ'S FEMALE MINSTRELS, claimed to be the original and only successful company in that line travelling, appear at the Temple this evening. Their advertisement is in another column.

AUCTION SALE of splendid farm in Greenland, with live stock, produce, farming utensils, &c., by J. P. Morse, Esq., this day. See advertisement.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

Keller's California Wine Bitters and his splendid California Wines each took a prize of a gold medal at the State Fair. Messrs. O. & W. A. Waters of Boston are the agents of these fine wines.

The people of Exeter were startled Tuesday afternoon of last week by a loud report of an explosion. It proved to be the bursting of a patent steam generator, which had been buried in sand and heated to test its strength. The pressure reached 850 (eight hundred and fifty) pounds to the square inch, it is said, and the explosion stove twelve windows in the machine shop, a few rods distant. No person was injured.

On the 24th, in Hooksett, some twenty-six persons were taken with intense vomiting and cramps, after having eaten crackers, and milk. The thing so much resembles poisoning that it will be investigated.

Communicated.

Messrs. Editors:—In regard to the hog problem published in the Chronicle, my first impression was that the correct answer was, that A's share of the $28.00 would be $16,85 5-7; B's share $11.14 2-7. But I am convinced on more mature consideration that the correct answer is, A has $11.75 and B $11.25,—$28. Suppose the hogs had each weighed 300 lbs. and one worth 1-2 cent. per lb. more than the other, then the prices must have been $3.75 and $4.25—which would give B $11.25 and A $12.75 —$2400; which leaves A $4.00 for his extra 100 lbs.; therefore A. has $12.75 and $4.00 amounting to $16.75 and B. $12.25. Total, $28.00. N. D.

THE EDITOR of the Manchester Public For-rum (copperhead) is anxious to have the Democratic party purge itself by casting out every person whose conduct disgraces it. This is excellent advice, and we hope that party will reduce itself to a nonentity by following it; but in that case we are very anxious to know what party the For-rum's editor proposes to join—the Republicans don't want him, he will hardly do for the Prohibitionists, and there isn't any Labor Reform party now residing in New Hampshire. Where will the editor go to?

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges.

Morning Chronicle.

—A widow, a boarding house keeper out in Kansas, who entered a complaint against a boarder, gave her age as twenty-three, when she is fifty if she is a day, and the enraged justice dismissed the case without inquiring any further.

—Anna Dickinson has pocketed by her lectures since 1860, the snug little sum of $81,000, and Olive Logan has raked in $40,000 in three years. Those two old girls are good for another half century.—New York Telegram.

—A Hartford paper says of a canditate for office;—"If he is not elected, the destruction of the world will be a matter of indifference to him: if elected its destruction will be a boon to his fellow-citizens."

—A New York oculist is credited with having charged a wealthy patient one thousand dollars for taking out an eye. A Bowery shoulder hitter would have taken it out for fun and put a roof over the hole.

—A California paper says the reason why they have no gray-haired men there is that intemperance and debauchery carry the people into the grave before their hair has had time to blanch.

—Bulwer says poverty is only an idea, in nine cases out of ten, and that there is really more happiness among the working men in the world than among those who are called rich.

—The Paris Commune, during their short reign, burned the guillotine; but Hendrecht, the chief executioner for Paris, has been commissioned to make another—this time of iron.

—Several girls are now employed in Milwaukee as carriers of newspapers to city subscribers. They are prompt, quick and so far have been found reliable.

—Mr. Kerr of Kansas went to bed upon a roof, and on waking up on the sidewalk made some Kerrsory remarks.

—A "glittering maze of artificial beauty" is what ails Cincinnati.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS,

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,

Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetisers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawfb16

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

—IF SO, USE THE—

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. TO GUARD AGAINST DROWNING.—A correspondent of the Alta California, alluding to paragraphs which appeared from time to time on accidental drowning, says: It has proven by anatomical experiments that the weight of a human body is about equal to the same bulk of salt or sea water, or, in other words, the amount displaced by the human body when submerged in the sea is very nearly equal in weight to the body so displacing it. A further proof of this is in the fact that after a certain length of time, in cases of drowning, the body rises to the surface, and this, often, when encumbered with clothing, boots, or other matter heavier than water. In cases of persons who cannot swim falling overboard encumbered with clothing, if they will not attempt to struggle to keep more than the mouth out of the water, at the same time kicking downward with their feet and paddling with their hands under water, they can sustain themselves for a considerable length of time. Most persons who fall into the water lose all presence of mind, and either draw their hands up or dash them through the air and water. The moment the weight of the arms is added to the weight of the head above the water, the inevitable consequence is to submerge the body. A few struggles of this character close the scene. The same struggle with the arms and feet under the water will certainly sustain the mouth above water, and could the senses control the impulse to throw the arms up, and keep them down, there would be less recording of accidental drowning. The correspondent cites the case of a man who could not swim, falling overboard from a ship at sea, whose life was saved by a surgeon on board crying out in authoritative tones to keep his hands under the water. Accustomed to obeying orders, his hands went under the water; but, as the ship receded, the impulse to throw up his hands overcame him, and down he went. Seizing the speaking trumpet, the surgeon ordered him as he rose to the surface in his struggle, to down with his hands. In the meantime the sails were hove aback, a boat lowered and the man reached in time to save him. Obeying orders was his safety. The correspondent is correct in his theory, and the practice would almost invariable result as in the case cited, if the shock on falling into the water did not throw the person into mortal terror and involuntarily cause the arms to be raised above the water. The suggestion is worth stowing away in one corner of the memory.

ROMANISM AS IT IS. This Book, an elegant Octavo Volume, containing 750 pages, and 105 first-class engravings, is an exhaustive and Standard work, eminently adapted to the times. It fully uncovers the Roman system from its origin to the present time, exposes its baseless pretences, its frauds, its persecutions, its gross immoralities, its opposition to the public schools, and civil and religious liberty; it shows its insidious workings which strongly tend to bring this country under full Roman control. THE

NOVELTY CLOTHES WRINGER.

Nothing, except the Sewing Machine, has ever been invented which so much relieves the labor of the household as the Wringer. But its usefulness does not end here. The saving of clothing is of much greater importance. It is often remarked that articles of fine texture, last twice as long when wrung in a Wringer as when wrung by hand. The NOVELTY has Cog-wheels on both ends. * * The rolls are allowed to separate at either end. These, besides other advantages which it contains, seem to be indispensable to a practical wringer.—New York Independent.

The Novelty Wringer has become an indispensable institution in thousands of families. And we believe its great and increasing popularity is fully merited—for the Novelty evidently possesses all the requisites of a first-class, practical machine. Indeed, after using one for many months in our own family, we are prepared to indorse the Novelty as unsurpassed (the laundress says unequalled,) by any of the several wringers previously tried.—Moore's Rural New Yorker.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1871.

TAMMANY FRAUDS.—The New York Times says the bogus bills paid to Ingersoll & Co., Keyser & Co., and others of that ilk, are hardly less glaring evidences of abominable fraud than the salaries of the various offices of the city and county government for salaries paid to a legion of political retainers as compensation of such offices. Hundreds of names are to be seen on the pay-rolls, of persons who not only never performed any service for the city, but are totally incapable of doing it. Indeed, it is said that there are a number of persons who are paid as clerks, and accredited to that perfect gold mine of plunder. The department of public works, who are absolutely unable to write their own names, and are simply rewarded by the money they draw monthly for services rendered their masters in defrauding the honest community of the effects of their franchises. The names of a few professional bruisers are to be seen upon the pay-rolls, and Jim Cusick and Joe Coburn are said to receive their monthly stipend under assumed names, and in the same classification and in the same department is said to be the name of the Forger himself and several other disreputable journalists. Hon. Michael Norton, who has risen from the dignified post of rattan-man, delegated to preserve order among the boot-blacks in the classic precincts of "Four Forty-four," to the position of a State senator, is said to have no less than twelve of these lucrative sinecures. Deputy-Controller Green is paying especial attention to these fraudulent pay-rolls, and the assiduity with which he is urging the investigation has caused the greatest consternation among the city pay receivers. It is asserted that the fictitious names of employees at the city courts are even more numerous than in the departments so munificently lavish which the Hon. William M. Tweed exclusively controls. As has been already stated the department of public works is considered the "fattest thing" in the gift of the municipality, and of course fell to the lot of the great absorber himself. The department comprises the old Croton board, the street department, and several other rare bits, which Mr. Tweed appropriated to his own individual benefit. Mr. Tweed has a salary of $10,000 per annum, besides almost an unlimited amount for "contingences." A little over two hundred persons are ordinarily employed in this department, but its amplitude at the approach of an election can be extended indefinitely, so that any number of retainers could be carried upon the rolls with the assistance of the controller.

BRIGHAM YOUNG was arrested at Salt Lake on the 2d upon the indictment of the grand jury charging him under the Utah statute with lewdly and licentiously cohabiting with 16 different women. The arrest was made by U. S. Marshal Patrick, at the residence of Young. The penalty imposed by the statute on conviction on this charge is imprisonment for not over ten years nor less than six months, and a fine of not over $1000 nor less than $100. It is reported and generally believed that indictments have been found against Brigham Young for murder.

AT PAOLI, Indiana, on Saturday, the cords of a balloon, in which Professor Wilbur was preparing to make an ascent, gave way. The professor and George W. Knapp, editor of the Orange county Union, grasped the ropes and were carried up. Knapp fell thirty feet without serious injury. Wilbur was carried up a mile, when he was unable to climb into the balloon. He lost his hold and fell to the ground, crushed in an indistinguishable mass.

THE CONCORD MONITOR, under the auspices of the Republican Press Association, is decidedly improved in its make-up and has its local news on the third page. We hope its conductors will find more political enemies to fight outside the party than within it, hereafter.

THE COUNTRY for 25 miles along the the Wabash Railroad, between New Haven, Indiana, and Defiance, Ohio, has been devastated by a conflagration which raged 36 hours. The farmers, to save their barns and houses, ploughed around them. The damage is great.

FOUR CHICAGO BOYS went out in a small boat on Lake Michigan on Saturday, and have not been seen since. The boat was discovered the next day floating bottom upwards.

FOUR MINERS were killed on Monday by an explosion of sulphur in a Pottsville colliery.

THE SPRINGFIELD UNION ventilates the following items of conversation at a dinner table while the late Republican Convention was in session at Worcester:

"Berkshire man, excitedly: Henry I. Dawes can't be bought."

"Essex man, coolly: True. Sam. Bowles won't sell him."

KILLING A MAN TO INSPIRE LOVE.—A late New Orleans paper says that the detectives of that city have been investigating a complicated case, which at one time threatened to have a tragic end. The particulars are that a young man, a resident of Whitestone, influentially connected, presented himself at the office of the District Attorney of Queens County, and stated that he was the victim of some plot; the object was to take his life; that he was being slowly poisoned: in fact, was at the present time laboring under the effects of a large dose of some noxious drug, which seemed to have been diffused through his system. One of the prominent physicians of the village pronounced his a case of slow poison, and having advised with others, Mr. Burnett called in a detective, deputized him to take the case in hand. When questioned as to who his suspicions connected with the supposed crime, he unhesitatingly named a young lady living at the home of his parents. The young man asserts that the drug has been administered in his coffee from time to time; at first it caused him little inconvenience, but later it has taken more control of him, and he now fears it will finally kill him. He is of the opinion that the drug is a species of love powder given him to influence his affection. He says that the girl in question is in love with him, but that he does not reciprocate the affection.

HUNTING DOWN A MILLIONAIRE.—The following story is told by the San Francisco Chronicle of Meiggs, the great railway prince of Peru, who ran away in debt from San Francisco, some years ago Mrs. Josslyn is a washerwoman, and works very hard for a living. In the palmy days of Harry Meiggs, she deposited with him no less an amount than $2,500, and when Meiggs and her money were gone, the time in which a woman could lay up so large a sum from the profits of her business was gone also. But she washed on, and kept her head above water. Some two or three months ago she read in The Overland Monthly, or some other publication, how much money her old banker had made in South America by building railroads, and with a beautiful faith in human nature which cannot be too highly commended, she embarked upon the Panama steamer, and wended her way to the sunny south where Meiggs now holds sway. She sought the millionaire in the gorgeous residence so graphically described in The Overland, and presented her bank book and told her tale. Meiggs listened, and when she had finished he handed her a check for the amount of the deposit and interest from its date to the time of payment. She departed, a wealthier and a happier woman, and returned to San Francisco, where she arrived by the last steamer.

A NOVEL THEFT.—Last Sunday morning a passenger train on the Ohio and Mississippi railroad was detained at North Vernon, waiting for connections. While waiting the engineer left his engine for a moment. The fireman was in the cab asleep, and the engineer, who was standing on the platform some yards distant, was astonished to see his train move off suddenly, without a warning note from the bell or whistle, and in a few moments was tearing down the road at the top of its speed. A crazy man had observed the engineer when he left the engine, and quietly took his place at the throttle valve, and he opened her out wide and let her drive. The fireman, awakened by the motion of the train, saw at a glance the condition of affairs, and pounced upon the madman and secured him, and took the train back to North Vernon, where the lunatic was placed in jail. When questioned as to the cause of his strange conduct, the amateur engineer said he had wanted a locomotive for a long time, and he thought that was the best chance he would ever have. The train was crowded with people, and but for the presence of mind of the fireman, the consequences would have been frightful.—Louisville Ledger.

—A Pottsville (Penn.) hen has hatched two eagles. The eggs were found by a man in the woods, who supposed them to be turkey eggs, and placed them under his hen. The old hen was considerably suprised, for she spluttered about and trampled upon one of her rare progeny, and killed it. The other will probably grow up and do well.

—Girls, take warning from this: "A Nashville girl fell dead while setting up with her young man the other night." Don't "set up" with young men the "other night"—every other night is often enough.

—Kaiser Wm. continues his chronic thanksgiving.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Heavy oats are good for horses; none will deny that; but oats can't make a horse's coat look smooth and glossy when he is out of condition. Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders will do this when all else fails.

What is the European question to us? Let the crowned heads fight it out while we supply their armies with provisions.

An Unprotected System.

Do not fancy because you feel strong that you are impregnable to sickness. Whole neighborhoods are frequently prostrated at this season by malarious fevers. Vigorous muscles and strong sinews, broad shoulders and sound lungs, are no defence against the mephitic vapors of autumn. Frames which have withstood the summer heat may succumb now. Many an athletic man, whose family depends for its support on his industry, now lies prostrate, weak and helpless as a babe, under the periodical assaults of chills and fever, or bilious remittent fever. This could not be if all were wise enough to provide against such a contingency, by toning and fortifying the system with HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. This approved vegetable tonic is absolutely harmless, so that it is sheer folly not to take it as a safeguard at a season when disease of the liver, the stomach, the bowels, and indeed all the visceral organs are generally prevalent. To keep the system in order and insure health, or to put it in order when this precaution has been neglected, is the duty of every human being who values life. For both these purposes Hostetter's Bitters is designed, and it answers both. Petty local dealers are endeavoring, in many parts of the country, to substitute preparations made of impure and dangerous materials in its stead. Give them a wide berth. They are prepared by unskillful experimenters, who want to turn a penny at the expense of the public health.

Portsmouth, May 1, 1871.

A CARD.

HAVING disposed of my Insurance Business to JOSEPH P. MORSE and WINGATE N. THE REPUBLICANS of this city have engaged the room over the store of Mr. George Henderson on Daniel Street, and will enter at once on the coming campaign.

A LARGE CROWD assembled on Warren Street on Tuesday afternoon to witness the dying struggles of a horse which had been overdriven in a baker's cart, and then fed while too warm.

A GOOD APPOINTMENT.—Mr. William H. Warren of this city has been appointed Second Assistant Engineer in the Revenue service. He is a thorough mechanic and will make an able Engineer.

CHARLES MAIN, ESQ., has raised on his farm on Lafayette Road, from one seed South Carolina potato, 32 pounds of better looking and larger sweet potatoes than can be found on sale in this market.

THE FRIENDS of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Treat assembled at their residence on Mulberry Street, Tuesday evening, and tendered the newly wedded couple a serenade by the Marine Band. Then they further surprised them by the presentation of an elegant silver tea service. Of course Mr. T. responded and entertained his visitors in bounteous style.

THE LAURI PANTOMIME TROUPE will give one of their amusing performances at the Temple, this evening, and from the testimonials given them by the press of the large cities we are led to believe that the entertainment will be first-class. Genuine pantomimists are wont to pass by Portsmouth without staying, and we hope this company will be sufficiently encouraged by a large audience to warrant their return.

PORTSMOUTH, Oct. 2.

A Card.—We, officers and members of S. F. E. Co. No. 2, take this method to return to ISRAEL P. MILLER, ESQ., our heartfelt thanks for the splendid Chromo he presented to us this evening. We found a place for it on our wall, not hard work either for such a magnificent gift; and rest assured, Sir, we will never forget your kindness, hoping that the time may come when we can acknowledge it more substantially.

Yours, W. B. RANDALL, Foreman,
R. T. CALL, Clerk.

THE BEAUTIFUL CUT UNDER TOP BUGGY built by the Came Brothers, which took the first premium at the State Fair, was presented to Hon. Frank Jones by a subscription among his numerous friends of all parties and sects, who joined in procession, Tuesday evening, headed by the Cornet Band, left Market Square about 8 o'clock and marched to the residence of Mr. Jones, who was taken aback at such a demonstration, which was a complete surprise. The gift was duly received and the donors will not soon forget the hospitalities extended them.

DANCING has been a principal item in winter evening amusements in this city for several years past, and from the large number of spectators present at most of the balls and social assemblies we opine that many who do not know how to dance wish they did. For all such an opportunity is now offered to acquire the ability to get through the intricacies of the "mazy" or to glide gracefully around in the much-denounced but exceedingly pleasant and fascinating waltz, in the school of Mr. J. G. Antheine, advertised in another column. Mr. Antheine is a capable and painstaking instructor, and maintains strict decorum and attention to the business of the school, in his classes.

NEW PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

"Old and New," for October, opens with a sketch of the late Dr. Ezra Gannett. The next twenty pages of the number are taken up with the beginning of a new serial by Geo. MacDonald, entitled "The Vicar's Daughter." Julia Ward Howe continues her "Idyl of Mid-Summer and Middle Age," and Rev. Mr. Hale his "Ups and Downs." Robert Brothers, publishers, Boston.

Merry's Museum for October has a full account of an Excursion Party to the White Mountains.

The October number of The Radical contains essays on "Zoroaster and his Religion" by C. D. B. Mills, "Huxley on Berkely" by M. D. Conway, "The Christian Controversy" by N. R. Waters, and others subjects. The "Notes" are numerous and good.

—Gray hair was $35 an ounce at last quotations.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

In the Supreme Judicial Court at Nashua, on the 30th ult., Charles P. Wood of Manchester was found guilty of procuring an abortion on the person of Elvira Woodward of West Troy, Vt., and causing her death thereby.

The inhabitants of Contoocook and West Hopkinton, nine miles from Concord, are in a state of alarm over the appearance within their territory of a brown and white bear, whose tracks measure eight by five inches, and weight is estimated at 400 pounds. On Sunday nearly a hundred armed men, divided into small parties, were scouring the woods for Bruin, and it is now thought that they have got him within a tract of territory a mile in length by less than that in breadth.

COMING ELECTIONS.—Next Tuesday they commence in Texas a three days' election for members of Congress. On a week from Monday next, October 9th, the little State of Rhode Island votes on certain constitutional amendments. On Tuesday, the 10th, an election will be held in Iowa for State officers and member of the Legislature. On the same day Ohio elects her State officers and Legislature. Pennsylvania also holds her election for State officers and Legislature on the 10th.

RAND, MCNALLY & Co., of Chicago have issued a Railroad Guide containing much valuable matter. Its statistics are interesting and its railroad time tables are of especial value to travellers, East and West. Sent to any address on the receipt of 37 cts.

THE INDICTED JOURNALISTS who obtained the treaty of Washington, and refused to tell how, went scot-free by the quashing of the indictments.

Lady Thornhurst's Daughter.

THE FATHER'S RETURN.

The farm at Redruth Moor is one of the most fertile in Lincolnshire, perhaps in all England.

The house is a picturesque old stone dwelling, which has stood a couple of centuries.

At a little distance in the rear of the house are out-buildings, all indicative of the extreme thrift and prosperity of the owner of Redruth Moor.

That owner, twenty years ago, to-day, was miss Jacobea Redruth. She was and is possessed of first-class business abilities, active in her habits, keen, sharp-witted, and her own farm manager.

She was not a woman of social habits, nor particularly given to hospitality. There was a vein of parsimony in her nature, that made social gatherings at her expense a positive pain, but she had come of a fine old county family, and her ancient name and excellent lineage procured her friendly recognition and formal visits from the various county magnates. These visits were as formally returned at stated periods, and but for their small break in the even course of her existence, Miss Redruth would have led the life of a recluse.

Late one afternoon in May, nearly twenty years ago, Miss Redruth was seated in her drawing-room, after her usual afternoon custom. Her chair was drawn up before an open bow-window, and she was looking out into the depths of an apple orchard, which was covered with bloom, with a strangely intent gaze. One might have supposed her engaged in abstruse calculations as to the probable yield of the fruit-trees, but a second glance at her deeply contracted brows and troubled face would have testified that her thoughts had a deeper and more unquiet source.

She was a gaunt, grim woman of middle age and of masculine appearance. She had a hard face and hard nature. She had no tender womanly ways, no gentle womanly sympathies, no sentimentality, as she loved to say, no fondness for womanly employments.

Redruth Moor was not an entailed estate, and Miss Redruth had inherited it from her father. The representative of the proud old family was old Col. Redruth, her brother, an army officer, who had spent most of his life in India, and whose arrival she was now momentarily expecting at her home, after an absence from his native land for many years. There was more of dread than of joyous anticipation in the manner of Miss Redruth, as the moment of the Colonel's appearance drew near.

"What can I say to him?" she muttered uneasily. "What will he say to me when he knows all! I wish the meeting was over. Ah, there he comes."

The carriage she had sent to Sleaford to meet her brother was in fact at that moment seen turning at a swift pace along the dusty road. It turned in at the wide farm gates, and came up the carriage sweep toward the porch. Miss Redruth arose after a mechanical fashion from her chair and went slowly out into the wide hall, advancing to the threshold to meet her relative.

The open carriage came nearer. Upon the back seat sat a gentleman whose face flushed at sight of her, and who took off his hat as a sudden rush of emotion swept over his soul. The carriage drew up at the porch, and the gentleman sprang lightly out and ran up the steps.

"Jacob! My dear sister!" he cried, in deep, agitated tones, embracing her. "You have not changed, at least, in the nine years since we parted!"

Miss Redruth submitted to the embrace, and presented her right cheek to her brother's caress, but she did not offer to kiss him. She was superior to such small weaknesses.

"I am glad to see you back in England, George," she exclaimed quietly. "You have changed, I think; but then your life has not been so quiet as mine."

She withdrew herself from his arm, and led him into the low, quaint, pleasant drawing-room.

The Colonel halted just within the threshold, and looked about the room with an eager, expectant gaze.

He was a handsome, distinguished looking man, of some fifty years, with a complexion deeply bronzed by Indian suns, with keen dark eyes, a grand head, and black hair already streaked with gray. He wore iron-gray military whiskers, and his massive eye-brows were of iron-gray also, giving to his noble countenance a look of sternness and command that well became him.

"Where is Ignatia?" he asked, his face suddenly clouding with disappointment. "Why is not my child here to welcome her father? She—she is not ill?"

"No, George," answered Miss Redruth, with embarrassment. "She does not know that you are expected to-day. I thought it best not to tell her, and—and I sent her out in her little pony chaise for a drive."

"Intending to let her find me here on her return?" said the Colonel, his brow clearing. "You meant to surprise her! Will she be back soon?"

"Sit down, George," said Miss Redruth, with perceptible uneasiness. "I have something to tell you before Ignatia comes. Did—did you hear anything over at Sleaford? Did you meet any one you used to know?"

"I did not," said the Colonel wonderingly, seating himself at a window commanding a view of the road. "Was there anything for me to hear?" he added, with a sudden change of countenance. "The child has not grown deformed, nor had the smallpox; nor—"

"How old do you think the 'child' is?" demanded Miss Redruth grimly. "You left her a little girl, and she seems but a little girl to you still. But she is twenty years old, a woman grown—"

"Ah yes," sighed the Colonel. "She has left behind her her childhood, but she will be something dearer and nearer to me than simply a child. She will be my companion, my friend. She will console me in part for the loss of her mother. Does she fulfill her childish promise of beauty and grace?"

"She does," said Miss Redruth, setting her lips firmly together.

"I know that she is good," said the Indian soldier, with tender emphasis. "I remember well her loving sensitive nature, her winning ways, her bright, impetuous spirit. She had a noble intellect—you do not mean, Jacob, that she is not so clear-headed as she was?" he added, in sudden alarm.

"No, she knows enough," was the reluctant reply.

"Ah!" said the Colonel, trying to smile. "She has a lover then? That is to be expected at her age."

"You should have come home sooner, George," said Miss Redruth. "People who have children should stay with them and take care of them."

"I could not well come home earlier, Jacob," said the Colonel. "My daughter is an heiress, and as such must take place in society. If she has an unworthy lover, I will undertake to wean her heart from him. Surely she cannot resist her father's loving counsels."

"It is too late for counsels," said Miss Redruth, with a sort of grim desperation. "Ignatia Redruth is beyond the reach of advice. You need not blame me, George. Ignatia herself will clear my skirts of blame. It is not my fault if she has wrecked your hopes, and made herself a bed of living coals to lie on."

The Colonel's face grew suddenly pale. The grizzled moustache on his upper lip trembled perceptibly.

"What has she done?" he asked, in a hoarse whisper.

"Married a dissolute fellow—"

"Married! Good Heavens!"

"It is so, George," said Miss Redruth. "She has been married nearly four years."

"Four years! And you never told me! She never wrote that she was married. Four years!"

"Yes. Let me tell you how it happened. About four years ago, a regiment was stationed within twenty miles of us, and its officers were to be met at all the best houses in this part of the county. Ignatia was but a school-girl, under a governess, to whom I left the direction of her pursuits and movements. Ignatia had a number of school-friends, whom she was often allowed to visit. At the house of one of these friends she met Captain Digby Holm. He was handsome, after the style girls like, I suppose, and became the rage, as the phrase is. He comes of a good family, but is dissolute. His own father has disowned him. He is thoroughly bad, but has a specious appearance. He fell in love with Ignatia and she with him, and one day the precious pair came into this very room and asked my consent to their marriage."

"Well!" said the Colonel, his face ghastly white, his voice trembling.

"Of course I refused my consent," said Miss Redruth. "I sent Ignatia to her schoolroom, and after lectoring Capt. Holm dismissed him from the house. I thought that was the end of the matter, but it was not. The upshot of the matter was, that Capt. Holm and my my neice were married quietly without my knowledge, by special license, at Sleaford, to which place Ignatia and her governess had gone in the pony chaise, on pretence of wishing to match Berlin wool, but really to meet the fellow."

"But how could he procure a license to marry a child of sixteen, without the consent of her relatives?"

"Captain Holm is not punctilious about speaking truth," said Miss Redruth bitterly.

"He may have declared Ignatia to be of age. At any rate he returned in the chaise with the girl and her governess, and announced himself to me as Ignatia's husband. I did not know what to do. I dared not write to you."

"And this precious son-in-law of mine—is he in the house?" demanded the Colonel sternly, with lowering brows.

"No; he lived here with Ignatia for a year or more, for I would not let my niece go from under my roof. He sold out his commission, and the child has not seen him in three years. I believe he is living abroad the Continent. When he knew her, my niece was but a callow, unformed child. She is now very beautiful, but that, of course, he does not know. Neither does he know that she is now an heiress."

The Colonel arose and paced the floor with quick agitated steps.

"Don't reproach me, George," said Miss Redruth. "Have I not suffered? How could I have done differently?"

"Tied to such a scoundrel, who had not even the virtue of faithfulness—"

"She need not be tied to him, George," interposed Miss Redruth eagerly. "I consulted Mr. Ainsley, my lawyer, you know. He says that it will be easy to procure a divorce for Ignatia."

"Why should not the marriage be set aside as illegal? demanded the Colonel.

Miss Redruth colored.

"Because—because—" she stammered. "You see, George, the Holms are rich. Only two lives stand between Captain Holm and a great estate—"

"And you want me—a Redruth, and a rich man—to claim alimony for my daughter?" cried the Colonel in a stern ringing voice. "For shame, Jacobea. You would not have trade on her wrongs! You would not have her accept money from this scoundrel?"

"No, no. Hear me," exclaimed Miss Redruth. "I would not have the marriage declared illegal, simply because there is another person to be considered who has not yet been mentioned."

"And who may this person be?"

"Ignatia's child."

"Her child—Ignatia's child? Great Heaven! Am I dreaming."

"No, I wish you were," said Miss Redruth. "There is a child of three years, a girl. For her sake, as you must see yourself, the legality of the marriage must not be questioned."

The Colonel did not answer. He strode back and forth with bowed head and gathered brows, and Miss Redruth dared not question him, nor even attempt to soothe him.

"I don't think Ignatia so entirely to blame," she ventured to say, after a little.

The Colonel gave no sign that he heard the observation

"This is a turning-point in her life," said Miss Redruth, after another uneasy silence. "I hope you don't intend to cast her off, George."

Still no answer from the Colonel.

Miss Redruth turned from the contemplation of his face to the open window, her firm, hard mouth growing firmer and harder, as she compressed it closely. Neither spoke again until a little basket chase, drawn by a stout, shaggy pony came leisurely along the highway and turned into the open farm gates, and Miss Redruth then exclaimed:

'Ignatia is come. How will you recieve her?

The Colonel answered in a hoarse voice, without looking up:

"Send her to me. Stay—you need not tell her I am here. Let her come in here. And let us meet alone, Jacob."

Miss Redruth arose and withdrew, the look of apprehension deepening in her face.

IGNATIA.

The little basket chase drew up before the porch of the stone house, and the young lady who held the reins tossed them to a stable lad who was at hand, and alighted, helping out a little child. The two ran lightly up the steps.

The hall was deserted when the pair entered it.

"Where's Aunty Jacob?" cried the young mother, in a gay, sweet voice. 'Her chair is empty. Shall we find her?"

She moved lightly across the floor, and then her eyes suddenly resting upon the grand figure and stern face of the soldier, she came to an abrupt halt. A cry of terror and horror, strangely mingled, came from her white lips. Her face blanched; her limbs trembled; she panted for breath.

The father and daughter stood face to face after a separation of nine long years!

The Colonel scarcely recognized the callow, romping little creature he had left, in this magnificent woman. Her tall and slender figure was instinct with a stately grace. Her every movement indicated refinement and thorough breeding.

The Colonel did not move toward her, nor did the sterness of his countenance relax.

His daughter took a step toward him, a cruel agitation convulsing her frame. Her arms dropped, and her hands were clasped together. It seemed as if she would have knelt before him.

"Father! O father!" she cried, in an anguished appeal. "Father, speak to me!"

That pleading cry went to the Colonel's soul. He forgot his daughter's error, remembering that she was his child—his only child. His heart melted within him. He silently opened his arms, and with a gasping cry, Ignatia sprang forward and was folded to his breast.

For a little while there was silence between them, broken only by the girl's sobs and the soft caresses the Colonel showered upon her head and face. Then he drew her to the sofa, still enfolding her in his arms.

"Father," whispered Ignatia brokenly, 'do you know? Has Aunt Jacob told you—"

"I know all, my daughter," answered the Colonel gently.

"And you forgive me? You will not cease to love me?"

The father answered only by a soft caress. Her terror and anguish aroused his tenderness and pity, and he had never in all her life loved her with such a yearning love as he felt for her at this moment when she lay trembling against his breast.

"Aunt Jacob has told me of your marriage, Ignatia," he said. "I will not upbraid you for keeping the matter a secret from me all these years. How long is it since you saw Capt. Holm?"

"It is nearly three years, father," was the low reply. "I have not seen him since the child was three months old."

"Do you love him still?" asked the Colonel.

"Oh, no, no!" she murmered. 'I would rather die than live with him as his wife!"

"And this child is yours and his?"

'Yes, father; but she is not like him in character."

The Colonel looked at the little creature. She was scarcely three years, and it was easy to see that she had inherited no taint of her profligate father's nature.

'What is your name, little one!' asked the Colonel.

'Georgia Redruth,' was the prompt answer.

The Colonel held ont one hand with a smile to the child. When he had thrond his tiny nameake upon his knee, his daughter knew that she was forgiven.

She presently raised her head from its resting-place, and told him her story. It differed little from the narative Miss Redruth had already given her brother. It seemed indeed, to the father, as he heard her, that the girl had been 'more sinned against than sinning.'

"Do you forgive me, father?" she asked, 'that Captain Holm knows now that you are an heiress?

'I am sure he does not,' answered the deserted young wife. 'If he had known it, he would have returned to me. He never dreamed that you were the next heir to poor Uncle Ralph.'

"You parted in a quarrel?"

"Yes father; but it was not a sudden outbreak. He came home one day from the town where his regiment was stationed in a terrible humor. We found afterward that every officer in his regiment had cut him, 'for conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman.' He was obliged to sell out his commission as soon as possible after that.

He was full of rage, which he vented on me. He charged himself for falling in love with me, when he might have won an heiress.

At last he took his effects and mounted his horse, and rode toward Sleaford at a furious pace. I have never seen him since. I do not know whether he is living or dead."

"Your young life shall not be blighted by this scoundrel!", cried the Colonel. "The law shall free you from any claims he may choose to make upon you when he discovers that his deserted wife is really an heiress. My first movement shall be to procure you a release from the villian.

"And until you have obtained a divorce from him, we will not go to Redruth."

"Will they let me keep my child?" asked Ignatia.

"Of course, dear."

"Dear father!" she said softly. My whole life shall try to show my love and gratitude to you."

Before the Colonel could reply, Miss Redruth stalked into the room, unmistakably anxious.

A single glance set her mind at rest. The Colonel held his grandchild on his knee, and Ignatia was looking up at him with grateful eyes.

"All is forgiven and forgotten," said the Colonel cheerfully. "Ignatia and the child will start for London with me by the morning train.

"I will not take her to Redruth while that scoundrel has the shadow of a claim upon her."

The evening was passed pleasantly and without restraint. No further allusion was made to Capt. Holm, and Col. Redruth told stories of his Indian life, charming his hearers into forgetfulness of Ignatia's profligate husband.

At about two o'clock the next day, Col. Redruth, Ignatia and the little Georgia took their leave of Miss Redruth, and drove away from the Moore.

They were obliged to wait nearly an hour for the mail down train.

The gray dusk was falling when they steamed into the station at Huntingdon. A porter entered and lighted the ceiling lamp, and went out again.

Suddenly two young men came sauntering along the platform.

One approached the door of the coach occupied by Col. Redruth's family, and looked in. A guard came forward and addressed the young men, and ushered them into the very carriage occupied by the returned soldier.

Ignatia hurriedly drew her veil over her face, and sank back upon her seat trembling and panic-stricken. Col. Redruth noticed that she seemed to cower in the shadows of her corner.

The next instant the train was once more on its swift way to the southward.

Col. Redruth looked at the intruders closely. One of them was an ordinary looking young man in military uniform, with a long face and pompous manners. The Colonel did not bestow upon him a second glance.

His companion was slender, tall and graceful, and with a dashing, spirited air. His manner was a strange compound of grace, insolence and gentlemanliness. He was of florid complexion, his forehead high, his eyes of a blueish gray, and possessed of a strange power of attraction and fascination. His eyes reminded the Colonel, oddly enough, of the eyes of an Indian serpent.

"That man looks like an angel!" thought the Colonel. "And I believe he is at heart a devil!"

He withdrew his gaze slowly. At the same instant Ignatia breathed into his ear:

"That is he—my husband!"

BUCHU

(From Dispensatory of the United States.)

DIOSMA CRENATA — BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.—Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections and Dropsy.

In affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is used by persons from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 35 to 55, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-Wetting in children.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucus or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Disease, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is Diuretic and Blood-Purifying, and cures all diseases arising from habits of dissipation, excesses and imprudences in life, impurities of the Blood, etc., superceding Copaiba in affections for which it is used in connection with

HELMBOLD'S ROSE WASH.

Beware of counterfeits. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.

The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and then into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ is tired, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the lacteals are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup nourishes the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is a new order of things, a good appetite, a good nutrition, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, and if a person is very bad, if the lungs are not entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up, there is hope.

I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's Medicines will do for Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.

It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep in-doors in cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason. A man who has but partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is far more liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and it is precisely the same in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is the imminent danger of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not genial and pleasant. Confirmed consumptives' lungs are a mass of sores, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The grand secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to subdue inflammation instead of provoking it, as many of the faculty do. The patient should be carefully shielded from all irritating influence. The utmost caution should be observed in this particular, as without it a cure is under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutricious diet, and all the medicines continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.

I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty these many years, with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment whom I have never seen.

About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building on the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

AGENTS WANTED FOR

ROMANISM AS IT IS. This Book, an elegant Octavo Volume, containing 750 pages, and 100 first-class engravings, is an exhaustive and Standard work, eminently adapted to the times. It fully uncovers the Roman system from its origin to the present time, exposes its baseless pretenses, its frauds, its persecutions, its gross immoralities, its opposition to our public schools, and civil and religious liberty; it shows the insidious workings which strongly tend to bring this country under full Romish control. Prospectus and Books ready on application. CONN. PUBLISHING CO., Hartford, Conn. 4ws5

THE

NOVELTY CLOTHES WRINGER.

Nothing, except the Sewing Machine, has ever been invented which so much relieves the labor of the household as the Wringer. But its usefulness does not end here. The saving of clothing is of much greater importance. It is often remarked that articles of fine texture, last twice as long when wring in a Wringer as when wrung by hand. The NOVELTY has Cog-wheels on both ends. * * The rolls are allowed to separate at either end. These, besides other advantages which it contains, seem to be indispensable to a practical wringer.—New York Independent.

The Novelty Wringer has become an indispensable institution in thousands of families. And we believe its great and increasing popularity is fully merited—for the Novelty evidently possesses all the requisites of a first-class, practical machine. Indeed, after using one for many months in our own family, we are prepared to indorse this Novelty as unsurpassed (the laundress says unequalled,) by any of the several wringers previously tried.—Moore's Rural New Yorker.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1871.

CONNECTICUT TOWN ELECTIONS.—Town elections were held in some of the Connecticut towns on Monday. In Hartford, Allyn S. Stillman, republican, for first selectman, was elected by a majority of 864; Levi Woodhouse, democrat, was elected town clerk by a majority of 191, and John Franey, democrat, for collector, by a majority of 21. The democrats also elect one in the board of selectmen and one grand juror. The balance of the republican ticket is elected by from 300 to 400 majority. In Meriden the republicans elect their ticket by over 300 majority; New Britian, Wethersfield, Vernon and West Hartford are also republican. The republicans achieved a big victory in New Haven, carrying every ward but the third and fifth, gaining 3 alderman and 7 councilmen. The republicans will now have 10 and the democrats 4 in the board of alderman, and in the council 20 republicans to 8 democrats. The democrats elect town and city clerks.

TAMMANY.—The war of the Press and the tax-payers of New York on the former idol and ruler of the Democratic party, the Tammany Ring, is kept up with spirit and persistence, while the "Boss" and his army of thieves make a desperate defensive fight. The Advertiser's New York despatch says that there is considerable sympathy for Oakey Hall, as he is not charged with appropriating public funds in any way, but simply with signing warrants which Tweed, Connolly and Sweeney have approved. Hall is not charged with making money, while all the other members of the ring have laid aside enormous fortunes. Deputy-Controller Green is making a careful revision of the pay-rolls at the city hall and the court-house, and cutting off all sinecures. There were a large number of pugilists, liquor-sellers, negro minstrels and relatives of various officials, all drawing salaries but doing nothing. Two negro minstrels received each one hundred dollars monthly for making jokes ridiculing republicans. The Times continues its list of city expenses. Among the names are many fictitious persons, some of them being those of men long since dead. One of the names on the pay-roll of Tweed's department is that of Morgan Doheny, son of the Irish patriot, who has been dead a year. Clerks in the finance department, besides receiving salaries, draw a heavy percentage for collecting the arrears of assessments. H. Starkweather, father-in-law of Governor Hoffman, as collector of assessments, receives 2 1-2 per cent. on all collections, amounting to about twenty thousand dollars per month; others are of a smaller but similar nature. Legal proceedings have been taken against Ingersoll and others; Garvey, reported to have fled to Europe, is said to be sick at his house in New York.

POLITICAL.

Returns from 114 towns in Connecticut show that the republicans on Monday carried 65, the democrats 37, and in 16 mixed tickets were elected.

The Boston Advertiser's Washington despatch says the exodus of clerks to Ohio and Pennsylvania for the elections is smaller than usual, caused by the feeling that there is not much doubt of the result. Leave of absence in such cases is for ten days.

The Massachusetts Labor Reformers say Gen. Butler is politically dead. That don't make any difference,—he has been killed more than a dozen times, but won't stay dead. We expect to see him make things lively in the future as he has in the past, if he is dead.

PLAIN LANGUAGE.—Judge Barnard, who has always until very recently been regarded as one of the most subservient tools of the Tammany Ring, and whose services in running a high-pressure naturalization mill a year or two ago won him the enthusiastic plaudits of the Democracy, delivered a "red-hot" charge to the grand jury on the 3d, in which he said he was determined to have a fair election this fall, that the laws must be maintained, that there must be no more false counting, and that he would visit the full penalty of the law against every individual engaged in tampering with voters, false voting and false counting. As an evidence of his determination to protect the ballot-box and have an honest exercise of the elective franchise, he announced his intention to sit as a police magistrate on and after election day, in which capacity he will issue bench warrants against offending parties. This done, it will be the duty of the grand jury to indict them when the trial of the parties will be proceeded with at once before him in Oyer and Terminer. He closed the charge by saying:—

Men are holding office in the city of New York, not appointed by any particular man now in office, who have been there for years and years, appointed by republicans in power or democrats in power, who never pretend to come near the city hall except to get their pay, and some of them don't even live in the city. My observation justifies me in saying that nearly all the fast horses and fast woman in the city of New York are supported out of the city treasury, and for the purpose of stopping that I simply call your attention to it, so that some of these men holding sinecure offices may go to work and earn an honest living, if they can, or else take, in their case at least, to their more legitimate employment—highway robbery, so that we can send them to the gallows or State's prison.

If this sort of thing is allowed to go on, criminals may yet become as unsafe and crime as unprotected in New York city as in some of the worst-governed Republican ones.

THE GRAND DUKE'S RECEPTION.—The fleet which will do the naval honors to the Russian Prince Alexis and the squadron which will accompany him will consist of the Congress, Severn, Iroquois and Kansas, and a number of city boats, under command of Vice-Admiral Rowan, who will hoist his flag on the Congress, and will be aided by Rear Admiral Lee on his flag-ship, the Severn. Orders have been issued by Secretary Robeson for the rendezvous of these ships in New York harbor by the 10th instant, whence they will proceed to the lower bay and await the signalling of the Russian fleet, when they will proceed to sea to welcome them and escort them to the battery. The honors of the navy are tendered to the Russian fleet, as the prince comes as a subordinate officer on the flag-ship of Admiral Poisset. He will immediately upon landing proceed to Washington to pay his respects to the President and will then return to New York. There will afterwards be a series of festivities aboard the naval vessels in the harbor.

THE CONVENTIONS of the Labor Reform and Prohibitory parties in Massachusetts met on Wednesday, the former in Framingham and the latter in Tremont Temple, Boston. Hon. Whiting Griswold was chosen President of the Prohibitory Convention, and Wendell Phillips of the Labor Reform. In the former they had a lively time over the Woman's Suffrage Memorial, Rev. Dr. Fulton stoutly objecting to its being received, though it finally was received and referred to the proper committee. The Prohibitionists finally decided to elect Robert C. Pitman as Governor, and Eliphalet Trask as Lieut.-Governor of Massachusetts. One delegate strongly pushed Butler for a candidate, "as the most liable to defeat the Republican party. That's what we want and if it means a Democratic success this year, so much the better." We don't know who the Labor Reformers decided to elect, and it won't make a great deal of difference, anyway.

PERSIA is still suffering from famine and pestilence. During July 8000 persons perished in the city of Meschid, and 40,000 persons of the province had been carried into slavery by the Afghans, who had taken advantage of the general disorganization to make incursions for plunder. The bakers demanded such exorbitant prices for bread that the authorities had intervened, and a number of the extortioners had been executed. The country is disturbed by frequent insurrections. The pestilence still rages, and its horrors are increased by destructive inundations. Yet, notwithstanding the fearful situation of the country and people, the Persian government has refused to avail itself of the aid profferd by the governments of Great Britain and Russia.

UTAH.—The supreme court of Utah has just reaffirmed a decision giving $50,000 damages for liquor destroyed by order of a Mormon alderman, who usurped the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace. Brigham Young was arrested on Monday, Oct. 2, for adultery, but being too ill to appear in court remained in his house under guard. The mayor of Salt Lake has been arrested on a similar charge and held in $5000 bonds. Chief-Justice McKean refused bail for Brigham Young until he should appear in court. Troops have been constantly arriving, and there are now 5000 soldiers in Camp Douglas.

SCHOONER HURD was wrecked near Maritan Island, Lake Ontario, in the gale on Thursday last, while on her way from Chicago to Collingwood, Ontario. All hands were lost except the captain, who was washed ashore.

HON. FOSTER BRADFORD, in an address in London on Monday, advocate compulsory education for England.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

Wakefield turns out nearly twenty million feet of lumber in a year, and on in a year, and on some days the freighting of it amounts to $1000. Eight manufacturers and dealers devote themselves to the business.

The Female Seminary and college at Tilton has opened with a large attendance.

The small pox has broken out in Bow. The first case is that of a man who carried the French woman, sick with that disease from Lowell into Suncook, where she has since died.

THREE MURDERS are reported from Tennessee. Two esteemed citizens of Athens county, father and son, were murdered by two others, also father and son, Sept. 30, the murderers escaping. At Jackson, Sunday afternoon, a peaceable individual who was going to fight a duel with another, got drunk and tried to shoot a third person. Third person remonstrated with a double-barrelled shot gun, causing a vacancy in the peaceable individual's family and wounding a passenger in a passing omnibus. Plenty of fun in Jackson.

THE KU-KLUX TRIALS at Raleigh, N. C., continue. Judge Bond positively refuses to continue the cases to another term under any arrangement. Nine Ku-Klux pleaded guilty on Monday, Oct. 2d. Who believes the Radical lies about the existence of Ku-Klux in the low-abiding South?

CALEB CUSHING has accepted the position of counsel for the United States at the Geneva conference.

THE EASTERN RAILROAD has just ordered seventy-five freight cars of Thomas Lombard at Gardiner, Maine.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Cramps and pains in the stomach are the result of imperfect indigestion, and may be immediately relieved by a dose of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. A tea-spoonful in a little sweetened water is a dose.

Heavy oats are good for horses; none will deny that; but oats can't make a horse's coat look smooth and glossy when he is out of condition. Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders will do this when all else fails.

An Unprotected System.

Do not fancy because you feel strong that you are impregnable to sickness. Whole neighborhoods are frequently prostrated at this season by malarious fevers. Vigorous muscles and strong sinews, broad shoulders and sound lungs, are no defence against the mephitic vapors of autumn. Frames which have withstood the summer heat may succumb now. Many an athletic man, whose family depends for its support on his industry, now lies prostrate, weak and helpless as a babe, under the periodical assaults of chills and fever, or bilious remittent fever. This could not be if all were wise enough to provide against such a contingency, by toning and fortifying the system with HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. This approved vegetable tonic is absolutely harmless, so that it is sheer folly not to take it as a safeguard at a season when diseases of the liver, the stomach, the bowels, and indeed all the visceral organs are generally prevalent. To keep the system in order and insure health, or to put it in order when this precaution has been neglected, is the duty of every human being who values life. For both these purposes Hostetter's Bitters is designed, and it answers both. Petty local dealers are endeavoring, in many parts of the country, to substitute preparations made of impure and dangerous materials in its stead. Give them a wide berth. They are prepared by unskilful experimenters, who want to turn a penny at the expense of the public health.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.

BANKING OFFICE OF

FISK & HATCH,

No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.

September 25th, 1871.

Of the FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $4,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.

The five years' option having expired on all series of FIVE-TWENTY BONDS, except 1867s and 1868s, they are liable to be called in for payment. The redemption of 100 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchases by the Government during the ensuing four months, with the premium thereon, will release about 150 millions of invested capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek reinvestment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sixes

have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought

17 per cent. less than Ten-forties,
20 per cent. less than Five-twenties,
25 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,

and are equally sure of the principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price (at present) 90 and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1.

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $954.16.

$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $477.08.

$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $95.42.

Only a small amount of the latter denominations remains, and no more can be made. Bonds are in coupon or register form, sale as Five-twenties.

This debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company in order more speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work—the most important internal improvement now progressing in the country—is rapidly approaching completion. It will establish another and superior line of communication between the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the Eastern States, and nearer to the political and commercial capitals of their country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line that the larger cities of the West are projecting feeders to connect with it, so as to avail themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are now open to the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of reliable navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad carriage.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC SIX PER CENT. BONDS are as safe for investment as Government Bonds. Their amount fixed by act of Congress at $35,000,000, is secured by property worth four times their value; they can only be bought in the open market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they have a ready sale in all the all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are steadily increasing, and will probably reach $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a handsome surplus after payment of expenses and interest. Present price, 101 to the open market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they have a ready sale in all the all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are steadily increasing, and will probably reach $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a handsome surplus after payment of expenses and interest. Present price, 101 to the open

When the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, in 1872, and the Bonds are dealt in at the Stock Exchange along the country, we have no doubt they will be equally popular with the Central Pacifics. Both principal and interest of the CENTRAL PACIFIC and CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS, are specifically payable in gold coin in New York; the interest on the former being paid January and July, and of the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.

We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, EIGHTY-ONES, and CENTRAL or WESTERN PACIFICS, or receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be forwarded by any responsible Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid.

P. S.—Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, on which we allow Four Per Cent. interest.

The P. & D. Railroad Again.

Some thirty years or so ago a large amount of business was done here with the interior, by about twenty houses, in the distribution of groceries and dry goods, crockery, hardware, &c.; about that time the Eastern Railroad was projected, and the merchants foresaw their trade was doomed; soon after it was built the wholesale trade declined, and steadily continued to decline until the last feeble vestige of it went out simultaneously with the opening of our last line of railroad, the Great Falls & Conway. To stay this decline and with a great effort, the Concord Road was built,—built by men who were willing by their own money to give evidence of the sincerity of their belief of its benefit to the city, and themselves; we all know the result was ruinous to its projectors and stockholders, and the decline of the trade was in no degree interrupted. The money lost in that road would have, had it been safely invested, amounted to millions, and for the loss of which the merely transit business of the road very poorly compensates this city. Who ever sees a hogshead of sugar, chest of tea, box of dry goods or crate of crockery shipped from any of our merchants over either of our four railroads? Does a bale of cotton ever come here to be shipped to Manchester, to South Berwick or Great Falls? Yet with each of these we have direct rail communication. Ah! but the P. & D. Road (say its grantees) is a horse of another color; build it and presto! all your past trade will be recovered and the Cocheco Company will send thousands of tons of freight over it,—its projectors however, with a keen sense of their own pecuniary interests and with the peculiar disinterestedness which they so loudly proclaim, are determined to force its construction upon the community who are protesting by hundreds against it. At the worst, say they, "its construction will only double the taxes for two years," and its President says "he don't expect it will begin to pay the interest on its cost for less than four years."

Let us look at it for a moment; the best informed on such subjects among us say, its first cost, for our share won't be under $500,000. It will take two years to build it, and four years after, its president says, it will begin to pay; that will have made its cost to us, then, $700,000; its whole cost on this basis, over a million and a quarter of dollars; and the interest on this will be $75,000. And supposing for the argument's sake (bearing always in mind that we don't begin to admit it) that the road will then earn enough from its freight to pay its expenses and keep it in repair, it will require 250,000 passengers at the usual rate of fare to pay the interest! Will the most sanguine believer in the road say he expects a quarter of this number to pass over it? If our statements can be controverted will the friends of the road oblige us by showing wherein they are unsound? But supposing the road to be built, we shall then be told that to get any benefit from our great outlay, we must again put our shoulders to the wheel and "aid" to build the Lake Shore Road; that's the programme. Another quarter of a million or so will be demanded for that; to be sure we have the assurance of a friend, living somewhere up country, of one alderman director, which was gravely read by him at the last meeting of the board of aldermen and gravely used by him as argument for running us in debt, that "if we would build the P. & D. Road, they would build the Lake Shore." And this stuff was gravely urged to force upon us the building of this road, with the consequent result of inextricable debt. We admit, however, the consistency of the friends of the road, or rather of its self constituted managers; this argument is to the full as tangible as anything they have vouchsafed us, and should have equal weight; but supposing both these roads to be built, what then? What have we to sell to give it business? Please answer, can we import one single article to undersell Boston? Will the Cocheco Company we hear so much of, be any more likely to send its raw cotton or its goods over this road than the Manchester and other companies? The Boston interest controls them all and it is idle to suppose they would take any business from roads which they also own and control; thus, if we except a little beer, we don't see what we have or can have to ship from here. With the increased depth of water in the Dover river coal vessels can go directly to the wharves; please give us your estimates and data for freight up the road,—no doubt you have, Messrs. Grantees, thoroughly canvassed the ground and we are open to conviction.

Now let us see what in our view is to be brought here by it. By the necessity of making a connection with the West it is evident its friends expect a large flow of western produce to this place; is it to come here for shipment abroad? what facilities have we or can we by any probability get to give a color of probability to this? It can't be brought here for distribution, for the sufficient reason that it can be left along the line of the road cheaper than we can get it, and the state is now so gridironed with rails that every little town is in direct communication with the large grain centres, and gets its supplies through numberless runners direct from headquarters. The road will bring us just so much produce as we need for our local use, as it can bring cheaper than we can get it elsewhere, and no more; and it is to be hoped if we are to be taxed to build this road, that we shall be able to buy at home as cheaply as we can get our supplies from Boston or Portland. Again we say we are open to conviction, and ask for light if the gentlemen have it.

Great stress is laid upon our being 40 miles nearer the West than Boston or Portland. Were this a new question, other things being equal, and no railroad in existence, this would no doubt count largely in our favor; but we must take things as they are; it is always a herculean task to divert trade from its accustomed channels, and in our case it appears to us sheer madness to attempt it. The project before the Aldermen is wrong in its inception; there is none of that "unanimity" which our Alderman director says is indispensable before city "aid" is given; the feeling which is being engendered by the unwarrantable and unprecedented action of the grantees, is doing a vast injury to the harmony and best interests of the city. It is a great fallacy to suppose that a community is benefitted by enterprises which are not self-supporting,—individuals may be, but the public never. W.

Presentation.

There was a large gathering of Odd Fellows at their Hall on Wednesday evening, the occasion being the presentation of a splendid Regalia and jewel to Bro. Joseph H. Gardiner, P. G. M. of the Grand Lodge of New Hampshire, and R. W. Grand Representative to the Grand Lodge of the United States, by New Hampshire Lodge, No. 17, I. O. O. F. Bro. Moses H. Tilton, on behalf of the Lodge, made the presentation, with an address as follows:

Brother Joseph H. Gardiner:

I greet you as Past Grand Master of the R. W. G. Lodge, I. O. O. F., of the State of New Hampshire,—and as R. W. Grand Representative to the R. W. Grand Lodge of the U. S. of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. Most honored Brother, the officers and members of New Hampshire Lodge, have enjoined upon me the most pleasant duty of expressing to you, in their behalf, their hearty approval of the manner in which you have discharged the duties appertaining to those exalted offices you have so ably filled. Knowing full well that words do not add strength, and often are but complimentary and unmeaning, those in whose name I speak have confirmed their sincerity by their acts; and by the authority and in behalf of New Hampshire Lodge, No. 17, I. O. O. F., I present to you this Regalia; its fashion and colors, you will observe, bespeak your rank. In the name and in behalf of the same authority, I also present to you this Jewel; it is also emblematic of your rank.

Take these gifts; take them—not for their intrinsic value, but as tokens of love and affection gratefully bestowed on a meriting brother. Take them—wear them, and while you wear them, may you ever remember that while your Lodge feels itself honored and is proud to be thus able to confer tokens of honor upon you, yet it is done in the full belief that by ever increasing merit you will be continually adding to them lustre far more brilliant, and thus honor them rather than be honored by them.

The Carriage.

Presented to Hon. Frank Jones by his friends, Tuesday evening, was an exhibition in front of the Post Office on Wednesday evening, and attracted a great deal of attention. It is a splendid piece of workmanship, and Came Bros. deserve all the praise they have received for it; and the fact that only a few hours were needed in which to raise the purchase money, no man being allowed to subscribe more than $10, is a proof of popularity among our citizens of all parties and professions of which Mr. Jones may well feel proud.

Didn't Come.

The Lauri Pantomime Troupe, advertised to appear here Wednesday evening, and from whom (judging from notices by the Press in other cities) we expected a first-class entertainment, failed to put in appearance in consequence of an accident.—what, we have not learned.

Personal.

Gov. Weston and suite, accompanied by Hon. Daniel Marcy, on Wednesday made a brief visit to the Navy Yard, where they were courteously received and entertained by Commodore A. M. Pennock. The customary salute of fifteen guns was unavoidably omitted, in consequence of their visit being entirely unexpected to the officers of the Yard. On returning to this city, the distinguished visitors, with Ex.-Gov. Goodwin, Hon. Richard Jenness, Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett, Hon. Daniel Marcy and other prominent citizens of both political parties, were the guests of Hon. Frank Jones at the Rockingham House. We understand that the Governor and his companions are on an official inspection tour among the State arsenals. Wonder how much they admired the looks of that old caboose on South St.

Mr. Irving Laighton, residing at the West End, was stricken with paralysis for the third time on Tuesday, while walking along the street, and still continued insensible up to Wednesday afternoon.

Police Affairs.

On Wednesday the examination of Joseph Marshall of Seabrook, charged with the murder of Joseph E. Knox of that town, was contained before Judge Page of the Police Court. The evidence bears hard upon the accused, who was committed without bail. The two men left Boar's Head together in a boat, after a quarrel on shore, and were seen and heard continuing the quarrel in the boat; a splashing noise and cries as of a person in the water reached the persons on the beach, and when Marshall reached Seabrook he reported having left Knox at Boar's Head. We are informed that Knox was much respected in South Seabrook, where he resided, and that he was a quiet, temperate young man,—the fatal spree into which he was led (as is said) by others, having been widely opposed to his usual course of life.

Runaway.

A young horse belonging to Moses Mann, Esq., of Greenland, got loose from a boy who was left to hold him in front of Parry's bakery on Fleet Street, Wednesday afternoon, and after running nearly the whole length of Islington Street, circumnavigating the Custom House Building twice, and scoring a little on Congress Street, he was finally secured without damaging anybody.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"Tregard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.

"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges.

Morning Chronicle.

Correspondence.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 3d.

This is a beautiful city. Its people are generous and hospitable, and no one can visit it and go away without giving credit to its general attractions. There are many things in which it seems, to one from the North, somewhat peculiar as well as behind the times. For instance, it is not lawful to print or sell papers Sunday—so the Sunday papers (so called) are printed on Saturday, and sold Saturday evening. The horse cars run on Sunday, but there was a powerful opposition to it, and the matter was only decided by a vote of the people. It is also a novel thing to see on some of the street cars, a notice saying "Colored Persons are admitted into this car;" and the explanation is, that every fourth or fifth car is for the accommodation of negroes, and they are not permitted to ride in any other. It is a noticeable fact, however, that as a general thing the cars appropriated for this purpose are occupied by white people. It is undeniably the fact, that a great deal of the prejudice against colored persons has moderated within a few years.

The milk man's bell still sounds at early dawn, as of yore, and he who wants milk for his coffee must be on hand and go the wagon for it, for the dispenser thereof still clings to the old way, and sits securely on his seat while he deals out the necessary fluid from a large tin receptacle holding some 30 or forty gallons. The milk man here doesn't bother with two-gallon cans. About half of the venders of milk are females, and they do not like to leave their comfortable seats any better than do their brethren of the opposite sex.

When people here lose a relative, the male portion display a lavish profusion of crape on their hats. It is a custom, and only occasions remarks from strangers, to whom it does look queer. Merchants make storehouses of the sidewalks, and pile up boxes thereon in such quantities that it is often the case that there is only room for one person to pass at a time; and this too, on the principal streets of the city. Why such things are allowed is a mystery to visitors, but it always was so, and probably will continue.

Baltimore is the haven for broken-down "ex-confederates;" when they get completely played out everywhere else, they come here. They seem to understand that this is the spot of all others where they will find sympathy and a welcome. E. M. Yerger, who murdered Col. Crane, at Jackson, Miss., lately came here and started a paper called the "Evening Journal," and he claims that already his paper has more circulation than the "American" and "Gazette" combined, and that before many months it will exceed that of the "Sun." He is a bitter rebel and has a good stock of conceit, which he takes every opportunity of displaying. Jeff Davis, it is also announced, is coming here to reside. He is president of some Life Insurance Company, and has plenty of admirers in the Monumental City. It is simply astonishing to see the airs which ex-rebels put on in this city. It would have set a northern man to thinking, if he had been here week before last, and seen the demonstrations which greeted the playing of "Dixie" by some of the bands which accompanied the Knights Templar. R.

GENERAL JAMES TOTTEN, who was General Lyon's chief of artillery, and who subsequently served under several other generals during the war, died at Sedalia, Mo., on Monday. General Totten was appointed to West Point from Virginia in 1837, and graduated in 1841. He served in various garrisons, and won promotion as captain of the 2d artillery. Was in command of Little Rock arsenal at the breaking out of the rebellion, and evacuated to a superior rebel force. Served in various localities throughout the rebellion and won brevet promotions for gallant and meritorious conduct at Booneville, Missouri, at the battle of Wilson's Creek, Missouri, and served on General Halleck's staff as assistant inspector-general in 1862. Was brevetted colonel March 13, 1865, for gallant and meritorious conduct during the seige of Mobile. Received the brevet of brigadier-general for services during the rebellion, and was made lieutenant-colonel, June 13, 1867.

THE PAPAL POWER.—The latest mail advices from Europe indicate strong feeling throughout Germany and Austria in favor of a restoration to the Pope of at least a part of his temporal power. Italy courteously declines to comply.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS,

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetisers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. lyrdawf8t6

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

—IF SO, USE THE—

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the shape of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the

CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.

BANKING OFFICE OF

FISK & HATCH,

No. 5 Nassau Street, New York,

September 25th, 1871.

Of the FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE and OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $14,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.

The five years' option having expired on all series of FIVE-TWENTY BONDS, issued in 1867 and 1868, they are liable to be called in for payment. The redemption of 190 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchases by the Government during the ensuing four months, with the premium thereon, will release about 150 millions of invested capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek reinvestment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sixes

have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought

17 per cent. less than Ten-forties,
20 per cent. less than Five-twenties,
25 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,

and are equally secure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price (at present) 93 and accrued interest, (but is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1.

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $934.16.
$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $477.08.
$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $93.42.

Only a small amount of the latter denominations remains, and no more can be made. Bonds are in coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.

This debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company in order more speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work—the most important internal improvement now progressing in the country—is rapidly approaching completion. It will establish another and superior line of communication between the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the Eastern States, and nearer to the political and commercial capitals of their country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line that the larger cities of the West are projecting feeders to connect with it, so as to avail themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are passing into the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of tidewater navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad carriage.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC SIX PER CENT. BONDS are as safe for investment as Government Bonds. The amount fixed by act of Congress at $25,000,000, is secured by property worth four times their value; they can only be bought in the open market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they have a ready market in all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are steadily increasing, and will probably reach $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a handsome surplus after payment of expenses and interest. Present price, 101½ to 102.

When the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, in 1873, and the Bonds are sold in at the Stock Exchanges of the world, we have no doubt they will be equally popular with the Central Pacifics. Both principal and interest of the CENTRAL PACIFIC and CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS, are specifically payable in gold coin in New York; the interest on the former being paid January and July, and of the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.

We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, EIGHTY-ONES, and CENTRAL OF WESTERN PACIFICS, or receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Currency, will be promptly forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be forwarded by any responsible Express Company at our expense. Send the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid. FISK & HATCH.

P. S.—Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, on which we allow Four Per Cent. interest.

Certificates of deposit issued and collections made in all parts of the Union.

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.

The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clinging thereto, so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, I know of no better remedy than SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ is foul, and the digestive is poor. In the bowels, the lacteals are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup nourishes the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is a new order of things, a good appetite, a good nutrition, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, and it proves to be so in hundreds who are not entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal and repair.

I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what I hope to see, when I shall be cured of my Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, and then take Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic, and the assimilation will be in general and warm sunshine.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do not for a special reason. A man who has but partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is more liable to take a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and it is precisely the same in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not genial and pleasant. Confirmed consumptives' lungs are a mass of sores, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The great secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to subdue inflammation instead of provoking it, as many of the medicines do. An inhaled lung can be made safety to the patient be exposed to the biting blasts of winter or the chilling winds of spring or autumn. It should be carefully shielded from all irritating influence. The utmost caution should be observed in this particular, as without it a cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutritious diet, and all the medicines continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.

I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty these many years, with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment whom I have never seen.

About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new office, which is in the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

AGENTS WANTED FOR

ROMANISM AS IT IS. This Book, an elegant Octavo Volume, containing 750 pages, and 100 first-class engravings, is an exhaustive and Standard work, eminently adapted to the times. It fully uncovers the Roman system from its origin to the present time, exposes its baseless pretences, its frauds, its persecutions, its gross immoralities, its opposition to our public schools, and civil and religious liberty; it shows the fiendish working which strongly tend to bring this country under full Romish control. THE

NOVELTY CLOTHES WRINGER.

Nothing, except the Sewing Machine, has ever been invented which so much relieves the labor of the household as the Wringer. But its usefulness does not end here. The saving of clothing is of much greater importance. It is often remarked that articles of fine texture, last twice as long when wrung in a Wringer as when wrung by hand. The NOVELTY has Cog-wheels on both ends. * * The rolls are always separate at either end. These, besides other advantages which it contains, seem to be indispensable to a Wringer. None but the Novelty is Independent.

The Novelty Wringer has become an indispensable institution in thousands of families. And we believe its great and increasing popularity is fully merited—for the Novelty evidently possesses all the requisites of a first-class, practical machine. Indeed, after using one for many months in our own family, we are prepared to indorse the Novelty as unsurpassed (the humbug dress says unsquelched,) by any of the several wringers previously tried.—Moore's Rural New Yorker.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1871.

A Cabinet Officer's Views.

U. S. Attorney General Amos T. Akerman, an honored son of Portsmouth, writes us from Cartersville, Ga., Sept. 26, as follows: "I find the Gazette a very ordinary journal from that of thirty-five years ago, when I first exercised my pen in political writing as an anonymous correspondent of the Journal, and was very proud of stirring up a spirited controversy between these papers, and yet durst not disclose my name, dreading the censure that would fall on a school boy's presumption.

It is my impression that the Republicans of the North are too ready to believe that the issues of the war are settled. All the votes which the Democratic party will get at the South next year, will be given not from the voters' views on questions of administration or of political economy, but from resentment at the triumph of the national arms, at emancipation, and at reconstruction. The ancient regime of the South dies hard. The 'Ku-Klux' is one of its mortal spasms. If our people would forget the past and work for the future, the South would be speedily restored to a sounder prosperity than it ever before enjoyed, but as long as they keep in the political "sulks," they will not much better their condition.

The Tammany Exposé.

Mayor Hall of New York has been released without bail, having appeared before Judge Bixby on a charge of malfeasance in office. He waived an examination.

Mr. Donnarumma, a fresco artist, employed by Garvey, the plasterer, states that he never drew the immense sums checked against his name on the bills for plastering the court house, and was never in the city employ.

John Keyser appeared personally before the committee of seventy and testified that he never received the sums alleged to have been paid by the city, for work done on the New Court House. He had not given false vouchers, nor made false affidavits, but had assigned [illegible] in order to secure prompt payment. He believed [illegible] amounts had been raised after papers left his hands, and the difference appropriated by the officials to whom the assignments were made. He has been well paid for the work he had done, but the charges were never exorbitant.

The Times says that a secret society of Irish repeaters with passwords, and bound together by oaths, numbering fifteen thousand, exists in New York, with ramifications in Brooklyn and Jersey City. They are in the employ of the ring.

POLITICAL.

There are four candidates now in the field for Governor of Massachusetts—Washburn, Republican; Adams, Democrat; Pitman, Temperance; and Chamberlin, Labor Reformer.

The Democracy are becoming demoralized in Connecticut, vide the municipal elections. With Tammany strong and defiant, Hartford and New Haven go heavily Democratic. With Tammany discouraged and powerless, both cities elect Republican officers. Connecticut acts as a barometer, reminding New Yorkers that fraud and corruption will be rebuked there in November.

The Republican majority in California is 5008.

The Democratic State Convention in New York excluded the Tammany and anti-Tammany delegates from New York city.

The workings of the new telescope recently mounted in the observatory at Dartmouth College are eminently satisfactory. It was manufactured by Alvan Clark & Sons of Cambridgeport, at a cost of $4000. Its focal length is twelve feet; aperture, nine and four-tenths inches. It is of superior power, however, being equal to most of those of thirteen inch aperture.

A DISTRESSING CONUNDRUM.—The New Orleans Picayune tells of an ambitious young debater in a village society who propounded this abstruse conundrum:

Effr man plants a watermillion seed next to his fence; and this 'ere watermillion seed sprouts up into a watermillion vine; and that 'ere watermillion grows, and meanders through that 'ar fence into another man's lot, so adjacent, that 'ere watermillion vine and that sprouted from that 'ere watermillion seed and meandered thro' that 'ar fence into this 'ere other man's lot adjacent; tharin consolidates and homologates into a watermillion, the question, feller-citizens and ladies, is: To which of these 'ere men did that 'ar watermillion, so homologated and promulgated, belong? to the man who planted that 'ere watermillion seed that meandered thro' that 'ar fence into this 'ere man's lot adjacent and thar so consolidated into a watermillion; or to the man who owned this 'ere lot so adjacent, whar was so promulgated the watermillion that so exerggitated from that 'ar watermillion vine that meandered thro' this 'ere fence and so sprouted from that 'ar watermillion seed that that 'ere man thar planted?"

THINGS MIXED.—Some years ago, when the writer was a reporter upon an Eastern paper, it devolved upon him to write for the same edition an account of the presentation of a gold-headed cane to Rev. Dr. Mudge, the clergyman of the place, and a description of a patent hog-killing and a sausage machine, which had been put in operation at the factory. Now what made Rev. Dr. Mudge mad was this: The inconsiderate buccaneer who made up the forms of the paper got the two locals mixed up in a frightful manner and when we went to press something like this was the appalling result:

"Several of the Rev. Dr. Mudge's friends called upon him yesterday, and after a brief conversation the unsuspicious hog was seized by the hind legs and slid along a beam until he reached the hot water tank. His friends explained the object of their visit and presented him with a very handsome gold-headed butcher, who grabbed him by the tail, swung him around, slit his throat from ear to ear, and in less than a minute the carcass was in the water. Thereupon he came forward and said that there were times when the feelings overpowered one, and for that reason he would not attempt to do more than thank those around him for the manner in which such a huge animal was cut into fragments was simply astonishing. The doctor concluded his remarks when he was [illegible] than it takes to write it the hog was cut into fragments and worked up into delicious sausage. The occasion will long be remembered by the doctor's friends as one of the most delightful of their lives. The best piece can be procured for fifteen cents a pound, and we are sure that those who have sat so long under his ministry will rejoice that he has been treated so handsomely.—Brooklyn Times.

DEATH IN A DENTIST'S CHAIR.—The particulars of the death of Miss Doolittle, at Portland, Me., recently, are as follows:

The story, as told by the dentist, Brewster, and his assistant, J. J. Eggleston, which are corroborative, is that Miss Doolittle, who is about thirty-one years of age, according to the statement of a female friend of the deceased, called at their establishment on Saturday morning, and said that she desired to have eight or nine teeth extracted, and wished to have laughing gas administered to her. It must be made fresh, she said, and she would take it her own way. The dentist complied with her desire and made fresh gas for her use. She partook of it, but without it having any effect upon her. It failed to produce the usual effect, and made her nervous and boisterous to a high degree. He then told her she would have to take chloroform or ether, to produce anesthæsia, but that he would not take the responsibility of administering it to her. He was, he said, a dentist, but no physician, and it would be necessary for her to have a medical man administer it to her. She then left, agreeing to call again on Monday morning and bring a doctor with her. She left the place and called on Dr. George H. Little, of No 171 Carleton avenue, who accompanied her, together, with a lady friend of her own yesterday morning. The doctor applied a very small dose of Squibbs' chloroform (the best made) to the patient's nostrils, and the teeth to the number of eight were extracted, without pain. When it was discovered that her condition was dangerous, the electric battery was applied, but two or three slight respirations were the only response given by the inanimate form, and when an hour and twenty-five minutes had passed away without the slightest indications of a pulse or throb of heart, the physicians, who had exhausted their scientific lore, desisted, and declared that she was past all earthly aid.

—An exchange says, "one factory in Strasbourg keeps 1500 employees busy making corsets for consumption in the United States." If what the doctors say is true, that is just what they make them for.

—The Janesville Gazette reports that a boy was playing "circus" one day last week, when he turned his head so far backward that it refused to return to its natural position. The uncomfortable position was somewhat improved by the united efforts of two surgeons. The boy now delight in straps and bandages to hold his head in place.

—There is great suffering from drought in Arizona.

—A country exchange thinks Aleck Stephens can never become a great editor, because he uses too many italics and "small caps" in his articles. This is a mistake. Mr. Stephens has no "small caps" on his premises. He is an old bachelor.

—A white man, supposed to be a stray negro minstrel, is in captivity among the Apaches, and has so captivated them by his songs and dances that they will not release him at any price. This is the bad effect of making himself too entertaining.

—Laura De Force Gordon insisted, in a recent lecture at Stockton, Cal., that she was "an American citizen and over twenty-one years of age," which provoked a crusty and disgusted benedict to exclaim, "You bet you are!" Sensation in the audience.

—Miss Lucy Ames, of Washington Territory, has arrived in San Francisco. She is a fragile creature, only seventeen years old. Her height is four feet three inches, and she weighs but four hundred and seventeen. The distance around her shoulders is sixty-four inches.

—A Georgia negro thought he would economize by sending his son to school and then make the boy teach him. The plan worked well until the young teacher, following the custom of the seminary in which he was taught, gave the old man a thrashing for spelling d-o-r-g, and then the latter became disgusted and ran away.

—A curious incident took place in the panic caused by the melancholy accident of the blowing up of a bridal party on board of the Greek steamer Evnomin. The unhappy bridegroom rushed into a cabin, from amid the smoke of of which he carried off what he believed was his bride, and plunged with her into the water. On being picked up by a boat, he found, however, that he had rescued from death a young lady of Athens, and he returned to the steamer to find his wife burned to death.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Cramps and pains in the stomach are the result of imperfect indigestion, and may be immediately relieved by a dose of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. A tea-spoonful in a little sweetened water is a dose.

Heavy oats are good for horses; none will deny that; but oats can't make a horse's coat look smooth and glossy when he is out of condition. Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders will do this when all else fails.

What is the European question to us? Let the crowned heads fight it out while we supply their armies with provisions.

An Unprotected System.

Do not fancy because you feel strong that you are impregnable to sickness. Whole neighborhoods are frequently prostrated at this season by malarious fevers. Vigorous muscles and strong sinews, broad shoulders and sound lungs, are no defence against the mephitic vapors of autumn. Frames which have withstood the summer heat may succumb now. Many an athlete man, whose family depends for its support on his industry, now lies prostrate, weak and helpless as a babe, under the periodical assaults of chills and fever, or bilious remittent fever. This could not be if all were wise enough to provide against such a contingency, by toning and fortifying the system with HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. This approved vegetable tonic is absolutely harmless, so that it is sheer folly not to take it as a safeguard at a season when diseases of the liver, the stomach, the bowels, and indeed all the viscoral organs are generally prevalent. To keep the system in order and insure health, or to put it in order when this precaution has been neglected, is the duty of every human being who values life. For both these purposes Hostetter's Bitters is designed, and it answers both. Petty local dealers are endeavoring, in many parts of the country, to substitute preparations made of impure and dangerous materials in its stead. Give them a wide berth. They are prepared by unskillful experimenters, who want to turn a penny at the expense of the public health.

The Subscribers having purchased the "Business and Goodwill," of

have this day formed a co-partnership, under the firm name of

for the purpose of carrying on the Insurance Business in all its branches. They trust, by industry, integrity and good judgment, to merit the approbation of all the old patrons of the office, and to receive a good share of new business.

MR. HARVEY will still take a lively interest in the Companies for which he has so long and faithfully worked, and he is authorized to receive applications for Insurance in said Companies as our Agent.

JOSEPH P. MORSE, WINGATE N. ILSLEY.

Portsmouth, May 1, 1871.

A CARD.

HAVING disposed of my Insurance Business to JOSEPH P. MORSE and WINGATE N. ILSLEY, two gentlemen well known for their integrity and business capacity, I return my thanks to my old and constant patrons and friends, for their many favors, and earnestly recommend my successors, trusting the same generous patronage will be extended to them as to myself. Delehanty and Hengler

Are coming, Monday evening, with the Villa & Miner comic opera and comedy troupe, and they will meet a host of friends.

A Wag

Says "the supper furnished the huskers at the City farm, in the Chapel, was excellent, and so abundantly were the guests supplied that they came near having another Chap-ill there, and occasion for sending for Parsons." Will somebody provide root beer for the immediate relief of our correspondent?

An Incendiary Fire

Destroyed the barn of Mr. Benjamin Marden on Lafayette Road, Tuesday evening. The contents of the barn were also mostly consumed, including a large lot of hay, two pigs, 38 hens, &c. They were the property of Mr. William Rand, who occupies the adjoining house. The neighbors rallied quickly when the fire was first discovered and by dint of hard labor saved the house. A shed was pulled down by means of hooks made of hinges by Mr. Jefferson Norton. The fire was set in the hay mow, and a strange person seen about the premises a half hour before the fire broke out is supposed to be the incendiary. No one connected with the family occupying the premises had been in the barn with a light for 24 hours previous to the fire.

Personal.

We were gratified on Thursday at receiving a brief visit from Mr. G. L. Cushing, the well-known violinist, formerly of this city, and his many friends here will be pleased to learn that he is prospering and in capital health and spirits. He is at present engaged with the orchestra of Myers & Huntley's Dramatic Troupe, of which Mr. Muller (also well known here) is leader; and the Portland Press, in a highly complimentary notice of the Company, says that the orchestral performance alone is worth more than the price of admission—which must be so, with two such performers as Messrs. Muller and Cushing.

B. D. Laighton, Esq., has resigned his position as a third-class clerk in the office of the Secretary of the Treasury at Washington.

A Jolly Husking Party

Of nearly a hundred persons assembled by invitation of Superintendent Haven L. Scott, at the City Farm, Wednesday evening, and were ushered into the capacious barn, to a loft where in lay a thousand bushels of the golden-sheathed esculent. A desperate attack was soon made on the immense heap by the advance guard, who surrounded it, and there were too many for the benches provided. Later arrivals rallied vigorously to the top of the pile and the whole assembly were soon engaged in scalping the ears appearing in closest proximity. They went at the business with a rush; they ploughed paths through the mass of maize and undermined it till the objects of interest who thought themselves safe came sliding to the floor saluted with volleys of flying corn. Even the presence of the dignitaries of the city government and the entire judicial bench did not prevent the enthusiastic youngsters of the party shying grain about at random.

Between eleven and twelve o'clock, Superintendent Scott marshalled most of the force, quite a number having deserted in consequence of anxious helpmeets at home, and conducted them to the Chapel, where sixty-nine hungry individuals of the masculine persuasion, including many inmates of the institution, sat them down to tables laden with the substantials of life and partook of an old-fashioned husking supper consisting of everything man can wish for to satisfy his inner man. The beaming countenance of the wife of an Ex-Mayor, who helped do the honors of the occasion, assisted by a corps of younger ladies, added cheerfulness to the occasion and when hunger had been sufficiently satisfied with meats, biscuit that can't be beat, pumpkin pies and fruit, each guest sighed because no further room could be found for the constantly renewed eatables. Long live the Superintendent and family, long live their jolly assistants and the noble army whose members made such an inroad on the thousand bushels of corn and the bounteous supply of provisions. May their bravery and energy never be doubted or lessened and their appetites ever be satisfied.

A Parish Meeting

Of St. John's Episcopal Church, held Wednesday evening, unanimously invited Rev. Dr. Bingham, of Hartford, Conn., to become their Rector. Dr. Bingham has been officiating here the past month.

The Old Favorites,

The Hutchinson family, tribe of Asa, appear at the Temple, this evening. Their programme embraces new songs and some of the ever welcome ones of "the days of auld lang syne." The Hutchinsons always did have full houses here, and after their extended absence we hope will meet an old fashioned audience at the old fashioned prices, 35 and 20 cents admission.

River Improvement.

Mr. Reuben Wiley, the submarine diver, writes us from Dover that the work of widening and deepening the channel at the Narrows of the Cocheco River is completed, and that the party expect to be further employed by the day in removing rocks and boulders from the channel higher up the river. Another $20,000 appropriation by Congress will enable vessels drawing ten feet of water to go up to Dover without hindrance.

FIVE MEN were killed on the 4th at Abadare, Wales, by a fire-damp explosion.

AN OLD GENTLEMAN in Hartford, coming suddenly out of a store Saturday, ran between two men who were shaking hands, and the thumb of one of them entered the stranger's eye. The eye-ball was burst, and the aqueous humor of the eye escaped, of course entailing the loss of sight in the injured member.

THE GRAVITATION RAILWAY at East Dorset, Vt., for bringing marble from the summit of Dorset mountain, is over a mile long with a grade of 1240 feet. It has two tracks, so arranged that the loaded train down draws the empty one up. The cost of the road was $30,000 and it is the longest road of the kind in the country.

CONCORD AND PORTSMOUTH RAILROAD.—A meeting of this corporation was held at Manchester, Thursday, and chose the following Directors:

Stephen Kenrick, of Franklin; Samuel N. Bell, of Manchester; Samuel P. Dow, of Epping; Benjamin F. Martin, of Manchester; Joseph B. Walker, of Concord; Nathan Parker, of Manchester; John J. Pickering of Portsmouth.

THAT EXCELLENT PAPER, the Nashua Daily Telegraph, is enlarged to nearly the size of the CHRONICLE and is otherwise improved. We are glad that the people of Nashua are largely sustaining their only Daily, and hope for it and its proprietors continued and increasing success. Daily papers in New Hampshire are few enough, and we hail with satisfaction the growing prosperity of all.

THE HIGH PRICE OF IRON in England and America is caused by the large demand constantly exceeding the producing capacity of both countries. Russia's enormous drafts upon England, for the grand system of Railroads which is rapidly extending through all parts of the empire, keeps the manufacturers busy; and with us the supply needed for our own roads is continually increasing in amount.

—A young wife in Troy cured her husband of a disposition to absent himself from home at night by providing him with an excellent dinner and saying to him afterwards: "George, if you find a sweeter spot than our home, describe it to me and I will rival it if I die in the attempt." A kiss and a few tears completed the victory.

—The great progress that has been made in the labor-saving machinery is well illustrated by the fact that no less than seventy farmers have been cut to pieces by mowing machines this season in Illinois. It would have taken the most expert wood-chopper a long time to do this with the old-fashioned ax.—San Francisco Chronicle.

☞ THE NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE for this week, is now ready for delivery, at the Chronicle Office. Each number contains all the reading matter of the week's Dailies. Price $2 a year; single copies 5 cents,—in wrappers for mailing, if desired. Six copies for $10 per year, to Clubs—per mail or city carrier.

JOB AND CARD PRINTING.—We have made great additions to our jobbing facilities—a mammoth Hand Press (the largest in Portsmouth,) new Display Type, Borders of various styles, &c. —and are prepared to execute with neatness and dispatch, all orders for FULL SHEET POSTERS, DATE SLIPS, PAMPHLETS, SERMONS, ADDRESSES, AUCTION BILLS, CONSTITUTIONS, BY LAWS, PROGRAMMES, HANDBILLS, CIRCULARS, ORDERS, DANCES, BLANKS, BILL HEADS, RECEIPTS, TICKETS, BUSINESS, MARRIAGE, ADDRESS AND VISITING CARDS, LABELS, TAGS, and in fact PRINTING OF ANY DESCRIPTION, AT SATISFACTORY PRICES. Orders received by mail, express, or at the CHRONICLE OFFICE will be promptly filled.

JOHN.

Coming Home, 9th mo., 11th, 71. There ain't a big percentage of pure, unsullied patriotism floating round now, and if you should take 6 or 10 or 5 off 30 days, there would be none left. I believe in a race between unsullied patriotism, a lamp-post, and a shudder crab, beats best three in two, the result would be:—

S. Crab	1	1	1
U. Patriotism	3	3	3

The fellow that stole my watch hain't got much patriotism, but to my regret he is so full of liberty he ought to have a liberty-pole. If I catch him he won't have so much liberty. You can go a whole blister plaster on that. I am travelling incog., and my watch is travelling with cog—cog wheels. It is a repeater, and I will probably find it next election.

COMMUNING WITH AN ANTIQUATED SQUASH.

I didn't stop at Newport, the great washtub of our common country, where people go to get soaked in salt water and play mermaid and lobster. I kept in the cars, and I saw a man chock full of the fiery enthusiasm of '76. He was 76 years old. His hair was full of salt. It was as silvery as the crest of a moonlit billow. The wrinkles on his forehead would have made a hunky washboard. I remarked to him, "Old squash, do you wish to commune? wouldst love to hold sweet converse with one like me—hey?"

He said he would. So we communed. I told the antiquated nut that I believed that there was some doubt about the birthplace of liberty; that I'd heard she shrieked when Kosciasko fell. He said that he heard the same thing, but whether it was true or not he wasn't prepared to say. One thing he was sure of; that was, she wouldn't shriek worth a darn when Ben Butler fell. Then he became animated, chock full of glow, and his tremulous voice was like the silvery cadence of a mountain saw-mill, as he said, "It don't make a bit of difference whether the Goddess of Liberty burst forth spontaneously from the bunghole of a barrel of soft soap, or gushed out from the sap in a man's head."

Then he placed one hand on his bosom, just the spot where I once wore my watch on my bosom, and raised his other hand and pointed his finger aloft. He looked as angelic as a whole barbecued lamb, as he continued and said, "The scales may fall from the hands of Miss Fiatt Justitia wuss than a Fulton Market shad; the white rag may get loose from her head, and our rulers throw dust in her eyes for a season; but I tell you the time will come when the people will arise in their might and wipe that dust out."

Then I observed that them rulers were "making some awful black lines." Then we both wept copiously.

AN INDIGNANT IRISHMAN.

As we wept, the cars had to stop, because there was no more ground to go on. We had got to the edge of the land, and it was all water. A boat was hitched up to the edge of the ground. She was all fired up with biled water to take us to New York. So I got on board and there I saw a big Irishman seated on a mackerel barrel smoking a pipe. Then the captain sung out, "All ashore that's going!" and Pat darted ashore. Then the string was unhitched, the gang plank hauled in, and the boat started, when that Irishman set up the most unearthly howl I ever heard. A steam whistle would be like a canary bird compared to it. "Hould on!" he yelled, "hould on!" He rushed down the dock, jumped on to the boat, and his head went through a cane chair bottom. One of the deck hands rushed up and said, "You cussed fool, you: what made you leave the boat just as she was starting?"

"Sure," replied Pat, "ye're a pretty lot of suckers, so ye are. Faith and be jabers, the captain, bad luck to his sowl, wasn't he after saying, 'All ashore that's going,' and isn't it me that's going, after paying me passage like a dacent citizen?"

COMMUNING WITH A PENSIVE FEMALE.

I went up on the roof, and I saw a female sitting there. She was looking pensive as if she was thinking of how expensive sewing silk was, and how much she could get for a cent. She had a strap over her shoulder and a satchel filched to her side. I felt like communing again; like holding sweet converse some more. So I said, "Going a gunning?"

She said, "No."

"Belong to the militia?"

She said, "No."

Says I, "What you doing with that cartridge box there?"

She said it was a travelling bag; and I said, "Oh!"

Then I asked her had she had the measles?

She said, "No."

Then I told her I was ahead of her; I'd had 'em on both sides.

Then I asked her did she ever swallow a whole watermelon? This was a hit at the size of her mouth.

She said, "No."

I told her I never had either.

Then I asked her, did she ever use chewing gums?

She said she despised all kinds of chewing gums.

Then I told her she was the first person I ever saw who didn't use chewing gums.

Then I told her if she used no chewing gums she must live on soup.

She admitted she didn't mean that kind of chewing gum.

Then her eyes rolled up so they looked like a couple of big white marbles, and she astronomized. "Ah," said she, "how beautiful the sky, how bright the stars shine?"

"Yes," said I, "what a pile of rotenstone it must take to scour them things up!"

She said she loved the blue vault above.

Then I observed that I had known that blue vault to be a little too blew. I had known it so blew that it blew everything endways, and further remarked that if she loved the blue vault above I knew a vault I loved a great deal better; it was a bank vault.

She called me a "revolting fellow." Then she heaved a sigh; it was of such a size that for the space of thirty seconds I couldn't tell whether she was going to faint and tumble down cellar, or go up. After she came to, we talked about weddings. She said she wasn't married in church—she was married at home; and I observed, "So was I;" and I said sweetly, "We are two parlor matches, ain't we?"

She gave me a look of unutterable disgust, and when she got out of the gust she took her camp-stool and departed.

A DISGUSTED PILOT.

I walked up to the pilot house just as he had rung the door-bell for the engineer to slow her. Says I, "Pontius, what's the matter?"

Says he. "Didn't you see that boat dead ahead?"

"Poor thing," says I: "when did it die?" He didn't look as if he liked it; so I went to my shelf, got on to it, and slept, and when I woke up New York was hitched to the boat, and I met my spirit of '76 friend chock full of other kinds of spirits. I walked up Broadway with him, and showed him Fowler & Wells' window, told him it was the museum, and made him pay fifty cents. Then I went with him to see

THE SCOTCH PICNIC.

I introduced him to Roderick Dhu, Bill Wallace, and Bobby Bruce. We saw a man stand perfectly still, and jump a standing jump sixty yards, three feet to each yard; he had only two feet to do it with. Then he took up the sixty yards that he jumped, and sold 'em to a real estate man. Another fellow held at arm's-length a terry-boat in one hand, and two tons of coal with an Irishman to put it in on top, in the other. He held them thus fifteen minutes by somebody's watch besides mine. Then a brawny Scot hurled a six-story brown-stone house with modern improvements and sewerage connection 120 rods, and he kept the rods to save his child with. He could have hurled it further if the taxes on it hadn't been so heavy. Another fellow jumped backward through a stone wall ten feet thick, turned a double summersault, and caught the hole he made in the wall between his teeth and swallowed it, and a milkman danced the can can.

Then Scotchmen are awful smart, but I didn't find one of 'em smart enough to tell me where I could find my watch that I lost on those Bleecker street cars.

REV. M. WARREN, Manufacturer,

No. 3 LIBERTY SQUARE, BOSTON.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS.

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetisers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. lyrdawfebl9

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

A PLACE FOR THE LEAN!

Say, old boy, where shall we meet?
Why, at Garrety's, on Daniel Street,
He's such a jolly fellow;
His LAGER is always fresh and prime,
It never wants a "head" and is
Refreshing, cool and mellow!
You require, my boy, some filling out,
You're thin, and meagre-looking;
Lager would give you the proper size.
Look at the host, he once was scant,
His BEER has made of flesh no want,
Go thou and drink likewise.

WHAT I KNOW ABOUT FARMING.—I have read Greeley's "What I Know About Farming" through nine times, twice backwards, and once standing on my head! Have mastered it at last, and condensed in a milder shape what I know about running the thing into the ground.

Young man, be a farmer. Young woman, be a farmer! Buy a billiard table, dust your clothes upon the top of it, sprinkle on a little dandruff, and go to work. Never think of beginning with less than a field less than 6 x 10. Spread on your earth all over the billiard table evenly, to the depth of one-sixth of an inch, irrigate with a sponge, and subsoil to the depth of ten feet. If you have no billiard table, buy a piece of land if you can't get a whole one, and go to work.

The best way is to stand about in the shade or hire out to hold a chair in a saloon while the old man does the work.

If your farm is stony, pick out the stone before they are ripe and throw them into the road. This will cause others to Mc-A-Damize your streets. Never think of plowing less than nine feet, if your mule will pull it. If you have no team, wait until winter, then drill and blast. This will pulverize the earth, elevate your land, warm it and you will be able to report before your slow neighbors.

Run your creeks up hill and wash sheep only in warm weather.

Pick geese on Sunday, and set the eggs on fence-posts, out of the way of garter snakes.

When turning grindstones to educate scythes, never turn the handle backward, or the early grass will wilt before the color comes to it.

In breaking colts use a club—it is better than a crowbar. A sled stake will answer.

Feed all hogs with cup custard, except politicians.

Drive fence-posts with the butt-end down, so the boys won't sit on top of them when arguing so long without coming to the point.

Strawberries should be threshed in May, and straw saved for the bees.

Butterflies should never be milked or churned the day they are slopped, lest the young milk be spoiled. None but ice cream cows would wear skates—the heel corks scratch the calves so.

Hydraulic rams should be butchered before sunshine, and the pelt saved for company.

Put a swivel on your scythe so that it will cut both ways.

Canary seed should be sown in drills, so that the young birds will browse early.

In planting string beans never use yarn—when once in the throat it is so hard to come up. The same with artichokes and pips in chickens.

Pitchforks should be sorted and packed in sugar, the juice boiled and skimmed before running in the cakes.

Pumpkins should hang on trees till frosts comes, then should be picked, not shook off, and packed in sweet oil.

In stuffing your sausage do not stuff too much into your stomach, or you'll have a feline in your category, and feel that you have incurred something you hate to meat.

Dandelions should be worked in pink rather than blue worsted—they will wash better.

Ordinary shoes will do for oxen when at farm work. Use slippers on them only when going to church.

For succotash, the young corn and potatoes should be sliced and planted in the same hills the year before. Then take care not to injure the pods when the fruit is ready to tassel out.

Old rags are better than glass to stop holes in windows—the neighbors can not see in so well.

Beech nuts should never be eaten with skins on—they change the complexion so.

Young bed quilts should never be taken out of the ground in the salt till the beds have been well spaded for the next crop.

In hatching suspenders, care must be taken that the old hen does not have her nest near the gallows, or the young birds will be hard to catch.

Look for protection! Let the big hogs eat the little ones, then there will be more room in the pen, and less expense for barrels. But in salting down the pork never use rock salt on a stony farm, but feed them fine salt from a spoon, if Butler is not in that vicinity. Use Epsom salt exclusively for horses.

Sweet corn is the best to beef, though old cows used to the business will eat the common red glaze if the hired man does not yellow at them before they get into the garden.

Use peach leaves to color blond, and this is all I know about farming.

—An Indiana paper makes the following announcement: "Married on the 14th instant, by J. L. Richards, Esq., Mr. James D. Myers, aged 19 years and 8 months, to Amanda Curtis, aged 12 years and 11 months."

—In one county of Kansas alone there are 121 acres of castor beans under cultivation, and Greeley thinks it needs no mathematician to show that the crop will supply castors to every bedstead in the United States.—Detroit Free Press.

BUCHU

[From Dispensatory of the United States.]

DIOSMA CRENATA — BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.—Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections and Dropsy.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is used by persons from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 35 to 55, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-Wetting in children.

In affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus.

DISEASES OF THE BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.—This medicine increases the power of Digestion, and excites the Absorbents into healthy action, by which the Watery or Calcareous depositions and all Unnatural Enlargements are reduced, as well as Pains and Inflammation.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Diseases, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is Diuretic and Blood-Purifying, and cures all diseases arising from habits of dissipation, excesses and imprudences in life, impurities of the Blood, etc., superceding Copaiba in affections for which it is used in connection with

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the dark-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It is painful to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body too much confined to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parents heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreaded Approach of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no report of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES—SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, PATULITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appear. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mind nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale at "less price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

THE

NOVELTY CLOTHES WRINGER.

Nothing, except the Sewing Machine, has ever been invented which so much relieves the labor of the household as the Wringer. But its usefulness does not end here. The saving of clothing is of much greater importance. It is often remarked that articles of fine texture, last twice as long when wrung in a Wringer as when wrung by hand. THE NOVELTY has Cog-wheels on both ends. * * The rolls are allowed to separate at either end. These, besides other advantages which it contains, seem to be indispensable to a practical wringer.—New York Independent.

The Novelty Wringer has become an indispensable institution in thousands of families. And we believe its great and increasing popularity is fully merited—for the Novelty evidently possesses all the requisites of a first-class, practical machine. Indeed, after using one for many months in our own family, we are prepared to indorse the Novelty as unsurpassed (the laundress says unequalled,) by any of the several wringers previously tried.—Moore's Rural New Yorker.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1871.

The Difference.

The Democratic press, in their zeal to do away with some of the damaging effect to their party of the Tammany exposé, shout more loudly and continuously than ever before about "Radical fraud," and ask why the Republican press do not turn their attention from Tammany and its doings to follow their example. There are several reasons why the Republican editors should not do as the coppery ones bid them, and let Tammany alone; one is, that the Republican editors are as perfectly aware of the groundlessness and falsity of most of the charges brought by the Opposition as are the Democratic editors who make them. The copperocracy howled very loudly, not very long ago, about $500,000,000 worth of warlike stores which the government had sold and stolen the proceeds of; not one Republican paper to our knowledge, took the trouble to contradict the ridiculous statement, and it now appears that every dollar's worth of such material sold is fully accounted for, and the proceeds now in the treasury, where it has long been. But this is a fair sample of the Democratic charges against the administration. Another reason for not following up the Democratic suggestion to let Tammany be, is that Tammany represents Northern Democracy, has been the great Democratic lever with which to move the political world, and has been sturdily defended by almost the whole Democratic press of the North from the charges brought by "Radical falsehood and slander," ever since it became the leading organization and ruler of the Democratic party. The gigantic robberies of Tammany were as notorious a year ago as they are to-day; a coppery exchange says that "when a poor man gets suddenly rich, in office, it isn't an evidence of honesty"—and that Tweed & Co. have suddenly become possessed of fabulous wealth was not only long since sharply commented on by the Republican press, but even the New York World (since then one of Tammany's ablest defenders) a year ago said that Tweed was worth less than nothing when he took to Democratic politics, yet had become worth all the way from five to ten millions, and that Oakey Hall was a "shameless corruptionist" and "a creature and tool of the Ring." The Democracy knew then as well as they know now, that immense thieving was being carried on by the infamous Ring; yet they yelled "liar" and "slanderer" at every Republican paper which made the charge, —for Tammany was a party necessity so long as it was a party benefit,—and now that the evil day for the Ring has come, we are told that we had better keep our criticisms for our own party friends!

In marked contrast to the conduct of the Democratic press regarding dishonesty in their party, is that of the Republican press under similar circumstances. We have yet to see the first Republican paper which defends corruption in the party or the party leaders; defaulters, swindlers and thieves, when found out, are instantly condemned—not defended as Tammany was for so long by the Democratic press—and more than that, they are forced to disgorge their plunder, if possible, and be punished for their crimes by the law. Dishonesty in high places is and has always been denounced and exposed by the Republican press; but Tammany, the most gigantic hot-bed of dishonesty and crime which this or any other country ever produced, was upheld and defended by the Democratic press until the legal proofs of its guilt became as strong as the moral proofs had long been, and was then deserted only from motives of policy. And that is exactly the reason why the Republican press pursues Tammany, instead of following the Democratic press in chase of trumped-up charges against the Administration of Gen. Grant.

CONNECTICUT TOWN ELECTIONS.—All but 17 towns out of the 163 have been heard from. Seventy-nine are straight republican, forty-five straight democrat and twenty-two divided. Of the latter eight elected a republican majority of the board of election, six a majority of democrats, four are a tie and four are doubtful. This gives the republicans eighty-seven towns and the democrats fifty-one. Comparing with the spring election the republicans gain fifteen towns and the democrats one. Comparing with last fall the republicans gain eight and the democrats three. Of the towns divided last year the republicans carry eleven and the democrats four.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

About three weeks ago, four bodies, which had been buried from 31 to 45 years, in a burial lot on what is known as the "Morrill Farm," Northwood, were removed to the cemetery. The names of the deceased persons were Nancy Morrill, who died November, 1835, aged 9 years and 8 months; Green Morrell, died July 28, 1832, aged 80 years and 2 months; John Morrill, died November, 1838, aged 55 years and 3 months; Nanna Morrill, died October 5, 1840, age 84 years, 11 months and 6 days. An examination of the bodies revealed the fact that all were more or less petrified, while the last one buried was most petrified of all.

Joseph Pollard of Bethel, Me., committed suicide at Gorham, Oct. 2, by throwing himself under a passing train of cars. No cause is assigned. In his pocket were found a picture of a young lady and a card, upon which were written a few unintelligible words.

Rev. Dr. Lord is delivering lectures on "Moses," at Dartmouth College; but there appears to be no rushes to them.

The Rochester and Nashua Railroad has been leased to the Worcester and Nashua for twenty years, at six per cent. on the capital stock.

Mr. John Galt of Sandwich was instantly killed, Oct. 1st, by the accidental discharge of his gun while pursuing a fox. On the same day a son of Geo. Brown of Moultonborough lost his right arm by the discharge of his piece.

The receipts of the Concord Railroad for freight at Manchester the past month, amount to $65,000, and for passengers $15,000 in round numbers, making a larger sum than at all the other stations. The receipts on the Suncook Valley Railroad for the last three months have been double those for the corresponding months last year.

Professor Tenny of Dartmouth College has recently completed a list of 103 bright lines in the spectrum of the chromosphere, only thirty of which were previously known.

New York Politics.

Tweed came off victorious at Rochester. He offered to withdraw his own delegation and threatened that if the convention received the reform delegates he would not pay the expenses of the election. This settles it, for the Tammany ring has put its hands into the city treasury for the expenses every year, so that the State at large has contributed nothing. The country delegates felt that they could not afford to do without him.

Many of the roughs who went to the convention have returned to say that the State shall be carried this fall for the democracy, if they kill every republican inspector.

The reform party are greatly dissatisfied at the action of the convention refusing them recognition. It is probable that a bolt will be effected, and in junction with the anti-Tammany organizations a ticket be put up on the question of municipal reform.

The executive committee of the delegates who withdrew from the republican State convention has unanimously adopted resolutions to support the regular nominees.

Mayor Hall says he is not guilty of the charges made against him, but that he knew the members of the Ring were acting fraudulently.

NEW PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

Johnson's Musical Journal, John Church & Co., publishers, Cincinnati, Ohio. Fifty cents per year.

We have received from Roberts Brothers, publishers, of Boston, Pink and White Tyranny, by Mrs. H. B. Stowe, author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "The Minister's Wooing," &c. This vivid story of modern society presents the extravagance of the newly rich, who have never learned the use of money, and the failure of the substitutes by which people who live in sensation try to supply the place of honor and religion. The pen which was of such service in ridding us of the tyranny of black slavery, cannot but have great influence against the pink and white tyranny of woman fashion. For sale by J. H. Foster.

The Vicar's Daughter, a new novel by George MacDonald, is to be published by special arrangement with the author, as a serial in "Old and New." This novel takes up and carries forward some of the characters first met in "Annals of a quiet Neighborhood." The first part appears in the October number. This number, with those for November and December, are offerd free to all new subscribers who remit $4 for the year 1872 to the Publishers, Messrs. Roberts Bros., Boston.

—A love letter, picked up in Springfield, Ill., had the following paragraph: "My best loved one, I chawed the postage stamp on your last letter all to thunder, because I knew you licked it on."

POLITICAL.

The republicans of the sixth Illinois district have nominated Henry Snapp for Congress to fill the vacancy occasioby the resignation of B. C. Cook.

The Republican gain in California is 12,636.

SECRETARY FISH has notified M. Catacazy, the Russian minister, that the President will not receive him unless accompanied by the Grand Duke Alexis, and has informed him that when the Grand Duke goes home his passports will be sent him.

A MAN named Nicholas Kulp fell asleep in a bin of wheat at Delphos, Ind., and was carried down the spout of the elevator. It being discovered shortly afterwards that the spout had become choked up, the wheat was shoveled out, and the body was discovered.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Fevers seldom make an attack without warning; and may often be thrown off by soaking the feet in warm water, wrapping up warm in bed, and taking two or three of "Parson's Purgative Pills."

A Missionary just returned, says he regards "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment" as beyond all price, and efficacious beyond any other medicine. It is adapted to a great variety of special cases, and is the best pain killer in the world.

MEN OF BUSINESS from all sections find the AMERICAN HOUSE, Boston, the most central for business purposes of all the hotels, and at the same time one of the best in the country. The management of Lewis Rice & Son, which has heretofore rendered this hotel so popular, it still continued.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

THE EUROPEAN QUESTION.

What is the European question to us? Let the crowned heads fight it out while we supply their armies with provisions.

THE AMERICAN QUESTION

as to the best method of clothing gray heads with glossy brown or raven black is, however, a matter of vast importance to millions of both sexes in this country. It

SEEMS TO BE DECIDED,

if popularity is a fair test in the case, in favor of Cristadoro's Excelsior Hair Dye, the sales of which have been advancing during the past twelve months with rapidity astonishing. As a dressing, after dyeing, use

The Warning has been Heeded.

Since the exposure of the attempts made by certain unscrupulous local dealers, to palm off their coarse astringents, made from cheap and impure materials, in the place of the great national tonic, HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, public opinion has set strongly against these empirics and their preparations. Their occupation is gone, or soon will be. When the light is let into deception it soon wilts down. Persons who trifle with their own health, by using unknown preparations, with no guarantee to sustain them, when an established specific, proven by twenty years experience to be exactly what it is claimed to be, is within their reach, are sure to repent their temerity. Many have done so in this instance, but it is hoped that the truth plainly spoken has arrested the evil. In the meantime the demand for the leading protective and restorative medicine of America was never so great as it has been this season. From the fever and ague districts of the west, south west, and south, it is literally overwhelming, and it may be said of the advices from all parts of the country of the cures it is effecting in dispepsia, bilious complaints, and chronic constipation, that "their name is legion." Everywhere the sick and feeble seem to have realized the importance of "holding fast that which is good," and of avoiding what is spurious and dangerous.

The Portland and Ogdensburg Railroad line will be the shortest route by more than fifty miles from the Lakes to the Atlantic.

and the interest, six per cent., gold, is payable semi-annually in Boston on the 1st of May and 1st of November. These bonds are offered, until further notice, at 90, and accrued interest in currency.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

—IF SO, USE THE—

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons in all its branches. In the City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the Fortunately the space was not large enough to allow the large platform wagon to go down, or the U. S. Government would have been minus four good oxen besides other valuable property.

A Silly Correspondent,

Writing from Kittery to the Biddeford Journal, is extremely sensitive about the Navy Yard located at this port, and don't like the item we copied from the Portsmouth Journal relative to the "superior workmanship" of U. S. Steamers California and Saranac, as the writer of it praised the Portsmouth mechanics. We presume "Sam" wouldn't have complimented his fellow citizens so highly had he been aware that "Dudeen" would feel hurt about it.

City Councils, Thursday, Oct. 5th.

In Board of Aldermen, Thursday evening, a joint resolution transferring unexpended appropriations to other appropriations was passed.

Aldermen Hatch, Marvin and Mendum were appointed a committee to confer with Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett relative to the improvement of Richards Avenue.

Voted to purchase gravel lot of Main & Winchester for $750.

Chas. Cummings was appointed Fireman of Steamer No. 2.

Voted to widen Washington Street, near the Cotton property.

Voted to pay Frank W. Miller, Esq., $600 for building extension of Wibird Street and for land damages.

The bill for the reorganization of the Fire Department was amended and laid on the table.

The committee to whom was referred the Mayor's charges against City Marshal Johnson, had further time granted to report.

The Common Council accepted the resignation of Assistant Engineers Pender and Moore, and School Committee Adams—and passed the joint resolution transferring appropriations.

Another Little Bill.

The City has probably another little bill to attend to, for damages occasioned by dogs among a flock of sheep. Messrs. Dennett & Russell, butchers, on Wednesday night lost from a flock in their pasture (a part of the "Grogan Farm") at Sagamore Creek, nineteen sheep, of which ten or more have been found dead, torn by dogs, the remainder having probably been driven into the Creek and swept away by the tide. In this case, as in most similar ones, the best animals in the flock were destroyed, the fattest ones being naturally the poorest runners and the most easily caught. The canine butchers very probably went from this city,—whether they did or not the city is liable, and must pay the bills.

It may not be generally known that the worst of all dogs for sheep-killing are the big, gentle, honest-looking Newfoundlanders; and that the rascals are intelligent enough to nearly always go a long distance from home before commencing their depredations, no matter how many flocks of sheep may be invitingly close at hand. Some four or five years ago, dogs from this city killed a number of sheep on the March Farm in Greenland, passing a half-dozen other flocks on the way without molesting them. We remember a noble Newfoundlander, owned in the outskirts of Portsmouth, who several times made raids on flocks owned by the late Hon. James Pickering, of Newington, and on other flocks a mile or more distant, although he had to pass flocks owned by Messrs. R. L. Lane and Daniel Scott to reach them; and it was only after long immunity from punishment had rendered him bold in crime that he commenced operations nearer home, which resulted in his untimely death. Messrs. Sheldon & Goodrich, whose sheep-pasture is on Richards Avenue, inform us that during the ten or twelve years they have used it for that purpose they have had but one sheep killed by dogs, and that one did not belong to them, but to Mr. John Grant, who received $5 from the city as damages.

Augustus L. Jenkins

Of this city, mate of barque Niobe, Marcy, master, was drowned on Thursday at Portland, Oregon.

A Cheap Fire.

One day recently a newsboy entered a car on the Eastern Railroad with a bundle of dailies, and accosted a crusty old chap who sat crouched in a seat, near the stove: "Paper, sir? only five cents!" "No!" growled the passenger, "But I'd give five dollars if there was a fire, in that stove!" "Did you say you'd give five dollars if you had a fire in that stove?" said the boy, turning back. "Yes, and d—d quick, too." The boy, in the twinkling of an eye opened the stove door, thrust in his bundle of fresh newspapers, touched a lighted match to them, and demanded his pay. The passengers who had been watching the manœuvre shouted with laughter, and the old fellow, after hesitating a moment, sheepishly drew a $5 bill from his pocket and paid the demand. "Sold out again," quoth the sharp newsboy, as he went out after his basket of confectionery.

Morning Chronicle.

THE MORMONS IN COUNCIL.—A special conference at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints was held on the 5th at Salt Lake City. About 8000 Mormons were present. The three first presidents, Brigham Young, Geo. A. Smith and D. H. Wells, the twelve apostles, the high priests, and other church dignitaries were on the platform. Among the speakers were Geo. Q. Cannon, who aspires to the succession of Brigham Young, and Brigham Young, Jr. The remarks generally were bitterly denunciatory of the federal officials. Brigham Young, Jr., said the Mormons defied all their enemies, the government of the United Srtes included. The government officials now persecuting them were the tools of the devil. He prayed God to curse them all forever. He said, with violent gesticulations, "Trust to God, keep your powder dry, and don't fail to have on hand a good supply of fixed ammunition." The latter remarks were received with a universal amen, and loud cheering and clapping of hands.

A DISASTROUS CONFLAGRATION in Charlestown, Friday, destroyed the Fitchburg Railroad freight depots, and other property. Miss Adelaide Andross, employed as clerk in one of the depots, is supposed to have been burned to death.

A TOUGH MULE STORY.—There is a man out in Oregon who has a mule. A few days ago he was driving the animal across the prairie, when it suddenly stopped. The man left his wagon and attempted to induce that mule to move on but without success. He beat it, he coaxed it, he threatened it, and he cursed, but it refused to budge. He tied firecrackers to his tail and exploded them, but the mule merely turned its head in a languid sort of a way, examined the fire-works, and calmly winked at the man. Then the man thought perhaps the mule had forgotten something and wanted to go back so he tried to turn him around; but the mule expressed a firm determination not to go home. The man became desperate, and thought he would build a fire under the mule; but, as fast as he would kindle, the mule, standing firm upon three legs, reached among the wheels of his wagon and kicked the flames out. Then he tore his hair and swore—the man did—and he rushed to the wagon and got twelve pounds of gunpowder, and he dug a hole under that mule and built a mine. Then he covered up the charge and laid a slow match and stood off a little piece while he lit it. There was a rumble, a roar, then a terrific explosion; and amid the cloud of dust and upheaved rocks, the mule was observed to fling its hind legs in the air, and to support itself upon its fore feet in that position until the blast was over, when it quickly assumed its old attitude, and a gentle smile passed over its features as it perceived its master lying down groaning and cursing the day on which he was born. It was of no use. The man went home.

A FLAT JOKE.—The account of the land sink in Orange county, Fla., communicated to the Palatka Herald, turns out to have been one of those pleasant little provincial jokes that we sometimes see in the prints. There has been a very long and disastrous season of wet weather in that region, but beyond that the report is pure fiction.

—A negro preacher, at a recent Georgia camp-meeting, told his hearers they would never get to heaven with whiskey bottles in their pockets, and besought them to bring them "right up to the altar, and sacrifice them to the Lord." When the time for evening services came round, that preacher was very sound asleep in his tent.

—There is a college in Iowa where the students govern the institution, and have a sort of court-martial to try offenders. There are five young men and two young women on the court, and its judgments are heeded by all the students. Justice is tempered with mercy, and the female court-martialists exercise a most healthful influence.

—The Boston Advertiser comes down with severity upon the pronouncitation of the actors at one of the theaters in that city. It says they pronounced the Boston-beloved "æsthetic" as if the first syllable were a synonym for donkey; that one of the artists made Fichte a monosyllable; and that "aureola" was given as if it were the name of a Baltimore variety of bird.

—The Amherst Standard is responsible for the following: "One of our sophomores has devised a new way of telling bad news. He writes home to his father, 'I came near losing thirty-seven dollars last week.' Anxious parent writes back that he is thankful the money was not lost, and wants to know 'how near.' By return mail, 'came within one of it—lost thirty-six.'"

—A Virginia editor in noticing the statement that tight lacing saves the sum of $2,000,000 annually in board alone, says it is a villainous and habitual lie. He knows a girl who laces so tight that his arm will go around her twice and lay over clear to the elbow; and one would think, to look at her, that she could eat anything but soup, but she's got an appetite like a cross-cut saw, and she mows a swath at a table like a self-raking reaper.

—Advice to stocking-menders—Do your darndest.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS.
Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.
WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawfeb16

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.

The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased matter and humors which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and rouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; and the remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ is torpid, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the lacteals are weak, and requisite strength and energy are lost. My position like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite; it will prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup mounts into the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is in low par. What is necessary to cure a new order of things, a good appetite, a good nutrition, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, and if a person is very bad, if the lungs are not entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up, there is hope.

I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life for a good old age. This is what Schenck's medicines will do to cure Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.

It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep in-doors in cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason. A man who has but partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is far more liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and it is precisely the same in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not perfectly pure and mild. Confirmed consumptives' lungs are a mass of sores, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The great secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to subdue inflammation instead of provoking it, as many of the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety to the patient be exposed to the biting blasts of winter or the chilling winds of spring or autumn. It should be carefully shielded from all irritating influence. The utmost caution should be observed in this particular, as without it a cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutricious diet, and all the medicines continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.

I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty these many years, with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment whom I have never seen.

About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

GOOD HEALTH AND LONG LIFE!—To secure a clear, fresh skin, bright eye, active limbs, a quick brain, and a cheerful, pleasant temper, and if you would enjoy a long life, you should live about as follows:

Breakfast.—Oat meal porridge, with milk and sugar.

Or, Graham mush, with a little good syrup.

Or, cracked wheat, with milk and sugar.

Or, baked potatoes, with bread and butter.

Or, beef-steak or mutton chop, with baked potatoes and bread and butter.

If you are thin and need fat, use the first three; if you are too fat, use the last named two.

Drink cold water, or a little weak coffee.

Dinner.—Beef or mutton, roasted or stewed, with any vegetables you may like (though tomatoes should be used very sparingly), good bread and butter, and close the meal with a glass of weak lemonade. Eat no dessert unless it be a little fruit, and eat nothing more until the next morning.

There is no rule in regard to diet about which I am so fixed in my convictions, as that nothing should be eaten after dinner, and I think that the dinner should be taken early in the day; not later, if it could be so managed, than two o'clock. In regard to the precise hour for the dinner, I am not so clear, though for myself one o'clock is the best hour; but in reference to the omission of the third meal, I have, after long observation, no doubt whatever.

Hundreds of persons have come to me with indigestion in some of its many forms, and have experienced such relief in a single week from omitting the supper, that I have, for a number of years, depended upon this point in the diet as the best item in my prescriptions for indigestion. I have never met one person suffering from indigestion, who was not relieved at once by omitting the third meal.

Eat nothing between meals, not even an apple or a peach. If you eat fruit, let it be with the breakfast and dinner.

Cooked food fruit is best for persons of weak digestion. I have met hundreds of people who would digest a large beefsteak without a pang, but who could not manage a single uncooked apple.

I think certain dietetic reformers have somewhat overrated the value of fruit.

Avoid cake, pie, all sweetmeats, nuts, raisins and candies.

Manage your stomach as above, and at the end of ten years you will look back upon these table habits as the source of great advantages and happiness.

For thirty years I have been a constant and careful observer. (I have no hobbies about diet), and in the light of my own experience and these long observations, I assure you that the table habits I have advised are vital to your health and happiness.

Pimples, blotches, yellow spots, nasal catarrh, billiousness, liver torpidity, constipation, sleepness, dullness, low spirits, and many other common affections, would generally disappear with the adoption of these rules.—Dio Lewis in "Our Girls."

[We will add, for the satisfaction of our readers, that Dr. Lewis, who here intimates that he practices what he preaches, presents in his own person about as fine an example of genial good health, and wide-awake-tiveness as any one ever meets.]

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much concentrated to give rise to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance, Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more destructive to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES—SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by these dreadful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appear. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With wo'ful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

THE NAVY CLOTHES WRINGER.

Nothing, except the Sewing Machine, has ever been invented which so much relieves the labor of the household as the Wringer. But its usefulness does not end here. The saving of clothing is of much greater importance. It is often remarked that articles of fine texture, last twice as long when wrung in a Wringer as when wring by hand. The NOVELTY has Cog-wheels on both ends. * * The rolls are allowed to separate at either end. These, besides other advantages which it contains, seem to be indispensable to a practical wringer.—New York Independent.

The Novelty Wringer has become an indispensable institution in thousands of families. And we believe its great and increasing popularity is fully merited—for the Novelty evidently possess all the requisites of a first-class, practical machine. Indeed, after using one for many months in our own family, we are prepared to indorse the Novelty as unsurpassed (the laundress says unequaled,) by any of the several wringers previously tried.—Moore's Rural New Yorker.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1871.

THE KU-KLUX.—Intelligence from Raleigh, N. C., is to the effect that the recent convictions there have thrown the democratic Ku-Klux of the State into a terrible panic. Ten of the leading democrats of the State, seven of them lawyers, addressed a letter to Judge Dodge, expressing their surprise at the developments of the testimony of the witnesses condemning in the strongest language the existence and object of the organization and asking that the remainder of the trials be postponed until November, in order that they might unite all order-loving citizens in an effort to totally to suppress the outlaws. Judge Bond replied courteously, expressing his pleasure at their attitude and his regret that he could not comply with their request for a postponement. It would greatly encumber the docket of the next term, and he could not help thinking that the efforts of the court would be a great help to the gentleman in their efforts to suppress these outrages.

JOHN H. KEYSER, one of the New York court-house contractors, has made an assignment of some $600,000 worth of property to Jackson S. Schultz, in trust, to repay out of the proceeds of the same all sums of money which he may have improperly received from the city or county of New York, and he has also given full information touching his pecuniary transactions with the city.

TEXAS ELECTION.—Bryant, Republican, has 100 majority for Congress in Marion county. The Democrats have 1000 majority in Galveston. The State is probably Democratic.

THE MANCHESTER UNION wants a Democratic majority of ten in the House of Representatives and one in the Senate next year—and will continue to want it.

JUAREZ has been re-installed as President of Mexico. He has a majority in Congress. There is a formidable insurrection in the State of Nueva Leon.

THE NEWBURYPORT HERALD says the directors of the Eastern Railroad have decided to lay a second track from Boston to Newburyport.

Mr. J. H. Benton, Jr., has retired from the editorial chair of the Coos Republican. He has made a good paper of it.

The Independent Statesman comes to us from Concord as an eight-page paper. It looks well.

The Supreme Court at Concord sentenced Henry V. Allen to prison for two years for watch stealing; William S. Morrill and Charles Blaisdell of Chichester to two years and one year respectively for breaking and entering. Thirty-three liquor indictments were found by the Grand Jury which has just arisen, which include all the apothecary and ale stores in Concord.

A Lake Village correspondent informs us that the Prospect House on Cotton Hill, Gilford, was burned between the hours of 1 and 3 o'clock, Friday morning. Loss $5500. Insured.

Mrs. Stephen Jenness of Great Falls swallowed a shawl pin recently and the Journal says it is still lodged in her throat.

Political.

By an odd error a Western paper says Andy Johnson is going to take a "swig" round the circle with ex-Governor Randall.

A Chicago paper says General Beveridge's nomination for congressman-at-large is received with general "flavor" by the Republicans in Illinois.

—The Hartford Post, commenting on the acceptance by the Connecticut Legislature of the hospitalities of the Americus Club—of which Boss Tweed is chief—at Greenwich a year ago, says: "We have seen several Legislatures, but never saw one yet, no matter what its professions, that did not have a saphead balance of power that would vote to go to Greenwich, Cuttyhunk or the devil if they were offered free passes and a guzzle of punch."

—A Chicago man will stare no more at another man's wife—because the husband of the first lady he stared at shot him on the spot.

ANECDOTE OF BARONESS BURDETT COUTTS.—Mrs. Laura Curtis Bullard writes to the Golden Age this story:

Of course, she is a well-known and most welcome costumer at all the fashionable shops in London, but she is not so familiar a habitue of the stops of Paris. During a visit to this latter city, not very long since, she learned the death of a distant relative, and she went to purchase mourning to the shop, the Trois Quartiers, a large dry goods establishment something like, to "compare great things with small," our own Stewart's.

She asked for mourning dress goods, and was shown by one of the attentive shopmen to the proper department. "Please show this lady mourning stuffs," he said, "two-ten."

Miss Coutts made her selection and then asked for mourning collars; the clerk who had waited on her accompanied her to the proper counter. "Please show this lady mourning collars—two-ten," said he, and left her. From this department she went to look for mourning pocket handkerchiefs escorted by the clerk, who passed her over to his successor with the request, "Show this lady pocket handkerchiefs—two-ten."

As she had still other articles to buy, she was escorted from counter to counter, department to department, and everywhere these cabalistic words, "two-ten," were repeated by one clerk to another.

Struck by the peculiarity of this refrain, she asked the proprietor as she left the establishment. "Pray what does two-ten mean? I noticed each clerk said it to the other in your shop."

"Oh, it is nothing," he replied: "merely a pass-word that they are in the habit of exchanging."

But Mi-s Coutts was not satisfied with this explanation. Her woman's curiosity was piqued, and she resolved to unravel the riddle. So in the evening, when the porter, a young boy, brought home her purchase, after paying her bill, she said, "My boy, would you like to earn five francs?"

Of course he had no objection to do so, and only wanted to know in what way he could do it.

"Tell me," said the lady, "what does 'two-ten' mean. I will give you five francs."

"Why, don't you know ma'am?" said he, evidently amazed at her ignorance. "It means keep your two eyes on her ten fingers."

The mystery was solved at last. All the clerks of the Trois Quartiers had taken the richest woman in Great Britain for a shoplifter!

She tells the story with great gusto, and one of her friends, to whom she had related it in Paris, repeated it to me.

A CARD FROM MR. BONNER.—Messrs. Editors:—I have observed a paragraph stating that certain citizens of Milwaukee offer to make a bet of $10,000, if Dexter will trot on their course. This proposition is absurd on its face, as everybody knows I never allow my horses to trot for money; but even if I were going to trot for money, I certainly would not do it on a track like the Milwaukee track, where a quarter of a mile is out of sight of the judges. You might as well talk about trotting a horse on a pitch-dark night, where nobody could see whether the horses trotted or ran. But while I do not bet, I am ready, as I have previously offered, to pay $10,000 for the mere privilege of seeing any horse equal Dexter's last great performance, when he trotted a mile to a road wagon in 2:21¾.

Another absurd report is the one that Dexter was lately beaten on Harlem Lane one Sunday morning. In the first place, I never drive or even travel on Sunday, and Dexter never was on Harlem Lane in his life on Sunday. Moreover, he never was beaten on Harlem Lane on any day. Who speaks next? ROBERT BONNER.

—The N. Y. Tribune calls up memories of McClellan in connection with his refusal of the New York comptrollership. It says: "He is maturing a plan for a thorough reconnoissance of the broken country lying between the Mayor's office and the Finance Department, and will require five thousand theodolites to perform the work satisfactorily. Those in use in the city are very defective. The only ones worth buying are manufactured by the firm of Schlippenschoddenstein of Breslau at the rate of two a month. So that nothing but the fiendish malace of the Jacobins could insist on his moving this month.

—A youth in Iowa who has a turn for practical joking recently tried to impose upon an honest lager-beer vender by leading a mule into his saloon, and taking him up to the bar as if for a drink. Mynheer looked steadily at the pair for a few moments as if collecting his stray wits, and then broke out as follows: "See here, Vynce, I know vat dis is here. He look like you; you may be one family, as you call it, but if you ever bring dat young prudder here again, I vill shust tell you old fadder jackass of you both. Now you shust go long mit yourself." The young man and the mule went along.

—At last the pestiferous house-flies are to meet the fate they deserve. Titusville, Penn., has invented a reliable sort of fly-paper. This fly-paper is covered with nitro-glycerine, glue and molasses. The flies, attracted by the molasses, alight, and are stuck fast to the glue. Should any get away, they proceed to rub their legs together in ecstacy, when the friction of their own shins causes the nitro-glycerine adhering to their feet and limbs to explode, blowing them to atoms.

—The prairie fires in Minnesota are still burning, and the damage has been very great, some farmers losing everything.

—The sentence of Rochefort has been commuted from imprisonment for life to banishment from French territory.

From the Portsmouth Journal.

THE LYCEUM.—In less than four weeks the Lyceum course for the season of 1871-2 opens here, and it promises to be one of the best and most successful ever presented to our citizens. The indications are that the capacious church will be crowded. Next week the committee will probably be able to announce who will appear, Nov. 30. Prof. Hitchcock is positively to come on the date announced. The success and decorum which followed the Courses in Boston churches, as proved by those given in the Berkley street (Congregational) church, and Church of the Disciples (Unitarian) were not without their good results, as similar courses are inaugurated this season. Providence and other places also followed the example, and it cannot be doubted that the Portsmouth Lyceum, where everything objectionable will be excluded, will result quite as beneficially. Those who desire to attend should secure their tickets early to avoid any disappointment.

—A curious observer of men, women and things in St. Louis has made the discovery that men and boys invariably run the heels of their boots and shoes outwardly, while women and girls always run theirs inwardly. Out of one hundred and forty-seven men and boys that passed the observer at a given point this fact was true in every instance; of sixty-seven women that passed it was true in every instance but one.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Fevers seldom make an attack without warning; and may often be thrown off by soaking the feet in warm water, wrapping up warm in bed, and taking two or three of "Parson's Purgative Pills."

A Missionary just returned, says he regards "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment" as beyond all price, and efficacious beyond any other medicine. It is adapted to a great variety of special cases, and is the best pain killer in the world.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

THE EUROPEAN QUESTION.

What is the European question to us? Let the crowned heads fight it out while we supply their armies with provisions.

THE AMERICAN QUESTION

as to the best method of clothing gray heads with glossy brown or raven black is, however, a matter of vast importance to millions of both sexes in this country. It

SEEMS TO BE DECIDED,

if popularity is a fair test in the case, in favor of

Crisindoro's Excelsior Hair Dye,

the sales of which have been advancing during the past twelve months with rapidity astonishing. As a dressing, after dyeing, use

All Dealers sell Cable Screwed Wired Goods. Patent Stamp on all.

The Warning has been Heeded.

Since the exposure of the attempts made by certain unscrupulous local dealers, to palm off their coarse astringents, made from cheap and impure materials, in the place of the great national tonic, HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, public opinion has set strongly against these empirics and their preparations. Their occupation is gone, or soon will be. When the light is let into deception it soon wilts down. Persons who trifle with their own health, by using unknown preparations, with no guarantee to sustain them, when an established specific, proven by twenty years experience to be exactly what it is claimed to be, is within their reach, are sure to repent their temerity. Many have done so in this instance, but it is hoped that the truth plainly spoken has arrested the evil. In the meantime the demand for the leading protective and restorative medicine of America was never so great as it has been this season. From the fever and ague districts of the west, south west, and south, it is literally overwhelming, and it may be said of the advices from all parts of the country of the cures it is effecting in dispepsia, bilious complaints, and chronic constipation, that "their name is legion." Everywhere the sick and feeble seem to have realized the importance of "holding fast that which is good," and of avoiding what is spurious and dangerous.

The Bakers were the third parties to pick her up, and being successful in bringing her in got $25 for their trouble. A Queer Fish.

Fishes are not famous for more intelligence than suffices to enable them to eat everything which comes in their way, but a gentleman of this city has a gold fish which on being called comes to the surface of the water and feeds from his hand. Flies are its favorite diet, and whenever the gentleman goes for one for his greedy pet, the latter immediately administers a good trouncing to his scaly companions, doubtless to let them know that the prospective fly is a private dish for himself alone. The fish is in a globe with three others, and will not answer to the call of other members of the family.

Police Affairs.

Charles Smith, of Madison Street, a State prison graduate, was arrested on Saturday by Asst. Marshal Entwistle for brawl and tumult, on a warrant procured by a neighbor who was disgusted with Charles' performances. Smith was esconced in his house and defied the officer when he went to make the arrest, but the latter quickly found his way in, when the pugnacious hero at once submitted. He was brought before Judge Page, who with the unvarying courtesy and good nature which has made him so popular with all parties in this city, kindly allowed his visitor to leave $15—fine and costs—in the city officials' hands, after which he left himself—Smith did.

Besides capturing the bold Charles, Officer Entwistle further distinguished himself on Saturday by a brilliant foot-race with another fellow who, like Charles, breaks the peace and people's heads at one lick. The officer had a warrant for the one Patrick Quinlan, living in Brewery Lane, near the Creek, issued on complaint of his wife for wounding her with a shovel on Friday, and of a neighbor, Mr. Roach, for assaulting him with a pair of tongs the same day. The shovel-and-tongs man was talking with another person when the officer approached, and abandoning his coat and shoes started off at a 2:40 pace, followed by Mr. Entwistle at a tall rate of speed. The twain made things lively in that neighborhood for a few minutes, but the leader carried light weight and knew every inch of the course, and succeeded in escaping for the time being. The officer, however, had the satisfaction of making him run all his might, and of capturing his abandoned baggage.

Nellie Locke

Won the race at Plymouth in 2:45, 2:43, 2:42.

Mr. Levi T. Sanborn

Of Rye has been appointed mail agent on the Eastern Railroad.

The Hutchinsons

Gave a fine concert, Friday evening, to a slim audience—the rain preventing a larger attendance. To add to the discomforts of the evening, a party of small boys who were admitted free and therefore thought themselves privileged characters, were assisted in annoying the singers and audience by a party of young men who set an example of rudeness of which they should be ashamed.

Villa & Miner's

Comic Opera and Comedy Troupe, with Delehanty & Hengler, the celebrated double song and dance performers, and Florence's Newport Silver Band, open at the Temple this evening. The managers must be confident of their ability to give a satisfactory entertainment, for the Temple is engaged for three evenings; Delehanty & Hengler need no commendation in this city; and the Newport Band will give a taste of their quality before the show commences this evening, in front of the Temple. The advertisement is in another column.

Notes From Kittery.

A correspondent at Kittery writes:—"Geo. Shannon, Esq., ever wide awake to improvements, is soliciting subscriptions for lighting our streets, and the people are responding liberally; so there is hope that we may soon enjoy more light, and that the District may thereby be enabled to see the broken-down old sidewalks and mend their ways, as such a course will tend to reduce the sum total of profanity and may perhaps save the payment of a few thousands as damages for broken limbs.

School District No. 9 has recently expended $2600 in enlarging the new school-house and fitting it with all modern improvements inside and out. It does not look so much like a stable as it did formerly; the inside is really pleasant and cheerful, and we think we have now a good building. In the High School department there is a good recitation room, from which the teacher can overlook the whole school, and a young ladies' dressing room in the opposite corner.

On Thursday night some extremely careless thief or malicious scoundrel tapped a cask of molasses laying at the door of Messrs. Ireland & Sweat's grocery store, and let the contents run to waste. If the act was one of wanton outrage it would be gross flattery to call the perpetrator a contemptible sneak; if done by a thief, he might at least have had decency enough to stop the leak after he had stolen all he could carry away.

About a week ago there was a sudden and fatal "epidemic" among dogs over here, probably induced by strychnine, as the victims all died in tetanic convulsions. Five or six dogs and one or more cats had their lives snuffed out by it. Rather dangerous business,—the laying around of poisoned food in a village where juvenile humanity is so largely represented as it is here. One man, who lost a valuable dog, says the poisoner and molasses waster are most probably the same person, as "a man mean enough to do one act would'nt hesitate at the other."

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS,
Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.
WHAT ARE THEY!
THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,
Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.
For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.
DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.
They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.
FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.
Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.
PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.
FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.
They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawf6b16

Morning Chronicle.

[From the Chicago Republican, Sept. 16.]

H. G. AND LONG JOHN.

A representative of the Republican, armed with a step-ladder, called at the Tremont House yesterday, his object being to interview Long John Wentworth upon political questions, and especially upon Mr. Greeley, the Presidency, and the wool crop. Mr. Wentworth invited the reporter to be seated, when the following conversation ensued:

Reporter—Good morning, Mr. Wentworth. I regret to see you unwell.

Mr. Wentworth—Good morning, sir. Yes, I have been suffering from some linear feet of lumbago, but expect to be hearty again in a day or two.

R.—I understood a few days since that at a banquet in this very hotel, where the bran bread sparkled on the board, and the milk toast circled merrily around, yourself and Mr. Grinnell nominated the Chappaquan mower and editor for the Presidency. Is not that true?

Mr. W.—It is, unhappily, too true.

R.—Is it as the politician or as the agriculturalist?

Mr. W.—As both, of course. The man who would lie to a yam or commit an assault upon a sheep would make a worse President than Grant himself, and he is a bad one.

R.—So Logan says, anyway. I gather from your conversation that Mr. Greeley has disappointed you. In what respect, pray?

Mr. Wentworth then made the following statement, which we give verbatim, retrenching any vigorous redundances better suited for the columns of the Sunday Times than for our purer paper:

"A few days since Mr. Greely came to this city, and was met at breakfast by myself and Grinnell. We paid for that hoary lunatic's oil cake—milk-toast, I mean. His hack hire didn't cost him a cent, and we thought ourself reimbursed by his words of wisdom on the crisis and the crops. I shall allude by and-by to his political ravings; just now I only refer to the farming phase of his insanity. I sat at that man's feet like Paul at the feet of Gamaliel. I acted on his theories, and in one short week I was a ruined man. You ask me, how so? Go and look at Summit Farm. It looks like the alkaline desert—a howling wilderness dotted with skeletons! 'Greeley,' said I, 'what do you think of my merino sheep?' (I have—that is, I had about two hundred of them, worth $175 apiece.) 'Merino,' said Greeley mildly, 'why the devil don't you cultivate silk-bearing sheep? Merino is played out. I have tried thousands of times to get my sheep to produce merino under-clothing; I have tried irrigating, mulching, top-dressing, sub-soil ploughing, wood ashes, muck, leam, guano—all was of no avail. They will lay nothing but raw wool. Now, raw wool costs 30 cents a pound, and when to this you add interest, wages, insurance, manufacturing, bad debts, &c., you see that you cannot compete in the breeding of merino under wear with the pauper nations of Europe. On the other hand, silk is heavily protected, and the production this year is limited; in Assam the crop has proved a failure, owing to the frost, and the harvest will not yield more than thirty bushels to the acre. In 1832 you could buy a woolen dress for $3.50. In 1872 a silk dress costs $300. It stands to reason, therefore, that by making your sheep spawn silk you will make 85 5-7 times more profit.' I was thunderstruck with this, and could only stammer, 'How?' The hoary-headed fraud answered: 'By grafting, of course. —Those sheep can spin cocoons like silkworms if they only give their minds to it, and the man that denies it is a liar and a horsethief. Little sheep that can spin and won't spin must be made to spin. The fact is, Wentworth, you overfeed your sheep, and they never feel the spur of necessity. Vary their diet, give them no vegetable food, give them a peck of silkworms a day, mixed with coloring matter, as cochineal, madder, indigo, or lamp-black, according to the hue of silk which you want to rear. Food makes blood, blood makes life, and how can a merino sheep produce wool without life? how have life without food? What are worms but food?'

Sir, I was convinced of the correctness of the views held by this slovenly scoundrel. I went to Summit, and to sum it up I locked those devoted sheep up in a barn, gave them two hundred pecks of silkworms, which cost me $60 a peck, and went away for a drive with Charley Farwell, my old friend, telling my farmer not to let the sheep out on any account. Political matters kept my mind so occupied for several days that I forgot all about the sheep, until yesterday, when what I had done flashed across my mind. I mounted my horse and spurred him like the wind to my farm, but I was too late. When I got there, the cupboard was bare. I'll be hanged, sir, if the sheep hadn't all died, and the worms had kept them company, and I was $46,000 out on the transaction."

Here Mr. Wentworth paused, overcome by his emotions, and it was some time ere he could proceed, in a broken voice, as follows:

"Misfortunes never come singly. He had blighted my mutton crop, now he went for my unoffending root crops. I had a field of potatoes—hog-eyed early russets; there were 900 acres of them, producing 130 bushels to the acre, worth $117,000. Said that pensive old horsethief to me, 'John, we do not give our growing crops enough sunshine. Sunshine and air will be more effectual and are less expensive than manure. Take my advice and dig up all your potatoes and plant them with the tops down. That's what we call top-dressing. Now the potatoes being exposed to the beneficial influences of the sun and wind will fatten earlier than by the old way. Besides, you can gather them more easily than if you had to dig them out of the ground, always remembering to leave one potato in each hill as a nest egg.' Well, sir, I followed his advice implicitly. Of course, the crop is ruined: but never mind, never mind."

"Those were, indeed, unpleasant experiences, Mr. Wentworth, but—"

"But the half of it has not been told, my dear sir. I do not wish to inflict my grievances upon you. The fiendish miscreant induced me under fraudulent pretences to buy a steam-plough, and the throttle-valve got out of order, and although my ploughman told it to whoa, to gee, and to haw, the thing ran, and on, through the conservatory, went in at the bay-window, ploughed a furrow two feet deep through the floor, and issued through the wall at the rear. The driver was killed and the house knocked down, and the infernal thing ran into the school-house at Summit, and exploded there. The sexton has been at work night and day getting up a stock of pony graves; but never mind, never mind. The end of it all, to make a long story short, is, that I am a ruined man."

"But, Mr. Wentworth, the great and good Greeley is a man of warm heart and charitable impulses. Knowing himself to have been the innocent cause of your misfortunes, he will doubtless come to your assistance, and you may be happy yet."

Mr. Wentworth smiled a bitter smile and handed our reporter an opened telegram which read as follows:

OSHKOSH, WIS., Sept. 14.

Long John Wentworth, Chicago:

Take an eight cylinder press and go West. You don't plough deep enough. Get a few more wives.

(Signed) HORACE GREELEY.

20 collect 190.

Our reporter read and copied the telegram, then amiably punching Mr. Wentworth in the ribs with his pencil, said:

"What do you think of Mr. Greeley's chances for the Presidency?"

Mr. Wentworth burst into a torrent of profanity of such violence that in three minutes the room was flooded and the bell-boys and reporter had to climb up on chairs and window-seats to avoid being swept away.

"Greeley for the Presidency! The devil for the Presidency! Greeley President; that towheaded, chuckle pated, mooning, free-loving, protectionist son of a pig-iron foundry; that bland, muck-minded, slovenly cross between a yam and a cylinder press! Never, by the great jumping ten-toed Jehosaphat, if I had to kill him myself; I'll bolt and run on the independent ticket if they do. Greeley—oh, by all the angle-worms in a compost heap, this is too much. [Here he rang the bell violently.] Greeley, the mulching muddlehead of Chappaqua, I'll—[here the bell-boy] Pistols, pistols, at once, and hot, do you hear?"

The boy answerd, "Pistols, sir? Yes, sir," and withdrew. Our reporter, gathering from Mr. Wentworth's casual hints that he had nothing further to communicate, politely but firmly got out of the window down an awning post. He wishes some one would bring him out his hat, which he inadvertently left behind him.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.

BANKING OFFICE OF
FISK & HATCH,
No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.
September 23d, 1871.

Of the FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $4,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.

The five years' option having expired on all series of FIVE-TWENTY BONDS, except 1867s and 1868s, they are liable to be called in for payment. The redemption of 100 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchases by the Government during the ensuing four months, with the prepaid interest, will release about 150 millions of invested capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek reinvestment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sixes

have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought

17 per cent. less than Ten-forties.
40 per cent. less than Five-twenties,
35 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,

and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price (at present) 92 and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1:

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $924.66.

$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $477.08.

$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $95.42.

Only a small amount of the latter denominations remains, and no more can be made. Bonds with coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.

This debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company in order more speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work —the most important internal improvement now progressing in the country—is rapidly approaching completion. It will establish another and superior line of communication between the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the Atlantic States, and nearer to the political and commercial capitals of their Country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line that the larger cities of the West are projecting feeders to connect with it, so as to avail themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are opened up, to the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of reliable navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad carriage.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC SIX PER CENT. BONDS are as safe for investment as Government Bonds. Their amount fixed by act of Congress at $25,000,000, is secured by property worth four times their value; they can only be bought in Europe or in New York; they are ready markets at all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are already increasing, and will probably reach $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a handsome surplus after payment of expenses and interest. Present price, 101½ to 102.

When the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, in 1872, and the Bonds are dealt in at the Stock Exchanges of the world, we have no doubt they will be equally popular with the Central Pacific. Both principal and interest of the CENTRAL PACIFIC and CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS are specially payable in gold in the City of New York; the interest on the former being paid January and July, and of the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.

We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, EIGHTY-ONES, and CENTRAL or WESTERN PACIFICS, receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be forwarded by any responsible house. Bonds will be at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid. FISK & HATCH.

P. S.—Accounts of Banks, Bankers and Others received, on which we allow Four Per Cent. interest.

Certificates of deposit issued and collections made in all parts of the Union.

HARVEY FISK. 63 A. S. HATCH.

Refreshing, cool and mellow!
You require, my boy, some filling out,
You're thin, and meagre-looking;

Look at the host, he is one vast mass,
His BEER has made of flesh no want,
Go thou and drink likewise.

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.
The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. This derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutrient matter of food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring healthy digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the surest and safest remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid matter that is causing illness and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and rouse it up to a healthy and active action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; these organs become in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ is torpid, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the lacteals are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Pulmonic Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize the acid in the stomach, sweeten the bowels and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, healty appetite, and give the system a healthy flesh, free process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup nourishes the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of tubercles or tuberculous, and then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, a scrofulous abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is a new order of things, a good appetite, a good nutrition, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown out by large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, and if a person is not too far gone, or if the lungs are not entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up, there is hope.

I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's Medicines will do to cure Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.

It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised to avoid cold; keep in-doors in cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason. A man who has but partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is far more liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and it is important to be on his guard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there danger of the appearance of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution consumptive patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not genial and pleasant. Confined in consumptive lungs is a mass of sores, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The grand secret of my success with my medicines consists in their adaptedness to inflammation instead of provoking it, as many of the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety be put to a severe test, such as the biting blasts of winter or the chilling winds of spring or autumn. It should be carefully shielded from all injurious influences. The same caution should be observed in this particular, as without it no cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutricious diet, and all the medicines continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.

I would be well satisfied by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty these many years, with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment whom I have never seen.

About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

A PLEA FOR LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEERS.

When everything goes smoothly the conductor gets the praise; but if there comes an accident, pour your denunciations on the engineer. Call him "drunken," "heedless," or "reckless." That seems to be the practice with many; and I am very sorry to see that some newspapers lean that way. Are we not wrong in all this? It has been my fortune to know a goodly number of railroad engineers; and they are, as a rule, a noble set of men. There are some cheap men on engines as firemen. But every good, steady and intelligent fireman will get an engine ere long. And those who are not deserving do not get promotion very often. Just think of the responsibility of the engineer! The conductor may have the train in charge, but what is his responsibility to that of the engine-driver? The conductor looks at his watch, raises a finger, and then steps on board his train. So far there has been no risk. And just now his practical responsibility ceases.

The engineer opens the throttle-valve, the engine takes steam, and off moves the train. It is now in his power to run at sixty or twenty miles an hour. He can dash 'round a curve with a full head of steam on and run the risk of jumping the track, or he can shut off steam before the curve is reached and materially check the speed. He can neglect to turn his water-cocks to see how the water is in the boiler; or he can neglect his pump and thus let the water get low. He really holds the lives of scores in his hand. Rather, we should say, in his head; for it all depends on coolness and ready decision. If the train has started on time and no warning has been given of possible obstruction of the track, he keeps his ordinary speed and looks out. He has an eye to everything that looks like a red flag in the day or a red light in the night. Do you who travel never make mistakes? I have known of engineers being so sharp as to see a red signal, as they supposed, which proved to be a red shawl on a woman's back. Suppose they stop for that. Some impatient passenger calls the engineer a fool! Engineers do not like to be laughed at any more than other men. In Massachusetts a piece of track between Peabody and Salem is used by the people almost as common as the highway. I remember one of the first times Erastus—— had charge of an engine over that track. I was on the train. It was the hour when the working people were going home and many were walking down the line. He was careful, sounded the whistle for brakes three or four times, for persons who kept between the rails carelessly. Persons on the trains laughed at him: called him nervous! If the public will allow track-walking and demand quick transit, without delays, the engineer must pay no heed to persons on the track till so close upon them that they cannot get off. Who is to blame? Is the engineer?

On the Eastern road, whereth at fearful Revere horror took place, there is a piece of track through the very heart of Lynn. For years the track has been a favorite walk. Warning sign-boards and repeated deaths there have no effect to keep people away. This summer, a week or two before the terrible accident, a death occurred there. The Lynn city papers were full of demands for reform. But the public kept on using the path between the rails. Only a day or two before the great disaster I saw a woman dare the train, even after the danger signal for her to get off the track. With reckless use of the track for walking, and impatient passengers who are in a hurry to reach their destination, the engineer is between two fires. Is the engineer to blame that he runs some risks?

At the close of Amherst College commencement there were large numbers on the train for Palmer desiring to make connection with another train for Springfield. The train was driven at a furious rate to gratify the wishes of the passengers. It seemed some of the time that we almost leaped along; we whisked around curves so as to almost throw one from his seat. Everybody was silent—some were pale. As the speed lessened and men began to breathe free, we heard decided opinions about the recklessness of such running, from those who did not know its object. But when the connecting train was seen to move off in plain sight and hundreds were left behind, and it was known that the fast driving was to please the passengers and help them make their connection, there was a change of tone. The engineer was "a good fellow" to do his best, and the Boston and Albany Corporation had to take the curses. After that we saw the engineer, who said, with much feeling, "I'll not run like that again for anybody." Was that engineer to blame for the risk that train run? Was he not doing all in his power to please those whose precious lives he had in charge? The conductor probably said, "Here Mr. So-and-So, you have so many minutes. Do your best." If we had plunged down the high embankment among the Holyoke mountains, very likely survivors would have told of the reckless speed of the engi-

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES—SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at cured to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appear. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale at "less price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

THE

NOVELTY CLOTHES WRINGER.

Nothing, except the Sewing Machine, has ever been invented which so much relieves the labor of the household as the Wringer. But its usefulness does not end here. The saving of clothing is of much greater importance. It is often remarked that articles of fine texture, last twice as long when wrung in a Wringer as when wrung by hand. The NOVELTY has Cog-wheels on both ends. * * The rolls are allowed to separate at other end. These, besides other advantages which it contains, seem to be indispensable to a practical wringer.—New York Independent.

The Novelty Wringer has become an indispensable institution in thousands of families. And we believe its great and increasing popularity is fully merited—for the Novelty evidently possesses all the requisites of a first-class, practical machine. Indeed, after using one for many months in our own family, we are prepared to indorse the Novelty as unsurpassed (the laundress says unequaled,) by any of the several wringers previously tried.—Moore's Rural New Yorker.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1871.

Chicago Destroyed By Fire.

A terrible conflagration broke out at 11 o'clock, Saturday night, in Chicago. It started in a large planing mill, between Clinton, Canal, Van Buren and [illegible] streets. As the wind was blowing very fresh the flames spread with incredible rapidity, and in a few hours the entire structure was a mass of ruins. The immediate vicinity was built up mainly with wooden tenement-houses and two-story frame buildings, occupied as groceries, saloons, etc. The inmates of many of these houses, started from slumber, had hardly time to rush out in their scanty night attire, leaving their household goods to destruction. In several instances children were hastily wrapped in blankets and quilts, to break their fall, and thrown from second-story windows to the ground. When the alarm was sounded for this fire another of considerable magnitude was burning on Wall street, near Adams. Several engines were necessarily kept at work upon this fire. The rest of the engines in the city were soon on the ground; but before they arrived the fire had spread over so large an area and was so rapidly spreading, their efforts seemed of little avail. Between Canal street and the river were several lumber yards which were entirely destroyed.

The losses are as follows:—Lull & Holmes' planing mill $20,000, insurance 12,000; Fortle's box factory $3000, insurance $1500; Excelsior Vinegar Works of J. Weigle, $12,000; Racine House, loss small; Union Wagon Works, $17,000, insurance $6000; John Shaff & Son's lumber yard, $65,000, insured $35,000; Chapin & Son's shingle factory, $50,000, insurance $12,000; B. Holbrook's coal yard, $36,000, insurance $25,000; Wilmington Coal Company, $30,000, insurance $20,000; blacksmith shop of Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad, $4000; Boltzer & Co., wagon makers, $8000, light insurance. On Jackson Street ten houses owned by Alson Watson were burned. They were occupied by twenty-eight families who lost all they had. The iron viaduct leading to Adams the tracks of the Fort Wayne and Chicago and the Chicago and St. Louis railroads were damaged $2000 or $3000. Margaret Hadley, living on the north side of Jackson Street, was burned to a cinder. The entire insurance will probably fall below $150,000 — probably two-thirds in Chicago offices.

At ten o'clock Sunday night, another fire broke out in Dekoven Street, the wind blowing a gale from the South. It burned an immense number of lumber yards and the freight depots of the Chicago & St. Louis and Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroads.

Trains were dispatched to distant cities for steam fire engines, and the Mayor of Chicago telegraphed for supplies of food. A terrible panic prevailed among all classes of citizens, and with the increase of the flames the vessels in the river caught fire and the people became crazy with alarm.

Later dispatches say the Sherman House, the Chamber of Commerce, the Fremont House, the Crosby Opera House, the railroad depots are all in ashes.

At a mass meeting in Cincinnati, Monday, the services of the fire department were tendered.

By the International telegraph line we learn that the entire business portion of the city is in ruins. All the banks, express and telegraph offices, all newspaper offices except the Tribune, six elevators and the water works were destroyed. The fire has burned a distance of five miles and is still raging, the wind blowing a gale. There is only one telegraph wire working, and that is in the suburbs of the city. The Mayor telegraphed to the Mayor of St. Louis asking for food and clothing for the sufferers and says as the water works are destroyed, there are no means of checking the progress of the flames. Over 10,000 buildings are in ashes.

At last accounts the fire was still raging, being a mile square in extent; 75,000 people were roaming the streets, having no food or shelter. The loss is fifty million dollars. The President has ordered Gen. Sheridan to transport all government provisions to Chicago from St. Louis. The large cities are also responding liberally.

RECENT HEAVY RAINS have deadened the fires in Minnesota, but in Wisconsin they are raging worse than ever. Nearly the whole town of Pensaukie has been burned, and thirty men are believed to have perished in the flames.

YOKOHAMA has just seen the first locomotive ever used in Japan.

EIGHTY-ONE COMPANIES have entered for the Fitchburg firemen's muster.

TEXAS ELECTION.—The Democrats claim 30,000 majority in the State and all four Congressmen.

GEORGE Q. CANNON, the editor of the Deseret News, has been arrested on the same charge as that upon which Dogham Young is held.

ELECTIONS take place to-day in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Iowa. We have made arrangements for the reception of the returns until 2 o'clock, A.M., to-morrow, and hope to give our readers news of a series of Republican victories in our next issue. The contest is of particular interest in Pennsylvania, the Hancock Democrats being anxious to carry the election there that their favorite may become the Democratic nominee for President.

GROWING POND LILIES.—On seeing my pond lilies and admiring their fragrance, I asked, Why is the pond lilly so little cultivated?—a flower so much admired and so easily grown, and yet in many places so rare. The answer was: It is not universally known that it can be grown so easily. Many ask the question, where did you get those pond lilies? We said we raise them. "What! raise pond lilies?" We reply yes—raise them as easy as corn or potatoes. And as many seem interested about them, I thought I would tell the lovers of flowers how we raise ours. A few years ago my husband, seeing some growing in a distant pond so nicely and spontaneously, thought he would try them in his—a small pond of a few rods extent at one end of his field. He brought home a root and set it in. This was done by wading in barefoot, and taking it between the toes and pressing it down in the mud. It soon made its appearance above the water, and now the pond is pretty well covered with leaves and lilies, and it does not have that sickening appearance that standing water usually has, but is made the home of one of the most beautiful kinds of flowers instead. We know of no insect that troubles them; neither frosts nor wind affects them; nothing molests them but mischievous boys, who love the flowers, but will take no pains to raise them themselves.—Maine Farmer.

—"John Rouse, why wilt thou do so?" This was said by Thomas Hazard, one of New Bedford's substantial Quaker merchants sixty years ago, to Johnny Rouse, a negro in his employ, whom he found before a magistrate, and that not for the first time, charged with stealing. "Why wilt thou do so, thou foolish man? thou always gets caught." "Why, Massa Hazard," says Johnny, "I don't get caught half the time."

—Spillers, the comedian, being one evening behind the scenes, tormented with a violent toothache, the barber of the theatre offered to relieve him by drawing it. "No, my good friend," replied he, "no, I cannot spare a tooth now; but on the 10th day of June the house closes and you may then draw every tooth I have, for I am sure after that, I shall have nothing to eat."

—The author of "My Summer in a Garden" remarks that "Nothing shows one who his friends are like prosperity and ripe fruit. I had a good friend in the country whom I almost never visited except in cherry time. By your fruits you shall know them."

—Gardeners might not like to part with their gardens, though they are always ready to fork over their grounds.—Judy.

—A lady had a custom of saying to a favorite little dog, to make him follow her, "come along, sir." A would-be-wit stepped up to her one day, and accosted her with, "Is it me, madam, you called?" "Oh, no, sir," said the lady, "it was another puppy I spoke to."

—Chauncey F. Page, a notorious life prisoner, at the state prison, Indiana, one day last week, while in the cooper shop, picked up an adze and struck his leg three powerful blows, nearly severing the limb. It is supposed he did the deed to escape hard labor.

—Henry Wolfe, of Calloway county, Kentucky, sampled this life to the extent of one hundred and eight years, and not liking it, concluded not to accept it. The razor was found where the deed was done, and the body in a neighboring corn field.

—The New York Herald calls the Maryland negro, who eats melted lead and handles red hot iron with bare hands, an enigma. And so he is; but he came honestly by it, for he had a nigma for his mother.—Chicago Post.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

Fevers seldom make an attack without warning; and may often be thrown off by soaking the feet in warm water, wrapping up warm in bed, and taking two or three of "Parson's Purgative Pills."

A Missionary just returned, says he regards "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment" as beyond all price, and efficacious beyond any other medicine. It is adapted to a great variety of special cases, and is the best pain killer in the world.

THE EUROPEAN QUESTION.

What is the European question to us? Let the crowned heads fight it out while we supply their armies with provisions.

THE AMERICAN QUESTION

as to the best method of clothing gray heads with glossy brown or raven black is, however, a matter of vast importance to millions of both sexes in this country. It than ever before made of the same materials.

All Dealers sell Cable Screwed Wired Goods. Patent Stamps on all.

The Warning has been Heeded.

Since the exposure of the attempts made by certain unscrupulous local dealers, to palm off their coarse astringents, made from cheap and impure materials, in the place of the great national tonic, HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, public opinion has set strongly against these empirics and their preparations. Their occupation is gone, or soon will be. When the light is let into deception it soon wilts down. Persons who trifle with their own health, by using unknown preparations, with no guarantee to sustain them, when an established specific, proven by twenty years experience to be exactly what it is claimed to be, is within their reach, are sure to repent their temerity. Many have done so in this instance, but it is hoped that the truth plainly spoken has arrested the evil. In the meantime the demand for the leading protective and restorative medicine of America was never so great as it has been this season. From the fever and ague districts of the west, south west, and south, it is literally overwhelming, and it may be said of the advices from all parts of the country of the cures it is effecting in dispepsia, bilious complaints, and chronic constipation, that "their name is legion." Everywhere the sick and feeble seem to have realized the importance of "holding fast that which is good," and of avoiding what is spurious and dangerous.

At the rising of the curtain a glowing sunrise view, near the entrance of the beautiful Sagamore, will appear. With rose ascending,
Outspreading, beaming,
It is no dreaming,
Day smiles advancing,
Oh, how entrancing, &c."

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

—IF SO, USE THE—

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the

Rev. Dr. Bingham

Of Hartford, Conn., has accepted the Rectorship of St. John's, (Episcopal) Church, and will enter immediately upon his duties.

Long Passage.

The brig Harold, Sinclair master, arrived at this port Oct. 9, with a cargo of pig-iron from Troon, Scotland. She has been fifty-four days on the passage, and experienced very heavy weather to the eastward of the Banks, having been hove to for twelve days.

The Kittery Ghost,

Which "was laid" for a time by the articles in the CHRONICLE, has recently reappeared in the vicinity of its old performances. It has been discovered to be a resident of the Lower Foreside village, where he was born and brought up." So writes a lady correspondent at Kittery.

The Lauri

Pantomime Troupe, who didn't appear here as advertised, owing to an accident to one of the performers, are to finish an engagement in Boston, after which they are to make a trip to this city. An agent of the company has been in town, settling the bills incurred previous to the mishap which prevented their coming.

It Is

Almost unnecessary to remind our readers that Duprez & Benedict's Minstrels are announced to appear at the Temple, Friday evening next. The troupe is too thoroughly known and highly appreciated to need comment from the press. This is the oldest, best organized travelling troupe on the American continent, and their enterments are unrivaled.

Naval.

U. S. Steamer Wyoming is ordered to sail from this Station by the 26th inst.

U. S. S. Leyden arrived at this Station on Monday afternoon, bringing a detachment of 70 men to take the Wyoming around to Charlestown, where she is to have a new propeller fitted. Among the detachment we noticed Carpenter Wm. F. Laighton of this city.

Lieut. Fred. P. Ela, U. S. M. C., is ordered to duty at this Station.

The Choir

At the Unitarian Church lacks a good soprano singer, and quite a number of applications have been received from candidates for the vacancy. Miss Maynard of Worcester, Mass., sang again on Sunday and is to sing on the 15th and 22d insts. She possesses a voice of much power, sings nicely and shows evidence of careful study. Her tones are alike pleasing on the upper and lower registers, and are at no time disagreeable or lacking in quality. Miss Maynard's singing is far in advance of other candidates thus far proposed.

A Nice Entertainment

Was offered the audience which assembled at the Temple, last evening, by the Villa & Miner Comedy Company, which includes actors and actresses of merit. Delehanty & Hengler delighted everybody as usual, appearing in old and new dances. Agnes Wallace is an entertaining comedienne and will assume the character of "Polly Eccles" this evening, in Robertson's comedy, "Caste." Owing to the length of the comedy there will be no other performance except the overture by Florence's orchestra, a song and dance by Aggie Wood, and Delehanty & Hengler's specialities in the song and dance line.

The Fourth

Annual Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association of New Hampshire opens a two days' session in this city at the North Church, to-day. The exercises will include a Prayer Meeting at 9.45, A. M.; organization of the Convention at 10.45; address by the President; devotional services at 2 o'clock; address on cottage prayer meetings at 2.45; miscellaneous business at 3; discussion on "what attitude the Associations should take with reference to the moral reforms of the day;" question drawer; an open air meeting at 6.30; and a grand praise meeting at 7.30, conducted by Prof. Tourjee, the Band and church choirs participating. The Hutchinson family will assist between 12 o'clock M., and 3 P. M.

The Portsmouth Association provide free entertainments for delegates. On Monday evening, the visitors had a "welcome meeting" at the Baptist Church and a "sociable" in which the ladies made them feel at home.

Man Drowned.

An elderly man named Hiram Briggs, but better known as Jack Briggs, a resident of Kittery Foreside, was drowned on Monday evening at about half past 8 o'clock, by falling overboard while trying to board a vessel at Sise's wharf, he being drunk at the time. His body was soon recovered, but not until life was gone.

New Hampshire Items.

A horse valued at $1,000, owned by Mr. J. W. Getchell, fell dead in the streets of Exeter, on the 5th, after having been driven ten miles. The horse was considered one of the best roadsters in the State.

In Rindge, recently, a son of Mr. Joel Wellington broke a leg in playing base ball.

On the 1st, in Enfield, a son of Mr. Sylvester Cross lost a finger from his right hand by the explosion of a gun which he was picking up.

It will be remembered that a few months ago there was considerable excitement of a week's duration at Franklin in regard to the disappearance of a Mrs. J. Flagg, and it is supposed she had been drowned by her husband, who is a crossgrained sort of a brute, at the best. Just as it seemed necessary to arrest him, the woman reappeared, sound and hearty. On this, Flagg got out a bulletin, announcing that she would disappear again soon. Though not in accordance with the advertised programme, disappear she did on the 30th ult., taking $1,800 in cash and her trunks full of such things as she wanted. The first notice Flagg had of it was that his weeping progeny came to him in tears and hunger. The chief assets Mr. F. has left consist of a $100 check and a note for $150. She has not been heard from and all are dissolved in tears at her protracted absence.—Patriot.

SINGULAR SUIT.—A somewhat singular case was before Commissioner Hallett, of the United States court, Boston, which resulted in a young man, named George Doherty, being held for trial in the circuit court, for aiding Robert Mullen, a seaman on the United States vessel Wabash, to desert. The Journal says that a few days ago Doherty offered to enlist as a seaman, to be assigned to the Wabash, but was rejected for some physical reason. Subsequently he paid a visit to the Wabash, at the Charlestown navy yard, and made a bargain with Mullen, by which he gave up his uniform and place on the vessel to him (Doherty), and the latter from that moment was to be to all the intents and purposes of the United states sevice Mullen himself. He even assumed without compensation fifty dollars' indebtedness which Mullen had toward the United States, and gave the latter his ticket to go ashore. Mullen, it seems, was glad of the change and left. When the latter was fairly ashore Doherty went to the sergeant-at-arms and told his story. It was too much for the outraged dignity of the service, and Doherty was arrested and put through the course of law as above. His only reason for the act, he says, is to have a voyage up the Mediterranean, where the Wabash is ordered. He has been nearly everywhere else in the world.

THE LARGE MALE ELEPHANT connected with O'Brien's menagerie, on Thursday last at the close of the afternoon performance in Meriden, Conn., broke through the tent, destroyed three valuable baggage wagons, killed a mule, threw down piles of lumber near, and then started up the street. He soon went into an orchard, where he was chained up to one of the trees by one of his legs. This enraged him fearfully, and in struggling to get away he broke off one of his tusks. At last accounts he was still in the orchard. During his rampage many pistol balls were fired at him, but the owners begged that he be not shot with rifles.

ASTONISHING.—An exchange says:—"George L. Fox of West Woodstock, Conn., was found dead in the street in Southbridge a few nights since, with injuries on his head, from which he has been insensible ever since."

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS.
Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.
WHAT ARE THEY!
THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,
Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetisers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.
For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.
DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.
They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.
FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.
Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.
PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.
FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. Send for a circular.
They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit, of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. lyrdawfeb16

Morning Chronicle.

neer, and perhaps called him drunk. This leads us to speak of drunken engineers. I have been at some effort to inquire about the number of locomotive engineers who are in the habit of drinking. I wish I could say, "there are none who drink." It is a fact that there are a few employed who once in a while are the worse for liquor. This is admitting a great deal. It is a crime against society on the part of the management to let such a man have charge of an engine a single day. On the roads in Connecticut there are but a few who ever use liquor to excess. The Eastern Railroad has over fifty engineers, and probably not over ten who ever touch it. There is no other class of mechanics among whom there is so small a proportion of drinking men. One recently said to me, "If a man comes on to the road and we find that he is in the habit of drinking and will not stop, we do all we can to fight him off. For he is a disgrace to us, and endangering our craft."

In this connection, let me speak of Mr. Brown, who ran the engine that did the havoc at Revere. Many of the papers cried out, "Drunken engineer probably." The coroner's verdict blames him. A Christian man of irreproachable character.—one whom every man on the Eastern road respects for his heart and Christian principle,—one of the most careful engine-drivers on that road, writes thus, in a letter which I am permitted to use:—"Accept my thanks (and I think I express the sentiments of many others) for your interest in our behalf [of engineers], and especially for Mr. Brown. He is a good, steady and square man; never had an accident before of any account. And that [of Revere] was no fault of his; nor do I think he could possibly have prevented it with the short notice he had."

One at least of the Boston papers has come out in his defense; and asks how can Mr. Brown bear the blame, in the light of the facts? According to the evidence, he obeyed every injunction and signal, and did everything he could do to stop his train when he discovered the other train. If some of your readers doubt this, let them obtain the favor of the gentlemanly superintendent at Hartford and ride an engine in the night. Let them keep their eyes on the track and see how far they can discern objects—lights even. Of a sudden open comes the furnace door; the glare of the fierce light is such that to see a single object on the track you must put your head out of the window. Not till that mouth of the firebox is closed can you see anything from the cab. Suppose Brown's fireman had the furnace door open as they darted out from under the bridge of which we have read in the reports of the inquest. An instant carries you along a good space at twenty miles' speed. That instant had carried Brown's train rods: his head may have been turned to the water-cocks, or the pump, or to see if the fire was right. The door is shut, there is blindness for an instant because of the glare; Brown catches his sight again. He sees a light at Revere—yes, two. Well, there is always a light in front of a station: conductor, station master and gate-tender each have one. There are always lights around depots. It did not surprise Brown to see lights at Revere station; he always did see them there; but as he gets a fair look ahead he sees two lights—tail-lights of a train? Yes! quick as a flash he springs from his seat, he does not stop to shut off steam, but throws his lever way back, and reverses his engine. It is the last resort; the full head of steam serves to hold her; that will stop the machine if anything. The instant the lever goes back he seizes the whistle-cord, or rod or lever as the casé may be, and the warning tool is given. Brakeman must have quick wits; no brakeman keep his hands on his brake all the time; the brake must be seized and turned. All this time the train is moving fast; and crash goes the engine, carrying awful death. We cannot see how any man that has any conception of the dangers, risks and responsibilities of an engineer can throw blame on Mr. A. S. Brown.

It is a wonder that we have so good men as we do for engineers. Why, look at the pay they get! What is seventy-five or one hundred dollars a month compared with the responsible position they occupy? The pay is altogether too small. Think a moment—the man that carries hundreds of lives in his care every day and thousands every week, because he is sooty and begrimed, gets little notice, small pay and no thanks. If an excursion train is run, dodging in and out, between the regular trains, and everything goes safely, the newspaper reporter says:—"Under the careful management of Conductor So-and-so, everything went well." The engineer gets no praise for his weltdoing, but oh! if there come an accident, how he gets the blame!

It is boldly asserted that there are not so many engineers that drink as there are conductors. Of the truth of this I cannot say; but certainly the engineer does not have the temptation to drink which the conductor does. When the latter reaches the end of his route he can leave his train. After that are they not sometimes seen in hotels or saloons? The traveling public, especially that portion who ride in the smoking car and who almost always "take a little something," are those who know the conductor best. They are the freest and easiest, and with a friendly "how d'ye do," invite him to take a drink. The engineer has no such acquaintance. At the end of his route he has his engine to take to the engine-house, and something to look after about her. He is well aware of his responsibility, and does not becloud his mind with alcohol. He has a wife and children—he is a man. If he sometimes looks cross and stern, who wouldn't with such a position. Gentlemen and ladies know the conductor, speak to him, recognize him on the street. But how few know the engineer. I saw two young ladies of a wealthy family riding on a locomotive recently between Palmer and a station south. Good! I have no doubt they will say it was the best ride they ever had, and that that engineer and fireman were both respectful and kind. Perhaps a Hartford young lady can answer.

One word in addition should be given. It is a well-known fact that the average life of an engineman is short. What with accidents, shaking up, loss of rest, nervous responsibility, is it a wonder that they live only twelve years? If it is true that any incompetent men, of bad habits, are on locomotives, the remedy is obvious. Raise the pay in proportion to the responsibilities. More pay and respect shown make any one more of a man; and that makes him conscious of his important position.

One word more. There are very few locomotive engineers who are Christian men. Why should that be so? Let us urge more interest in their welfare on the part of Christian people and clergymen. By what I have said I do not intend any slight to conductors. Here in Connecticut, as a general thing, we have a fine class of gentlemen in that position. I only put in a plea for those who deserve it.—W. S. HAWKES in Hartford Courant.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.

BANKING OFFICE OF
FISK & HATCH,
No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.
September 25th, 1871.

Of the FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $4,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.

The five years' option having expired on all series of FIVE-TWENTY BONDS, except 1867s and 1868s, they are liable to be called in for payment. The redemption of 100 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchases by the Government during the ensuing four months, with the premium thereon, will release about 150 millions of idle capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek reinvestment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sixes

have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought

17 per cent. less than Ten-forties.
30 per cent. less than Five-twenties,
25 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,

and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price (at present) 93 and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1.

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $934.16.

$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $467.08.

$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $93.42.

Only a small amount of the latter denominations remains, and no more can be made. Bonds are in coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.

This debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company in order more speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work —the most important internal improvement now progressing in the country— is rapidly approaching completion. It will establish another and superior line of communication between the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the eastern cities, bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the Eastern States, and nearer to the political and commercial capitals of their country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line that the larger cities of the West are projecting branches to connect with it, so as to avail themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are passing into the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of reliable navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad carriage.

THE CENTRAL PACIFIC SIX PER CENT. BONDS are as safe for investments as Government Bonds. Their amount fixed by act of Congress at $25,885,000, is secured by property worth four times their value; they can only be bought in the open market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they have a ready market in all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are steadily increasing, and will probably reach a million in the current year, affording a handsome surplus after payment of expenses and interest. Present price, 101½ to 102.

When the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, in 1872, and the Bonds are dealt in at the Stock Exchanges of the world, we have no doubt they will be as popular in Europe as the Central Pacifics. Both principal and interest of the CENTRAL PACIFIC and CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS are specifically payable in gold coin in New York; the interest on the latter being paid January and July, and of the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.

We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, EIGHTY-ONES, AND CENTRAL OR WESTERN PACIFICS, or receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be forwarded by any responsible Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid. FISK & HATCH.

P. S.—Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, on which we allow Four Per Cent. Interest.

Certificates of deposit issued and collections made in all parts of the Union.

HARVEY FISK. o3 A. S. HATCH.

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.

The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement producing disorders in digestion and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and distributed to the parts of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which unhealthy and diseased bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organs are weak, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the lacteals are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize the excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to the important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup nourishes the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of abscesses or tubercles, and then acts like a charm to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is a new order of things, a good digestion, good nutrition, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, and if a person is very bad, if the lungs are not entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up, there is hope.

I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung; live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's medicines will do to cure Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.

It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep in-doors in cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason. A man who has but partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is far more liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and the lungs are the same in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not genial and pleasant. Confirmed consumptive lungs are a mass of sores, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The grand secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to control inflammation instead of provoking it, as many of the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety to the patient be exposed to the biting blasts of winter or the chilling winds of spring or autumn. It should be carefully shielded from all irritating influences, and the utmost caution should be observed in this particular, as without it a cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutricious diet, and all the medicines continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.

I myself cured of this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty these many years, with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment whom I have never seen.

About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

CHARLES KINGSLEY ON THE ORIGIN OF MAN.—Rev. Canon Kingsley presided on August 15th at the inaugural meeting of the Devonshire Association for the Advancement of Science. In the course of his address the president said:

I fully accept the immense antiquity of the human race. I even accept as possible the guess of a certain very distinguished scientific friend of mine, that before all is done we may stumble yet on the remains of a Silurian man. But I say, the older man is proved to be, the more likely he is to have changed meanwhile. As for the Esquimaux-like savages, whose implements of flint or bone are found in caves and river gravels, they may have been the earliest human race which appeared, in Europe, when it recovered from the great catastrophe of the glacial epoch. That, it seems to me, is all that we can say of them. As for their being the original type of man, as for our being able to argue that their habits were the habits of our modest ancesters, that I must deny, as utterly as I deny it of any and every savage now existing.

In the first place, man, hairless, feeble, and possessed of no natural weapons, must have begun his career in the tropics, probably in some part of the tropics where there were no large or dangerous beasts of prey, and no violent inclemencies of weather. In a word, he must have commenced his career, as Mr. Darwin allows, in some earthly paradise. But once being there with food and comfort ready to his hand, he would stay there as long as he could. The hunters of reindeer, and bison, and rhinoceros, and mammoth, on the then barren moors of France, Belgium and England, must have come thither against their natural inclination. Not of their own choice did they face the lion, the bear, and the hyena, but because they were driven north, as their probably descendants, the Laplanders and Esquimaux, the Samoledes and Tungoos, have been driven northward since into the Arctic ice. If so, they were probably of a lower type.

For it is a general rule that at the extreme north and south of continents, or amid the most inclement mountain ranges, the lower and older races of a country are to be found. Stronger and more courageous invaders take possession of the rich and warm lowlands, and drive them to the mountains or to the Arctic shores. I should say, therefore, that the mere fact of these poor people having pushed northward is firm reason for supposing that there were even then, down south of them, strong and, it may be, civilized races, from the faces of whom they were fleeing, to take refuge among the northern snows. And it is on the ground of this very possibility that I am led more and more to doubt whether we can ever know anything certainly about primeval man at all. For see; the more ancient you confess the human race to be, the more time you allow for whole peoples to have risen, become great, strong, civilized; and the more time too, for whole peoples to have fallen again, and become weak, base, barbarous.

For civilization may fall as well as rise. Those who talk of continual progress upward in man forget how many facts are against them. Has Greece risen or fallen in the last two thousand years? Has the whole East risen or fallen in the last thousand years? Has Spain risen or fallen in the last two hundred years? In America alone have not two great civilizations, that of Mexico and that of Peru, sunk into savagery again during the last three hundreds years? And how many times may not the same thing have happened on the earth? If I am to believe (as I think we must now believe) that the human race is of immense antiquity, then I shall see more likelihood, more reasonableness, in those magnificent Arab legends of whole dynasties of pre-Adamite sultans, and all the gorgeous fables of vanished greatness and glory of which the East is full, than in the theory that man crawled on as a savage, or semi-savage, for countless ages.

—Hoyle, the apostle of whist, under the old dispensation, is said to have died full of years and honors.—New York Evening Post.

—and is now expecting the Angel Gabriel to order him up.—New York Evening Mail.

That would be an odd trick—to order up a whistplayer!—Portland Advertiser.

Ergo, whist players must never sleep. Gabe can go one better without "seeing him.

—The idea of going into the graveyards to find names to put on the pay rolls was conceived by one of the New York ring. The supposition is that they had exhausted the list of living rascals.

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much confined to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The mother's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more destructive to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THEY SHOULD NOT—INVARIABLY REMOVES—SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this and result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these accidents are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appear. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no toxic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale at "less price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1871.

The Elections.

Owing to the discourtesy of Mr. M. G. Blanchard, of the Associated Press, our arrangements with the Western Union Line for election news were interrupted. We herewith express our thanks to Mr. Chas. E. Shedd of the International Line for the returns published below.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10, 11 P. M.

The Republicans gain two members of the legislature in this city. Returns from most of the counties in the State indicate a Republican majority of 9000. The Republican city ticket is elected by a large majority, with the exception of District Attorney.

1 A. M., Oct. 11.

Later returns show a Republican majority of 15,000 in the State.

THE INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE of New York officials and citizens report the city debt to be $20,000,000; that fraud and peculations of the grossest character have been practised in the several departments with the knowledge of their heads; that the debt has doubled in two years; that the mayor is responsible for the continuation of the robberies; that it costs nearly as much ($30,000,000) a year to run the city government as to administer that of the whole nation; that the actual expenditure on armories was but $202,463, for which the thieves pocketed $3,221,865; that immense sums have been paid for services unperformed; and that the Schuyler frauds by which contractors' bills were raised from $48,000 to $468,000, were contracted with the connivance of William M. Tweed.

THREE PROPOSITIONS of amendment of the Rhode Island State constitution were submitted to the people at a special election, Monday. Unusual interest was manifested, and all were rejected. The first, to remove the real estate qualification from foreign-born citizens received 3114 in favor to 6366 against; the second, to abolish the registry tax, 3514 approve and 5883 reject: the third, to prohibit the appropriation of public money to sectarian schools, lacks the requisite three-fifths, though having a majority in its favor. The above includes returns from the entire State except three towns.

Hon. Gideon Welles will contribute the next of The Galaxy series of political articles. His paper will appear in the November number of that magazine. It will be a detailed history of the capture of New Orleans, with the purpose of showing that to Farragut is due the honor of the capture of that city. Mr. Welles incidentally attacks the pretensions of other military and naval commanders.

AN UNANSWERED QUESTION.—Once at a "commencement ball" given by the members of the senior class of Dartmouth, two of the class made their appearance so intoxicated that it became necessary for the floor managers to insist upon their retiring from the room. One of them knew enough to get out and go home. The other, John Buck, after reeling about for some time found himself in the ladies' dressing room, where he attempted to lie down on a sofa, but fell flat on the floor, where he lay too much discouraged to get up or care where he was. Soon after he rolled under the sofa, and immediately was fast asleep. However, he was not destined to rest in peace, for, shortly after he was awakened by the entrance of two young ladies engaged in earnest conversation, who sat down on the same seat under which our friend was lying.

After talking a little while on various subjects, one said to the other, "Did you hear any one say anything about me?" "Yes, I heard quite a number say that you were the best dancer in the hall. But did you hear any one say anything about me?" "Yes they all said you were the prettiest young lady here to-night." Now John was awakened by this earnest conversation, and began to share the interest felt by the young ladies. Poking out his head from between their feet he thus delivered himself to the horror stricken couple: "D-d-did you h-h-hear (hic) anybod' s-s-say anything 'b-b-b-bout me?" The shrieks of the affrighted damsels were their only response, as they fled in dismay to the ball room, and John's question remained unanswered.

The Chicago Fire.

The fire was subdued at a late hour Monday night. Lieut. Gen. Sheridan arrived with troops during the day and systematically proceeded to blow up buildings until the fire had no more to feed on and ceased its work of destruction. The Northwestern Railroad Company is running trains on both of its branches, which are crowded with fleeing citizens. An idea of the loss sustained may be formed by the statement that all banks in the city except two small savings institutions (one on 22d street in the south division, and one on Randolph street in the west division) are destroyed; all the wholesale stores, all the retail establishments, the post-office, court-house, chamber of commerce, every hotel in the south division except the Michigan Avenue Hotel, which standing on the extreme southern limit escaped, though it is badly scorched; every newspaper office (the Tribune building, which was supposed to be fire-proof, finally succumbed,) every theatre, the six largest elevators, the immense depots of the Michigan Southern and Illinois Central railroads—both the passenger and freight depots of the latter—more than a score of churches and much shipping in the river—all are destroyed.

Men who were millionnaires on Sunday are nearly penniless to-day, but more terrible than this is the awful certainty that many human beings have perished in the flames. How many no one can tell, and perhaps no one will ever be able to tell, but it is known that some perished, and it is feared the victims of the fiery monster may be counted by scores. Hundreds of horses and cows were burned in the stables, and on the north side hundreds of animals, though released from confinement, were so bewildered and confused by the sea of fire which surrounded them that they rushed wildly to and fro, uttering cries of fright and pain until scorched and killed. Any attempt at a description of the appalling scenes would be idle. The simple facts that the once great city of Chicago is destroyed; that hundreds of millions of active capital there have vanished, and that nearly one-third of Chicago's inhabitants are houseless, are enough.

Besides the great loss to Chicago citizens, the U. S. Government loses several millions. New York city is nearly panic stricken. Stocks of all railways centering at Chicago have fallen and others are affected. Holders of insurance stocks are greatly alarmed, and it is expected several companies will fail. The Home and Excelsior companies have lost heavily; also the Liverpool, London and Globe, and the Andes Co. of Cincinnati. The Home Co. has lost about two and a half millions, and the Liverpool, London and Globe about three millions.

Prominent financiers say that one hundred millions are owed in various ways by Chicago interests to New York, and there is consequently great fear of a financial crisis in consequence of the calamity. Boston parties are largely interested in Chicago business.

Cincinnati sends $200,000 to relieve the sufferers; St. Louis $70,000, by subscription; Oswego $2000; Buffalo $100,000 and 10,000 loaves of bread. Boston, Cleveland, Baltimore, Albany, Saratoga and many other places have had mass meetings and extended aid. The railroads transport provisions without charge.

The fire is the greatest calamity of the kind that ever befel any city in this country, being more disastrous than the great fire in New York in 1835.

The latest news is to the effect that a heavy fall of rain extinguished the fire, Monday night. The fire started in a stable, where a woman took a kerosene lamp at milking time. A large number of firemen were killed. The loss is between $100,000,000 and $200,000,000.

The Only Bright Side

To the Chicago disaster is the prompt action of cities and towns in every section of the country in offering aid to the sufferers. Surely man's humanity to man never was so generally exemplified. Rich and poor alike unite in contributing to the relief of citizens of the Republic, who are thousands of miles away. Friends in need are indeed friends. Open handed come all classes, eager to do their best to stay the misery of the hour—first to feed the hungry, then to shelter the homeless, and to administer to a thousand and one wants which the sudden woe has brought to hundreds of thousands. It is an exhibition of human sympathy which is grand and ennobling, which gives renewed faith and kindles hope where despair has shown itself. It shows too how firmly knit together are the friendships of a nation whose foundation is the people, and whose literature teaches "good will to men."

BUSINESS NOTICES.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

Fevers seldom make an attack without warning; and may often be thrown off by soaking the feet in warm water, wrapping up warm in bed, and taking two or three of "Parson's Purgative Pills."

A Missionary just returned, says he regards "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment" as beyond all price, and efficacious beyond any other medicine. It is adapted to a great variety of special cases, and is the best pain killer in the world.

THE EUROPEAN QUESTION.

What is the European question to us? Let the crowned heads fight it out while we supply their armies with provisions.

THE AMERICAN QUESTION

as to the best method of clothing gray heads with glossy brown or raven black is, however, a matter of vast importance to millions of both sexes in this country. It

All Dealers sell Cable Screwed Wired Goods. Patent Stamp on all.

The Warning has been Heeded.

Since the exposure of the attempts made by certain unscrupulous local dealers, to palm off their coarse astringents, made from cheap and impure materials, in the place of the great national tonic, HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, public opinion has set strongly against these empirics and their preparations. Their occupation is gone, or soon will be. When the light is let into deception it soon wilts down. Persons who trifle with their own health, by using unknown preparations, with no guarantee to sustain them, when an established specific, proven by twenty years experience to be exactly what it is claimed to be, is within their reach, are sure to repent their temerity. Many have done so in this instance, but it is hoped that the truth plainly spoken has arrested the evil. In the meantime the demand for the leading protective and restorative medicine of America was never so great as it has been this season. From the fever and ague districts of the west, south west, and south, it is literally overwhelming, and it may be said of the advices from all parts of the country of the cures it is effecting in dispepsia, bilious complaints, and chronic constipation, that "their name is legion." Everywhere the sick and feeble seem to have realized the importance of "holding fast that which is good," and of avoiding what is spurious and dangerous.

THE AMERICAN WASHER!

Price, $5.50.

The American Washer Saves Money, Time, and Drudgery.

The Fatigue of Washing Day no Longer Dreaded, but Economy, Efficiency, and Clean Clothing, Sure.

In calling public attention to this little machine, a few of the invaluable qualities, (not possessed by any other washing machine yet invented,) are here enumerated.

It is the smallest, most compact, most portable, most simple in construction, most easily operated. A child ten years old, with a few hours' practice, can thoroughly comprehend and effectually use it. There is no adjusting, no screws to annoy, no delay in adapting! It is always ready for use! It is a perfect little wonder! It is a miniature giant, doing more work and of a better quality, than the most elaborate and costly. One half of the labor is fully saved by its use, and the clothes will last one-half longer than by the old plan of the rub board. It will wash the largest blanket. Three shirts at a time, washing thoroughly! In a word, the ability of any fabric, from a Quilt to a Lace Curtain or Cambric Handkerchief, are equally within the capacity of this LITTLE GEM! It can be fastened to any tub and taken off at will.

No matter how deep rooted a prejudice may exist against Washing Machines, the moment this little machine is seen to perform its wonders, all doubts of its cleansing efficacy and utility are banished, and the doubter and detractor at once become the first friends of the machine.

We have testimonials without end, setting forth its numerous advantages over all others, from hundreds who have thrown aside the unwieldy, useless machines, which have signally failed to accomplish the object promised in prominent, loud sounding advertisements.

It is as perfect for wringing as a wringer is for wringing. The price, another paramount inducement to purchasers, has been placed so low that it is within the reach of every housekeeper, and there is no article of domestic economy that will repay the small investment so soon.

All that is asked for this GREAT LABOR SAVER, is a fair trial. We guarantee each machine to do its work perfectly.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

—IF SO, USE THE—

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the

WINGATE N. ILSLEY.

Portsmouth, May 1, 1871.

A CARD.

HAVING disposed of my Insurance Business to JOSEPH P. MORSE and WINGATE N. ILSLEY, two gentlemen well known for their integrity and business capacity, I return my thanks to my old and constant patrons and friends, for their many favors, and earnestly recommend my successors, trusting the same generous patronage will be extended to them as to myself. They represent some of the oldest and most reliable Companies in both Fire and Life Insurance in the Country.

Duprez & Benedict's

New Orleans Minstrels and Burlesque Opera Troupe sing at the Temple, Friday evening. Their wide-spread and well established reputation is owing to the uniform success and superior talent of the company. As comic delineators they are unsurpassed by any traveling troupe in the country.

All Persons

Desiring to contribute clothing, bedding, food or money to the Chicago sufferers, should pack them strongly and direct them to the Mayor of Chicago. W. I. Trafton & Co. offer to transport them to Boston free of expense. From there the New York and Boston Express Company will take charge of them.

The Considerate Lady

Who brought us a beautiful bouquet from Newcastle, on Tuesday, has our thanks and wishes for many happy summers in which to cull the perfumed favorites which scent the air in the vicinity of her cosy residence. As for the Captain, may his never ceasing efforts at adornment always be successful.

Abolished.

Gov. Weston and Council have decided to dispense with the State arsenal in this city. Here is a capital opportunity to secure a depot for the use of the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad, cheap, and it would be very handy to the South schoolhouse, too, so that the scholars would have a good chance to put pins and coppers on the track at recess time.

Y. M. C. A. Convention.

The closing exercises of the Young Mens Christian Association Convention, to-day, are as follows:—At 9 A. M., Promise Meeting; at 10, Association Reports; at 11, discussion on the subject of centralizing the Associations, that the strong may help the weak; at 2 P. M., Prayer Meeting, followed by addresses; at 6:30, open air meeting; at 7:30, Farewell meeting.

Citizens' Meeting.

The citizens of Portsmouth are requested to meet at the Common Council Room, this (Wednesday) morning at 10 o'clock, to take action for the relief of the sufferers by the disastrous fire at Chicago. We hope our citizens will respond liberally. Quite a nucleus for a subscription fund is already obtained and the parties having the meeting in charge hope to raise a handsome sum.

The Dancing School

For adults, under the tuition of Mr. J. G. Anthoine, opened Tuesday evening at Irving Hall. From the way the learners mustered we fancy there will be quite an addition to the number of dancers the coming season. For those who can't dance but wish they could, no better opportunity can be offered than this class, which will meet again next Thursday evening.

Scenic Concert.

Mr. T. P. Moses advertises a grand Scenic and Dramatic Concert for the evening of Oct. 31st, at the Temple, when the new drop curtain painted by him will be used for the first time, and selections from his unpublished Operetta "Winona" will be given. Mr. Moses' ability in getting up gorgeous and pleasing spectacles is too widely known to need any endorsement, and should suffice to crowd the Temple to its utmost capacity.

The Villa & Miner Company

Brought out "Caste" last evening in fine style and satisfied a large audience of their ability as caterers of amusement to the public. Messrs. Buckley and Villa, and Misses Wallace and Florence were particularly pleasing. Those famous dancers, Delehanty and Hengler were again gladly greeted and tried to outdo themselves in eccentricity. This evening an attractive programme is offered, "Ernani," (a burlesque,) a farce, and the artistic terpsichorean maneuvres of Delehanty and Hengler.

Chicago Insurance.

Mr. John Sise, insurance agent in this city, received the following telegram from Hartford Tuesday evening:

The old Hartford Company stands good yet. It will promptly meet its obligations in Chicago and elsewhere as usual. (Signed) G. L. CHASE, President.

The other Hartford companies represented by Mr. Sise report that they shall meet their losses in full. The New York and Philadelphia companies for which Mr. Sise is agent do not find their losses so enormous as at first reported, and expect to come out of the trial in good shape and to continue business as heretofore.

A Look at Byfield.

Some weeks ago, having a curiosity to see for ourselves the famous hamlet which has been variously depicted in various papers by various writers, some holding it up as one of the most degraded spots on earth and others maintaining that it is just short of being a Paradise,—wishing to see this place, we went where it was (and is now, we presume,) and saw it. Leaving our team at the hotel in Seabrook, we started on foot for Byfield, under the impression that it was a mile and a half distant; but it was the longest mile and a half we ever walked,—twenty years' absence quite upsets one's memory of distance, and we had not been in any part of South Seabrook for twenty years. About a mile from the hotel we met a man in shirt sleeves, and held converse with him as follows:

"I say, Sir—can you tell me how far I shall have to go to find Byfield?"

"What ye goin' down there for? Goin' down to see Old Rand?" was the answer.

"Who's Old Rand?"

"O, that d—d preacher!"

"Well, I shall probably call on Mr. Rand before I return; why?"

"Nothin'; only I expect they're goin' to hang him down there to-day, to the steeple of his own meetin'-house; hope they will—they ought to."

"Why?" "O, 'cause they had, d—n him!"

Thinking we could detect a little latent prejudice in the man's mind against Mr. Rand, we passed on. [Later in the day we saw the same man ejected from a hotel, the proprietor informing him that he wouldn't have "such a rum-sucker 'round, bumming on everybody that came in, for a drink."] A few rods further on we met another man, of whom we questioned concerning Byfield and the distance to it. He was a stout, handsome, intelligent-looking man, well dressed, and drove a well-fed horse in a good wagon. He stopped his team and we had quite a confab. After courteously giving us the information we asked, he queried if we wished to find any particular person in Byfield. Receiving for answer that our principal object was to see the place that had occasioned so much newspaper talk, he told us that the reports had been greatly exaggerated: that he had lived twenty-three years (we think) in the place, and it would compare not unfavorably with other country villages; that there were good and bad people in it, and good and bad houses, but his opinion was that South Seabrook was no worse in the morals and surroundings of its people than any New Hampshire village he was ever in, and he had been in many. Lastly, he informed us that when we found ourself abreast of Mr. Rand's church, we would be right in the middle of Byfield; we could go further if we chose but we would have seen about a fair average when we got there. Thanking the gentleman for his courtesy we passed on, mentally determined to go as far beyond the church as we could spare time to do, and draw our own conclusions as to the fair average.

Turning short to the left in front of the Methodist church in Seabrook, we walked about a mile down a good road, with neat, well-kept farms and farm houses on either side. Seeing a man engaged in hoeing corn (it was Sunday) by the road-side, we hailed him: "Good day, sir; is this Byfield?" "No, Sir!" was the emphatic answer; "take the next right-hand turn, and you'll be in Byfield in ten minutes. This is the Boyd district." Following his directions, we soon came to a large number of small houses,—some of them very small, and some mere hovels,—mostly of one story, very close together for a country village, and a large part of them very evidently needing paint; but nothing so bad as we had expected to see when we started on the voyage of discovery. In one of the largest and most pretentious of these houses we heard a great noise and much profanity, the cause of which seemed to be that certain children had behaved ill, and were being scolded and sworn at by both their parents. This was the only disturbance we heard during the five or six hours we spent in the village.

We reached the church, and found it in the middle of a hamlet, some of the houses composing which were well painted and comfortable, with neat gardens nicely fenced in front, while others were so small and wretched that they could only by courtesy be called houses at all. Still we saw little to justify the Post's reporter for his description of the buildings of Byfield; but a reference to his famous report showed that we had not yet reached the spot he described, so we kept on past the church and down towards the marsh.

Had we stopped at the church our idea of Byfield would have been different from what it is; for after passing the road which branches off at right angles towards Salisbury, we came suddenly upon the worst row of houses we ever saw in a civilized land—outside the boundaries of a large city—the identical row of houses described by the Post's reporter, and where he had such strange experiences, as he says. As to his having had such conversations with the inhabitants as he describes, that is of course impossible for us to decide; they did not trouble us, nor we them; but the houses are still there, or were, a few weeks ago, and require but little exaggeration to make them as bad as he discribed. Of about twenty houses—hovels, rather,—only one showed a sign of paint, many were wretchedly delapidated, some were so small that it seemed they could not be human habitations, and the very genius of unthrift appeared to rule over the whole.

Women and children we saw in plenty, not differing from what can be seen in the poorer quarters of any city; but only a few men. The latter had an unmistakeably "hard" look, to our mind, though perhaps that was because we looked for it. We saw but one man showing signs of intoxication, and heard no drunken brawls. We did, however, see several sights which we were disgusted with, but may not describe here.

Our last point to survey was the school-house, one of the famous buildings which are "hardly up to the level of second-class pig-pens." It is a small affair, and we should think 50 pupils would be crowded in it; but the school reports show that there are 113 children of suitable age to attend school in the district, and that the average attendance is about 70. The worst thing we saw about it, however, was a proof that the commonest proprieties of life are regarded much less than they should be; we saw nothing in the village to prove that more immorality exists there than elsewhere; but when, as in this case, 70 children of all ages and both sexes are taught in one schoolhouse to which there are no outbuildings of any kind, it shows that at least there is a great disregard of common decency. We left Byfield feeling certain that there is still much room for improvement in some of its features.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS,
Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.
WHAT ARE THEY!
THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,
Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetisers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.
For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.
DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.
They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.
FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.
Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.
PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.
FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.
They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. lyrdawfebl6

Morning Chronicle.

AN HONEST CONFESSION.—Ignatius Donnelly, of Minnesota, in a recent speech, spoke as follows in regard to his recent change of politics:

"A good deal has been said about my returning to the Republican party. I do not feel that I ever was out of that party. I may have got one leg over the traces, but I was in the harness all the while. [Great laughter.] If there was any crime in kicking that leg out of the traces, my defense will have to be that of the boy who went fishing on Sunday. A preacher saw him sitting on the river's bank. 'My son,' said he, 'don't you know you are committing a great sin to fish on the Sabbath day?' 'Wal,' said the boy, 'it can't be no great sin, for I hain't kotched nuthin.' [Uproarious laughter.] I ran upon the platform of Ignatius Donnelly. I still regard it as a good, sound, substantial platform, but there isn't enough of it to make a party out of. [Tumultuous applause.] In fact, my friends, I found that the temperature was increasing at the rate of one degree for every fifty-four feet I descended. It got so hot I concluded I was going to the devil. [Laughter]. Now I don't think a man ought to go to the devil simply to prove that he isn't afraid to go to the devil. So I took the back track. I came up like a half-drowned gopher." [Tremendous outburst of laughter.]

—He stood on his head on the wild seashore, and joy was the cause of the act; for he felt as he never had felt before—insanely glad, in fact. And why? In that vessel that left the bay his mother-in-law had sailed to a tropical country far away, where tigers and snakes prevailed. And more than one of his creditors, too—those objects of constant dread—had taken berths in the ship Curlew, whose sails were so blithely spread. Oh! now he might look for a quiet life, which he never had known as yet ('tis true that he still possessed a wife and was not quite out of debt). But he watched the vessel, this singular chap, o'er the waves, as she upped and downed, and he felt exactly as if to the cap "the edifice was crowned." Till over the blue horizon's edge she disappeared from view; then up he leaped on a chalky ledge, and danced like a kangaroo! And many and many a joyous lay he pealed o'er the sunset sea, till down with a "fizz" sank the orb of day, and then he went home to tea.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.

BANKING OFFICE OF
FISK & HATCH,
No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.
September 25th, 1871.

Of the FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE and OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $4,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.

The five years' option having expired on all series of FIVE-TWENTY BONDS, except 1867s and 1868s, they are liable to be called in for payment. The redemption of 100 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchases by the Government during the ensuing four months, with the premium thereon, will release about 150 millions of invested capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek reinvestment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sixes

have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought

17 per cent. less than Ten-forties.
240 per cent. less than Five-twenties,
15 per cent. less than the Sixes of 1881,

and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price (at present) 93 and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1:

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $954.16.

$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $477.08.

$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $95.42.

Only a small amount of the latter denominations remains, and no more can be made. Bonds are in coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.

This debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company to enable it more speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work—the most important internal improvement now progressing in the country—is rapidly approaching completion. It will establish another and superior line of communication between the Atlantic and Mississippi valleys and the eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption; opening Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption; opening Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the political and commercial capitals of their country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line that the larger cities of the West are projecting feeders to connect with it, so as to avail themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are opened up to the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of reliable navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad carriage.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC SIX PER CENT. BONDS are as safe for investment as Government Bonds. Their amount fixed by act of Congress at $25,000 is nearly all in the property worth four times their value; they can only be sold to the money market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they are a ready money security in all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are steadily increasing, and will probably reach $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a handsome surplus after payment of expenses and interest, principal and interest, 10 to 102.

When the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, in 1872, and the Bonds are dealt in at the Stock Exchanges of the world, we have no doubt they will be equally popular with the Central Pacific. Both principal and interest of the CENTRAL PACIFIC and CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS are made doubly payable in gold in the New York; the interest on the former being paid January and July, and of the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.

We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, EIGHTEENS, 1881s, CENTRAL or WESTERN PACIFICS, or receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be forwarded by any responsible Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid.

P. S.—Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, on which we allow Four Per Cent. interest.

Certificates of deposit issued and collections made in all parts of the Union.

HARVEY FISK. o3 A. S. HATCH.

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.

The primary cause of Consumption is derange ment of the digestive organs. The derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutrient matter of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the cells of the body. Fevers, with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if our climate be cold, will very likely lead to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all morbid matter, and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose there is nothing to be compared to SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid matter that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and rouse it up to a healthy action, and healthy bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; the Stomach becomes sweet, there is an excess of acid, the organ is torpid, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the lacteals are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup unstirrs the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the lungs, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is so low pure. What is necessary to cure is a new order of things, a good appetite, a good nutrition, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off by the sputum, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, and a person may be cured if he will but do what is necessary. I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung; live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's Medicines will do to cure Consumption. They will clean out the stomach sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.

It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep in-doors in cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason. A man who has but partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is far more liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and is in every respect the same in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not genial and pleasant. Confined in consumptive lungs are a mass of ulcers, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The great secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to subdue inflammation instead of provoking it, as many of the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety be exposed to the cutting and chilling blasts of winter or the chilling winds of spring or autumn. It should be carefully shielded from all irritating influences, and without caution should be observed in this particular, no medicine will cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutritious diet, and all the medicines confined until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.

I was particularly fortunate in the treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty these many years, with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment, whom I have never seen.

About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

OVERBOARD.

"Heward Glyndon" sends to the New York Mail the following account of a seaside adventure encountered in the pursuit of knowledge:

I had never seen a sea anemone, and so one day at low tide we took a boat and rowed out to a certain spot among the rocks where they were to be found. As we glided along we saw through the water as through a glass the beautiful marine gardens and grottoes below us in which tiny fish were disporting themselves. Some of the mosses were perfectly lovely, and we could see the star-fish, yellow and pink, clinging to the rocks. We could see the anemones—then only dull and yellow splotches—far down in the water; but we could not get any of them, and so, stepping upon the rocks covered with wet and slippery sea-weed, we began to hunt for crabs and unlucky star-fish, left high, if not dry, by the tide.

After a little while I got tired of this, especially as my feet were uncomfortably wet, and so I thought I would go back to the boat and, hanging over its side, study at my leisure the wonders below the limpid waters. But my companions were at that moment absorbed in digging out a besieged crab, and I thought I would show how smart I was by getting into the boat without any help. This would have been easy under other circumstances, but here the rock rose abruptly out of the water, it was very slippery and slimy with the weeds, and I had to draw the boat up to the edge of the rock, hold her there and hop in at the same moment.

Now, a boat is like a frisky horse under these circumstances; it slides away just at the critical moment, and requires an expert to manage the operation of getting in successfully. But I could do it, of course, so I walked down the rock, and seizing the rope towed the boat up to the rock with her prow close against it, and then I sprang in just as she slided away when I dropped the rope—which was all very nice, you know, if that had been the end of it, but I did not calculate my equilibrium nicely enough. In the fraction of a second she tilted to one side before I could get off the seat into the bottom, and before I knew it or could make the least effort to save myself, I tumbled right over the side into the water with a splash.

I didn't say a word. My companions were at some distance with their backs to me. I thought that as I had got myself into such a scrape the more quickly I got out of it the less ridiculous I should be. I tried pretty hard for some seconds to clutch at the points of rock, and so climb up the rock, but the weight of my wet clothes kept me down, and finding that I should certainly, against my will, be made a convert to total immersion in a second or so, I gave a loud laugh, and at the same time called for help. Oh! what a rushing there was of two frightened people down to the water! What a laughing from that one in it, who was trying to keep her head above it, and who, although she infinitely preferred not to take "leaders" in her second best black silk dress, yet could see nothing but the absurdity of the position! At last this strange fish was safely landed, and it is to be hoped that all the little fish weren't frightened out of a year's growth by my tremendous splash, though I sadly fear they were.

"Oh! is it weed or fish or floating hair?" I quoted, half breathless when they got me out. And then, oh then! they put "this damp, moist, unpleasant body" into the boat and rowed her home with all speed. And this same damp, moist, unpleasant body was obliged to put herself on public exhibition as she walked the best way she could up to the Appledore House!

You know I had not the least idea of making my debut as a mermaiden with such speed, much as I was in love with the life.

But the noble aquatic hero who pulled me out of the water received a splendid medal the next day for saving my life. And which it was a brass locket which I found at the bottom of a "prize package" of pop-corn, and which was suspended from a discarded blue hair-ribbon.

THE SCHOOLHOUSE AS A SIGN.—There is no surer sign of a lack of intelligence and refinement in a neighborhood than a dilapidated and slovenly schoolhouse, its benches hacked with knives and stained with ink, its doors unhinged, its floor covered with dirt, its windows open to sun and rain. On the other hand, if you see a schoolhouse neat in design, freshly painted, in good repair, with a well-turfed yard filled with beautiful shade-trees, you instinctively infer that the families of the neighborhood are enterprising and intelligent. If the schoolhouse is what it ought to be, you are likely to find in it a competent teacher and well-behaved scholars. In such a neighborhood, moreover, you will be likely to find the farms well taken care of, the fences trim, the houses and barns in good repair. The town which neglects its schools is on the high road to ruin.—Oliver Johnson.

—Darden acted in the Dardenest manner imaginable after his acquittal at Washington, and was sent to the insane asylum.—Boston Post.

BUCHU

[From Dispensatory of the United States.]

DIOSMA CRENATA — BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.—Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections and Dropsy.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is used by persons from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 35 to 55, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-Wetting in children.

In affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus.

DISEASES OF THE BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.—This medicine increases the power of Digestion, and excites the Absorbents into healthy action, by which the Watery or Calcareous depositions and all Unnatural Enlargements are reduced, as well as Pains and Inflammation.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Diseases, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Instead of from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing more dreaded, for fear of themselves; no repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES—SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appear. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale at "less price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1871.

The Chicago Fire.

Thousands of people sleep on the ground. Ten thousand wealthy business men are left penniless. Women and children throng the streets and cook their food on the cornerstones. It is estimated that 200 persons were burned to death and hundreds of others trampled to death. Seven incendiaries caught while setting fire to the unburned portion of the city were hung or shot immediately. Fifteen hundred police and 500 troops are on duty. General Sheridan demands more troops to preserve order. There is nothing remaining standing from the river north to Lincoln Park on the north, and from the north branch of the river on the west to the lake on the east. This portion of the city except along the main river, where there were business blocks, was occupied by dwellings. Two thirds of the population of this district were Germans and Scandinavians.

Two fiends caught in the act of firing a house on the west side were arrested and immediately hung to lamp-posts.

The arrival of firemen and engines from Milwaukee, St. Louis and other cities restored confidence. There was inexpressible pleasure in seeing these experienced firemen go to work in a business way where work was most needed. They are playing on coal piles to save whatever of fuel is possible, and preventing a further spread of the flames. The vast plain is covered with people, wandering about seeing evidences of a wealth that has completely vanished in flames and smoke.

Water for drinking and household use is secured from the lake and the parks and for horses from the river. There are a thousand people camped about the artesian wells four miles out, and perhaps as many more at the lake and on Fullerton and Victor avenues, near the prairie. The people are being fed in the remaining churches and schoolhouses, in sheds and by the roadsides.

The cause of the fire is thus explained. Late on Sunday evening a boy went into a stable on Dekoven street, near the river on the west side, to milk a cow, carrying with him a kerosene lamp. This was kicked over by the cow, and the burning fluid scattered among the straw. A single extinguisher on the ground or active exertion of the police in tearing down one or two shanties, would have prevented the spreading of the flames, but the engines were waited for and when they arrived the firemen, stupefied by their exertions at the first fire on Saturday night, worked slowly and clumsily, and their efforts were unavailing. After the fire had spread alarmingly, the Mayor ordered several blocks of buildings to be blown up-but it was too late to save the city.

Three-quarters of a mile of brick blocks were consumed as if by magic. It seemed that no sooner had the flames struck a wall than it went directly through, and a very few moments sufficed to destroy the most elaborate built structure. The walls melted and the bricks were consumed. The wooden pavements took fire, making a continuous sheet of flames two miles by a mile wide. Block after block fell and red-hot coals shot higher and higher, and spread farther and farther, until the north side of Lake street was a vast sheet of flames from the river. Once so hemmed in were the people that it was expected that thousands must perish.

From 50,000 to 75,000 men, women and children were now fleeing by every available street and alley to the southward and westward, attempting to save their lives. Every vehicle was brought into requisition, for the use of which enormous prices were paid. Thousands of persons and horses inextricably commingled. Poor people of all colors and shades and of nationality, mad with excitement, struggled with each other to get away.

Many of the buildings situated along South Water Street buried their red hot rear walls in the river, into which they fell with a hiss.

In a burnt blacksmith shop in Rush Street, the bodies of fifteen men were found burned to a crisp, they having rushed into the shop to escape the flames, which surrounded them before they discovered their peril.

An immense number of people are missing; and, for the purpose of aiding in the discovery of the missing, a central intelligence office is established, where are collected the names of all the missing ones given to the police.

Four men entered a burning building, and in a moment they were overwhelmed by a falling wall. There was a crowd of men around the corner building trying to save property, when, the wall yielding, some were buried beneath it. Twelve or fifteen men, women and children rushed into the building of the Historical Society, a fire-proof building, for safety. In a few minutes the flames burst up and they were burned to death.

In one instance three families were surrounded and burned to death.

The total loss by the fire is estimated at $300,000,000—insured for $200,000,000.

Aid To The Sufferers.

The sympathies of every citizen in the United States with the sufferers by the Chicago fire lead to ready response to the call for aid. The War Department has ordered tents for the accommodation of 80,000 people; Massachusetts has sent the State militia's tents. The citizens of Washington have pledged $100,000, President Grant leading off with a subscription of $1000. The theatres in the principal cities advertise benefits. New York will send $2,000,000, A. T. Stewart leading off with $50,000, followed by $25,000 each from Vanderbilt, Roberts, Astor and Tweed. Fisk, Bonner, Law, Bennett, Brown Bros., Harper & Co., Appleton & Co., and others offer $10,000 to $20,000; a hundred thousand dollars' worth of articles of various kinds are already gone. Fisk & Hatch, Clews & Co., and Jay Cooke & Co. gave $10,000 each. The stock board donated $20,000. The Baltimore corn exchange appropriated $7000.

The citizens of Springfield sent $3700, Pittsfield $5000, and Holyoke $2000.

Kansas City gives $25,000, and Pittsburg gives $40,000.

Trenton gives $1000, Elmira $10,000, Syracuse $25,000, Middleton $1200, Niagara Falls $10,000 and four car loads of hams.

London, Canada gives $5000.

The Dominion Government has granted the use of a gunboat to carry provisions.

Montreal gives $20,000 and expects to raise it to $100,000.

The Commercial Exchange, of Philadelphia, subscribed $10,000 and sent two car loads of bread.

The Common Council, of Rochester, N. Y., appropriated $70,000 and sent forward provisions.

The Board of Trade of Troy, N. Y., has given $10,000.

The lumber dealers of Albany, N. Y., have raised $6000.

Poughkeepsie sent $4000. Wilmington sends $5000. Seneca Falls sends $3000.

A train of seven cars loaded with provisions started from New York city, Wednesday, going at the rate of 50 miles an hour.

The subscription of Boston reached $135,000.

Manchester has appropriated $15,000 from the city treasury. A meeting of citizens held here, at the City Rooms, Wednesday morning, was organized by the choice of Mayor Adams as Chairman, and Hon. M. Bufford as Secretary. The Mayor, C. H. Meadum and Wm. R. Preston were appointed a committee to solicit contributions, and quite a sum of money was subscribed by those present. The committee immediately proceeded to call on our wealthy citizens and were enthusiastically engaged in the good work at last accounts.

The sail makers employed at the Navy Yard have subscribed $54 for the sufferers by the Chicago fire. There are but seventeen men employed at the present time, and all contributed equally.

It has been decided to have a benefit concert of sacred music next Sunday evening at the Temple, thereby giving every citizen an opportunity to contribute to the relief fund. Messrs. Preston, Harlow, Stavers, Pearson, Butler and others are engaged in the movement.

The Insurance Losses

Consequent on the Chicago fire bid fair to ruin many Western and some Eastern insurance companies and cripple others. Hartford companies lose about $10,000,000 but will meet every claim. One result of the great fire will be the adoption of higher premium rates. Insurance men say that all the companies in Illinois have been undoubtedly ruined by the fire. Their total assets are only $6,746,090, which will be wiped out, together with the $5,000,000 of cash capital.

New York will be a large loser by the fire. It is estimated she has lent Chicago in various ways, including mortgages on real estate, etc., not less than one hundred million dollars, and not more than half this sum at most can ever be paid. One business man while dining at his hotel, received a despatch informing him of the destruction of his property. He simply remarked, "That ruins me; waiter, a little more roast beef." An elderly gentleman, closely scanning the papers, asked at the hotel if State Street was in the burned district. Being informed it was, he said, "My son was in business there, and every dollar he and I had was invested; we are both ruined."

New Publications.

Ballou's Magazine for November has a spirited tale of adventure in China, quite a number of illustrated articles and several stories, the whole interesting. In the list of contents are: The Tichborne Case, The Portuguese Man of War, With what Measure ye Mete, What they wore—Jacks or Packs, Sketches of Travel in California and many other articles. $1.50 per year. Thomes & Talbot, 66 Congress Street, Boston.

LARGE FIRES are reported in a half dozen places in Michigan. The village of Holland has been destroyed. Urbana, Illinois, is also destroyed by fire.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

Fevers seldom make an attack without warning; and may often be thrown off by soaking the feet in warm water, wrapping up warm in bed, and taking two or three of "Parson's Purgative Pills."

A Missionary just returned, says he regards "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment" as beyond all price, and efficacious beyond any other medicine. It is adapted to a great variety of special cases, and is the best pain killer in the world.

THE EUROPEAN QUESTION.

What is the European question to us? Let the crowned heads fight it out while we supply their armies with provisions.

THE AMERICAN QUESTION

The Warning has been Heeded.

Since the exposure of the attempts made by certain unscrupulous local dealers, to palm off their coarse astringents, made from cheap and impure materials, in the place of the great national tonic, HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, public opinion has set strongly against these empirics and their preparations. Their occupation is gone, or soon will be. When the light is let into deception it soon wilts down. Persons who trifle with their own health, by using unknown preparations, with no guarantee to sustain them, when an established specific, proven by twenty years experience to be exactly what it is claimed to be, is within their reach, are sure to repent their temerity. Many have done so in this instance, but it is hoped that the truth plainly spoken has arrested the evil. In the meantime the demand for the leading protective and restorative medicine of America was never so great as it has been this season. From the fever and ague districts of the west, south west, and south, it is literally overwhelming, and it may be said of the advices from all parts of the country of the cures it is effecting in dispepsia, bilious complaints, and chronic constipation, that "their name is legion." Everywhere the sick and feeble seem to have realized the importance of "holding fast that which is good," and of avoiding what is spurious and dangerous.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

—IF SO, USE THE—

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in the favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years. It will not blister in the hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the LOCAL AFFAIRS.

New Advertisements to-day.

At the Temple—Mr. and Mrs. Milburn.
House For Sale—Wm. Chandler.
Insurance—A. F. Howard.

Schooner Telegraph,

Of Providence, R. I., from New York for this city with coal, went ashore on Chatham Bar on the night of Oct. 11. She was still tight at last accounts, and it was hoped she would be got off.

Mr. James Doyle

Of Great Falls left this city for Lewiston on Saturday and was found drowned at Portland on Monday. He had acted in a manner leading people to come to the conclusion that he was insane.

Duprez & Benedict's

New Orleans Troupe of minstrels will give one performance in the Temple to-morrow evening, Oct. 13. Their burlesques, eccentricities and oddities are perfect panaceas for all "the ills that flesh is heir to" in the way of blues. Let all those who enjoy a first class minstrel entertainment attend.

The Villa & Miner Company

Finished their short engagement here last evening. We can commend them to our brethren of the press as performers far above the average of travelling troupes. Several of this company are unexcelled in their specialities—among others Agnes Wallace as "Polly Eccles" and J. B. Murphy as "Eccles," in "Caste." Delehanty & Hengler are too well known to need mention.

The Fourth Annual Convention

Of the Y. M. C. Associations of the State closed the session in this city by a Farewell Meeting at the North Church Wednesday evening. The attendance has been large, over one hundred delegates being present; and the meetings have been well attended,—particularly the Praise Meeting on Tuesday evening under charge of Prof. Tourjee. The Press was represented in the choice of Bro. E. O. Foss of the Dover Local Record, as President of the Convention.

All Members

And former members of the Portsmouth Philharmonic Soc'y, and of church Choirs, and all other singers willing to aid in a Sacred Concert, assisted by Harlow's Band, for the benefit of the Chicago sufferers, are requested to meet at the Temple at 7 o'clock precisely, Saturday evening, for a rehearsal. It is the intention to give the Concert Sunday evening. The "Continental Harmony" will be used. All singers having copies are requested to bring them.

President Grant

Will pass through this city on Tuesday next. He is to take part in the festivities attending the opening of the European & North American Railroad on Wednesday. The Eastern Railroad Company has improved the palace-car formerly known as the "Corinth," and now called the "Bangor." This car is designed for the use of President Grant when he goes to Bangor, and broad-gauge trucks have been provided for it for use on the European and North American Railroad.

Came Brothers' Sale

Of new Carriages, Horses, Harnesses, &c., at their Repository in this city, announced for the 21st instant, will afford an unequaled opportunity to procure good teams at low prices. The carriages are not of the common or cheap sale sort, but are taken from the first class stock manufactured by Messrs. Came,—who intend to have regular semi-annual trade sales of carriages, &c., as has long been the custom in Boston, Portland and all places where carriages are manufactured to any extent. Purchasers can fully rely on all articles sold being as good as represented; and doubtless the prices will be much lower than regular trade prices for the same quality articles.

Police Affairs.

A complaint was made at the Police Station, Tuesday evening, to the effect that one Patrick Kiley and his wife were having a quarrel in their house on Bow Street, and disturbing the whole neighborhood with their noise. Officers Entwistle and Barsantee at once proceeded to the place and entered, and found Mrs. Kiley entirely nude, her body bruised and her nose bleeding, and her husband holding her by the throat,—the woman drunk and the man sober. The latter was taken to the lockup, and owned that he struck his wife two or three times. He was brought up at the Police Court on Wednesday, and got off on payment of $1 fine and $5.76 costs.

John Dow of Newington, John Ryan and Richard Grace, paid $3 fine and $5.76 costs, each, for being drunk.

The Andes

Insurance Company, of Cincinnati, telegraph as follows: "Andes sound. Push on the business." C. A. Hazlett is the Agent in this city.

The Insurance Companies

Represented in this city by Morse & Ilsley are all strong enough to weather the disaster caused by the Chicago fire. None of them are sufficiently interested to be embarassed by their losses.

Not Intoxicated.

The crew of the schooner from which Mr. Hiram D. Briggs was drowned last Monday evening state that he was not intoxicated at the time. Mr. Briggs was a lame man and fell overboard while going down a rope ladder. After striking the water he seemed unable to help himself and appeared partially stunned by the fall. Before aid could reach him he was drowned.

The Elections.

Clark, Republican, is probably elected to Congress in the 3d District of Texas. Herndon, Democrat, has 1507 majority in the 1st District, Conner, Democrat, 1500 in the 2d, and Hancock, Democrat, 3640 in the 4th.

The municipal election in Newark, N. J., resulted in the election of Ricord, Republican, for Mayor, by 1200 majority, a gain of 1000. Nine of the 17 Aldermen are Republicans, as are 21 of the 30 members of the Common Council.

Stokeley, Republican, is elected Mayor of Philadelphia by a majority of 8137, a gain of 1238. The State has gone Republican by at least 15,000. The Republicans gain two members of the Legislature in Philadelphia and four in Lucerne; also two senators, giving them a majority in both Houses. The majority for a State Convention is overwhelming.

The Senate will be composed of 18 Republicans and 15 Democrats, and the House of 59 Republicans and 41 Democrats. This ensures the election of a Republican U. S. Senator.

Returns from thirteen additional counties give 6276 Democratic majority, a Republican gain of 1244.

Ohio elects Noyes, Republican, for Governor by 25,000 majority. Hamilton county gave a Republican majority of 2000.

—What an ineffably funny old party Tilden is. He made a speech upon opening the Rochester convention, and this is the way he rattled it off to them on the centripetal and centrifugal tendencies:

"The equilibrium of our whole political system is in danger of being overthrown, and a despotic and corrupt centralism established. The whole value of the arrangement by which our world is kept in its place in the solar system is in the balance between two opposing forces. It would matter little to us which of these forces should be allowed to prevail. If the centrifugal tendency dominated, our planet would shoot madly into the realms of endless space, far away from the sources of heat and light and life, until every living thing upon its surface would perish. If the centripetal tendency should dominate the earth would rush with inconceivable velocity toward the sun, until it should be engulfed in the burning mass."

Charming! isn't it? And the delightful patriots who listened to him will undoubtedly go home and vote twenty or thirty times apiece at the next election to save our planet from shooting madly into the realms of endless space, and then count every vote two or three times over, so as to prevent the earth from rushing with inconceivable velocity toward the sun, until it is engulfed in the burning mass.—Hartford Post.

—The Revolution, having learned that pretty lady canvassers for woman newspapers are going about hugging the men in order to obtain subscribers, says: "If any one connected with this paper ever resorts to such a course to obtain a subscriber or an advertisement, we beg to be apprised of the fact, that her connection with it may be cancelled at once." Thus it is that poor girls are checked in every attempt to help themselves. But why couldn't a fortune be made by starting out some of the long, lean, bloodless, scraggy woman-women, with directions to threaten to hug any man who refuses to "come down." There's money in the idea.

—The Manchester Union wants a Democratic majority of ten in the House of Representatives and one in the Senate next year—and will continue to want it.—Portsmouth Chronicle.

Very likely, if the Portsmouth Radicals come to the House en masse as they did last year.—Union.

The Radicals are coming just as they did last year, and will stay. There will not be a shadow of a contest on the ratable poll business by the Democracy.

THE DEBT of Chicago is $14,417,421.45.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS.
Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.
WHAT ARE THEY!
THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,
Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetisers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.
For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.
DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.
They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.
FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.
Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.
PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.
FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. Send for a circular.
They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawf&w16

New Hampshire Items.

The New Hampshire Orphans' Home, recently located on the Daniel Webster farm in Franklin, will be opened with appropriate exercises on Thursday, Oct. 19, at 11 o'clock A. M. Addresses will be made by Gov. Weston, Pres. Smith of Dartmouth College, Pres. Miner of Tufts College, Senator Patterson, Congressman Bell and others. The addresses will be followed by a Collation and Fair for the benefit of the Home, to which all are invited to contribute,—the farmer giving products of his farm; the manufacturer or mechanic articles of his manufacture. Provisions, furniture, cutlery, and crockery, for the furnishing of the Home,—clothing and bedding for the orphans' use, are especially solicited. If any article should be contributed that is not needed it will be sold at the Fair, and the proceeds be applied towards the expenses of furnishing the Institution. The ladies are expected to assist in managing the Collation. The plan to be adopted is, for cities, towns, societies, or individuals, to unite in furnishing separate tables by themselves, the provisions to be sold for the benefit of the Home, upon such terms as may be agreed on the day of opening. The occasion promises to be one of great interest,—this Institution being the first of the kind upon this plan in the United States. All are cordially invited to assist in the opening of the Home, and make it what it should be, a blessing to those who have none to help them, and a great honor to the State. Music will be furnished by Franklin and other bands. The Railroads will carry for half fare. All societies, cities and towns, or individuals intending to furnish tables, should at once inform Hon. Geo. W. Nesmith of Franklin. All articles designed for furnishing the Home or Fair should be sent as soon as possible to him.

Mr. J. Gott of Sandwich was recently killed by the accidental discharge of his gun while chasing a fox. His head was completely shattered.

Copper has been found in Raymond, and Professor Hitchcock pronounces the ore very rich in the metal.

Twenty-five boys escaped on Monday from the State reform school at Manchester. About half of them were overtaken and secured.

On the 10th, when the passenger train over the Wilton Railroad was near the station at Milford, a man named John Morrill was seen by the fireman to throw himself upon the track in front of the locomotive. His head fell upon the rail and was completely severed and thrown some distance. The body was carried under the engine and torn in pieces. The deceased was an engineer. He had been sick for three or four days, had quarrelled with his wife, and was discouraged, and had threatened suicide Monday night. A wife and three children survive him.

Mr. John Colby of Concord, a section hand on the Montreal Road, caught his clothes in the crank of a hand car and was thrown off, breaking one shoulder.

The police have recaptured Michael Shea, one of the four prisoners who escaped from the officers in Nashua last week; he was arraigned before Judge Smith on Tuesday, and was sentenced to the State prison for a term of three years. His offence is breaking and entering stores in Manchester and Nashua.

—Among our visitors to-day is Hon. Frederick Smyth, of Manchester, N. H., ex-Governor of the State, who came up from Kansas City this morning especially to spend the day in Denver. We remember when we were a child of hearing the Governor, when a young man, referred to as a model for others to pattern by, and the years since then have proved how well the model was taken. From a poor lad, he became a man of wealth, the Mayor of the chief city in the State for more years than any other it ever had, and the Governor of his State, when to be Governor well was a hard task. With Governor Andrew of Massachusetts, he ranked at the head of Northern State Executives in patriotism and untiring energy during the war, and the ex-soldiers of his State will always remember him with gratitude as their true friend. He is now one of the trustees of the National Asylums for disabled soldiers, and has recently been in attendance on a meeting of the trustees at Dayton, O. CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.

BANKING OFFICE OF
FISK & HATCH,
No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.
September 26th, 1871.

Of the FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $4,000,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.

The five years' option having expired on all series of FIVE-TWENTY BONDS, except 1867s and 1868s, they are liable to be called in for payment. The redemption of 100 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchase by the Government during the ensuing four months, with the premium thereon, will release about 150 millions of invested capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek reinvestment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sixes

have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought

17 per cent. less than Ten-forties.
20 per cent. less than Five-twenties,
25 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,

and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price (at present) 93 and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1.

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $934.16.

$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $467.08.

$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $93.42.

Only a small amount of the latter denominations remains, and no more can be made. Bonds are in coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.

This debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company in order more speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of the James River & Ohio River, thus work —the most important internal improvement now progressing in the country— to rapidly approaching completion. It will establish another and superior line of communication between the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the Eastern States, and nearer to the political and commercial capitals of their country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line that the larger cities of the West are projecting feeders to connect with it, so as to avail themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are passing into the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of reliable navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad carriage.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC SIX PER CENT. BONDS are as safe for investment as Government Bonds. Their amount fixed by act of Congress at $25,885,000, is secured by property worth four times their value; they can only be bought in the open market, and have been purchased in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they have a ready market in all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are steadily increasing, and will probably reach $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a handsome surplus after payment of expenses and interest. Present price, 101½ to 102.

When the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, both principal and interest of all the Stock Exchanges of the world, we have no doubt they will be equally popular with the Central Bonds. Both principal and interest of the CENTRAL PACIFIC and CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS are specifically payable in gold coin in New York. Interest on the former being paid January and July, and of the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.

We now offer to sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, EIGHTY-ONES, and CENTRAL OR WESTERN PACIFICS, or receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied by Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be forwarded by any responsible Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid. FISK & HATCH.

P. S.—Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, on which we allow Four Per Cent. Interest.

Certificates of deposit issued and collections made in all parts of the Union.

HARVEY FISK. o3 A. S. HATCH.

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.

The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. Assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slight est predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then strengthen up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.

When the stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ is torpid, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the food is apt to sour, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and healthy; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of healthy digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic gives up purifies the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get the good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is a new order of things, a good appetite, a good nutrition, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; that Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, and if a person is very bad, it the lungs are not entirely broken down or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up, there is hope.

I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's medicines will do to cure Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.

It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep in-doors in cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason. A man who has but partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is far more liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and it is precisely the same in regard to Consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not genial and pleasant. Confirmed consumptives' lungs are a mass of sores, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The grand secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to subdue inflammation instead of provoking it, as many of the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety to the patient be exposed to the biting influence of winter or the chilling winds of spring or autumn. It should be carefully shielded from all irritating influence. The utmost caution should be observed in this particular, as without it a cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutritious diet, and the medicines continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.

I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty these many years, with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment whom I have never seen.

About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

The Chronicle.

TO THE CITIZENS OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.—The Legislature of the present year passed the following resolution:

Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives, convened:

That His Excellency the Governor, by advice of the Honorable Council, shall appoint three persons, who shall act as a committee to collect material and present a plan for the organization of a Bureau of Labor Statistics at the next session of the Legislature. Said committee shall keep an accurate account of their expenses, and of the time consumed in the performance of their duties, and shall receive such remuneration as the Governor and Council may allow, provided the whole sum does not exceed three hundred dollars.

In conformity with this resolution, the undersigned have been appointed Commissioners on Bureau of Labor Statistics.

In fulfillment of the duties of our appointment, we shall be under the necessity of collecting facts relating to the object we have in view from every available source. We are particularly desirous of gaining information relative to the condition of workingmen, in all departments of labor, in the early settlements of the State. We would like to hear from every town what was the general condition of farmers? What the prices paid for labor on the farm? The times of taking their meals? and their usual food? The condition of the dwelling and outbuildings? and what of their clothing? What was paid as wages of female servants in farmer's families? What were the principal occupations of such help? and their hours of labor?

And of shoemakers—What was considered a day's work; What the prices paid? How many hours in a day's work? In what manner was the business conducted?

And so of joiners, blacksmiths, tailors, teamsters, and of men and women engaged in any manufacturing or mechanical business in the State.

We would be thankful for any facts, such as may be obtained from old account books or the recollections of aged men, in regard to the usual cost of articles of general consumption, and the prices received for articles usually sold from the farm and workshop; and for items of this kind we would like the date or year referred to in the statement given.

We would also be glad to ascertain what advantages children had for obtaining an education, and what were the usual literary attainments of laboring people—men and women.

Our object in making these inquiries is to show the condition of laborers at this day as compared with that of their predecessors twenty, fifty, or a hundred years ago. All such communications will be thankfully received, and their receipt acknowledged, if they are not incorporated in our report.

Correspondents, in reply to this circular, are requested to send their communications to Samuel Flint, of Lyme, Chairman of the Board.

BUCHU

[From Dispensatory of the United States.]

DIOSMA CRENATA — BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.—Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections and Dropsy.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is used by persons from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 35 to 55, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-Wetting in children.

In affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus.

DISEASES OF THE BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.—This medicine increases the power of Digestion, and excites the Absorbents into healthy action, by which the Watery or Calcareous depositions and all Unnatural Enlargements are reduced, as well as Pains and Inflammation.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Diseases, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is Diuretic and Blood-Purifying, and cures all diseases arising from habits of dissipation, excesses and imprudences in life, impurities of the Blood, etc., superceding Copaiba in affections for which it is used in connection with

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU.

For Weakness Arising from Excesses or Early Indiscretion,

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES—SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appears. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale as "less price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1871.

The Chicago Fire.

Forty-one persons were shot in making arrests on the night of the 10th. Twelve hundred persons lost their lives during the fire.

The total loss of grain is now definitely ascertained to be 1,600,000 bushels. All the populated portions of the city are now supplied with water.

It is reported from Chicago that seventy convicts were in the prison attached to the Court House. A large number of people gathered about the building, and clamored for the turnkey to release the prisoners. He showed himself and said the building was perfectly fireproof, and no harm could result to those confined, and he should not release the convicts. Soon the building was enveloped in flames.

All the banks will be able to resume. A number of vaults have been opened and the contents are uninjured. Every bank claims that in time they will be able to pay every dollar of their indebtedness. The police continue to capture thieves, burglars and incendiaries. They generally deal with them summarily, thus preventing further trouble. Two eight-cylinder presses of the Chicago Tribune are safe and ready for use as soon as steam is attached. Five hundred people escaped on a barge, which floated out of the river into the lake.

The Relief committee from Cincinnati erected an immense soup house, complete in all its details, and are ready to distribute 6000 gallons of soup daily.

Portland subscribed $1000 on Wednesday. Large subscriptions are being made in London and Liverpool. A Chicago despatch says immense quantities of provisions have arrived, among them many carloads cooked ready for distribution. The committee telegraphed to several places to stop sending more at present. Twenty carloads of provisions and 10,000 blankets came from Cincinnati, and twenty cars from St. Louis. Large quantities of provisions have arrived from other cities. All the railroads leading out of Chicago are carrying the homeless to other places free. The common council passed an ordinance fixing the price of bread at eight cents for a loaf of twelve ounces, and fixing the penalty at $10 for violation of the ordinance.

[illegible] dred persons have been taken from the ruins. None of them have as yet been identified. The remains of sixty victims were found in the ruins of one barn.

The Tribune, Post, Mail, and Journal all appeared Wednesday with small sheets hurriedly gotten up in various kinds of type, and sold from 25 cents to $1 each. They are filled with the shocking details of the great calamity, and contain a long list of dead and missing.

New York insurance companies lost $50,000,000, less 10 to 20 per cent. salvage.

Boston's subscription amounts to over $200,000. Mr. Nathaniel Thayer gave $10,000.

Communicated.

CHESTER FAIR.—The Rockingham County Fair is down. No marvel. It was so live a year ago that it had for President one who never knew much about agriculture,—not so much by far as about Second Adventism.

When it was seen that the County Fair was coming to nothing the Piscataqua Fair was established, and the enterprising town of Chester instituted one for itself. The latter was held this year on Oct. 3d. In the morning the town team appeared on the common near the Town Hall. There were 39 pairs of oxen. Bond's Band from Boston furnished music, a hollow square was formed and Hon. T. J. Melvin, the President, introduced as speakers J. O. Adams, Esq., of Manchester, Hon. Simon Brown of Concord, Mass., and Judge French of Boston. The two last were formerly Chester men.

Sometimes a fair is important not only for what is there, but for what is not. There was no horse-racing at this one. There were however a few fine horses for exhibition, good cows and sheep, and the best swine we ever saw at any fair. Fruits, bread, cheese, needlework, &c., were exhibited in the Town Hall. These were extensively shown and very fine,—better than those often seen at County Fairs. There were better traces of corn than those exhibited for premiums at the State Fair last year. There was speaking in the evening, and the whole day passed very pleasantly to the large gathering present.

J.

THERE ARE FEARS that 200 persons have perished in the Wisconsin fires.

Disastrous Fires.

The news from Michigan is of the most distressing character. All of that portion of the State east of Saginaw Bay and north of a point forty miles above Port Huron has been completely swept by a fire. A number of persons have perished. The villages of Forestville, White Rock, Elm Creek, Sand Beach and Huron city are entirely destroyed. Rock Falls and Port Hope are partially destroyed.

At all these towns there were large stores, many filled with winter stocks, extensive saw mills, shingle mills, and docks covered with lumber, all of which were swept away. It is said but one block is left on the shore about Forestville. Five children perished near Rock Falls. R. B. Hubbard, at Huron City, shot all his cattle to prevent their perishing by fire. He loses heavily, having a large store, mills, docks, and other property.

New Hampshire Items.

In West Concord, on the 11th, a man named Albert, a stone-quarry man, unmarried, and aged 23 years, stood with a gun in his hand. He set the butt of the gun heavily on the ground, when it exploded, sending a charge of shot under his chin and through his brain, killing him instantly.

Mr. George Tilton of Kensington left his home on Tuesday, and has not been seen since. He is a man about fifty years of age, and a farmer in good circumstances. It is supposed that he was temporarily insane.

Fenian Raid.

Gen. O'Neill's force crossed the border at Pembina on the 11th and seized the Canadian custom house and the Post of the Hudson Bay Co. U.S. troops attacked and dispersed them and captured O'Neill.

Elections.

The Chairman of the Pennsylvania Republican Committee telegraphs that the State gives eighteen thousand majority, with a gain of seven Representatives and two Senators.

A YANKEE TRICK.—The American fishing schooner Edward A. Horton, of Gloucester, recently seized by the Dominion cutter Sweepstakes, for violation of the fishery law, and taken into Guysborough to await the decision of the vice Admiralty Court, was stolen Sunday night by unknown parties. There was a cargo of fish in her. A store was broken open, and the vessel's [illegible] Oct. 4. It is supposed that her rescuers were American seamen from the straight of Canso, assisted by a vessel outside. No trace of the vessel is left, except a part of a cable, which was cut and left behind. The rescue creates a sensation in Halifax.

AT THE FITCHBURG MUSTER, on the 10th, the first prize, $400, was taken by Rough and Ready of Westfield; the 2d, $200, by Torrent of Malboro; the 3d, $100, by Tiger of Lynn, all Massachusetts companies. The distances played were, respectively, 196 feet 3 inches; 191 feet 3 inches; and 189 feet 3 inches.

Only 17 Steamers competed. Steamer Fire King of Manchester threw a stream 211 feet, 6 inches, and took the only prize for 1st class steamers. Niagara of Nashua played 252 feet, 8 inches, and took first prize for 2d class steamers. The muster was far behind that of Portsmouth in numbers.

THE PORTLAND ALDERMEN have passed an order directing that after January 1, 1872, the agreement to pay the water company the sum of $4000 annually for water for drinking fountains, and other purposes not specifically agreed to under the charter, shall be rescinded. The cause of this action is alleged to be that the water company has not fully complied with those provisions of the charter granting the city the free use of water for certain purpetual right to run the water pipes through the streets.

THE ATTEMPT to indict Controller Conolly has fallen through. Vigilance committees, to compel the election canvassers to do right, are said to have been organized in thirteen New York wards.

THE NEW CANCER CURE.—A citizen of high standing at Chicago took his wife to Dr. Bliss at Washington, to be treated for cancer. The case was a most serious one. He tried the cundurango and awaited the result. In two weeks the cancer exhibited alarming signs, threatening with death from bleeding. An operation with the knife was resolved upon, and this soon explained the condition the cancer had assumed. The immense growth had become entirely separated from the flesh, but had prevented the latter from healing. As soon as the cancer was removed the flesh beneath was found free from disease and the lady rapidly recovered, and is now at her home in this city free from every sign or symptom of cancer.—Chicago Tribune.

—A shell, during the height of the bombardment of Strasbourg, passed through one of the beautifully painted windows of the cathedral, flew across the nave, and smashing to pieces the organ pipes lodged in the very heart of the grand organ, which is one of the wonders of Europe. Had the shell exploded the organ the greater part of the cathedral would have been destroyed, but strange to say, this missile remained imbedded in the centre of the musical instrument without doing further damage. It has now been extracted, and has been placed in the aisle of the cathedral on a marble pedestal, bearing an inscription which gives the date and a description of the occurrence.

—The New York Commercial Advertiser says: "Poor Cuba still struggles." We wish somebody would put a head on 'poor Cuba'—a real unmistakable mansard roof, with all the modern improvements. Either this, or let the two hostile factions, like Capt. Reid's snakes, swallow each other, and be done with it; otherwise, we shall soon have Cuba and the cholora combined.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

Fevers seldom make an attack without warning; and may often be thrown off by soaking the feet in warm water, wrapping up warm in bed, and taking two or three of "Parson's Purgative Pills."

A Missionary just returned, says he regards "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment" as beyond all price, and efficacious beyond any other medicine. It is adapted to a great variety of special cases, and is the best pain killer in the world.

THE EUROPEAN QUESTION.

What is the European question to us? Let the crowned heads fight it out while we supply their armies with provisions.

THE AMERICAN QUESTION

as to the best method of clothing gray heads with glossy brown or raven black is, however, a matter of vast importance to millions of both sexes in this country. It

AS A FASTENING FOR

BOOTS AND SHOES.

Is rapidly and steadily superseding both Thread and Pegs. Besides furnishing the most durable, pliable and economical boot ever offered the public, it affords an article more nearly than ever before made of the same materials.

All Dealers sell Cable Screwed Wired Goods. Patent Stamp on all.

The Warning has been Heeded.

Since the exposure of the attempts made by certain unscrupulous local dealers, to palm off their coarse astringents, made from cheap and impure materials, in the place of the great national tonic, HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, public opinion has set strongly against these empirics and their preparations. Their occupation is gone, or soon will be. When the light is let into deception it soon wilts down. Persons who trifle with their own health, by using unknown preparations, with no guarantee to sustain them, when an established specific, proven by twenty years experience to be exactly what it is claimed to be, is within their reach, are sure to repent their temerity. Many have done so in this instance, but it is hoped that the truth plainly spoken has arrested the evil. In the meantime the demand for the leading protective and restorative medicine of America was never so great as it has been this season. From the fever and ague districts of the west, south west, and south, it is literally overwhelming, and it may be said of the advices from all parts of the country of the cures it is effecting in dispepsia, bilious complaints, and chronic constipation, that "their name is legion." Everywhere the sick and feeble seem to have realized the importance of "holding fast that which is good," and of avoiding what is spurious and dangerous.

IN arranging the programme for a course of Popular Lectures, Readings, &c., to be given in the

for the season of 1871—2, the committee believe this list has the largest number of distinguished names ever offered to the Portsmouth public, and that the Course will present attractions not surpassed in point of interest and variety. They will appear in the order announced:

NOV. 9, Rev. W. H. H. MURRAY. Subject: "Deacons." A new lecture.

DEC. 21, Mrs. MARY A. LIVERMORE, Subject: 'What shall we do with our Daughters?'

JAN. 4, PROF. MOSES T. BROWN, and DR. J. H. WILLCOX. Entertainment: Organ Concert, Miscellaneous Readings, by Prof. Brown, from favorite authors, with some character sketches. Organ: Recitals by Dr. Willcox performed on the fine new organ recently placed in this church.

JAN. 11, Prof. C. H. HITCHCOCK. Subject: "Life above the Clouds; or, Mt. Washington in Midwinter," illustrated with noted Stereoscopic Views of frost work, exhibited by the aid of a Stereoptican and Calcium Light.

The organ will be exhibited each evening.

TICKETS for this Course are now ready, at the stores of Messrs. Shores, Preston, Thacher and Bill.

PRICE $1.50 FOR THE COURSE.

Aid for Chicago.

The first box of clothing for the Chicago sufferers, from this city, leaves via Trafton & Co.'s Express this (Friday) morning.

The first money to go from Portsmouth was taken by a delegate in attendance on the recent Y. M. C. A. Convention. While the Convention was engaged in the details of organizing, Tuesday forenoon, Bro. Foss of the Dover Local Record suggested that the members should show their faith by their works, and take a collection at once in aid of the sufferers who had just been prayed for. The "hat" was immediately put in circulation, and considerably more than $100 was collected in a few minutes. Practical Christianity that—anybody can understand it.

Notices in our advertising columns announce that clothing, blankets and other articles will be promptly forwarded if left with Messrs. Stavers and Preston at the office of the Temple, or with the Ladies' Committee at the Unitarian Chapel on Court Street. All should remember that the destitute in Chicago are suffering at the present time and that gifts handed in at once will do the greatest amount of good.

The Naval Officers attached to this Station have raised a subscription of $250. The city committee have raised $2500 thus far.

The Benefit Concert, Sunday evening, should draw more people than the Temple can hold. We have but one fault to find with the arrangements—the tickets are placed too cheap; but if any one chooses to give one dollar or five for a ticket, no doubt the money will not be refused. We presume there will be no "free list" whatever, and we hope there isn't a person in Portsmouth whose soul is so small as to go in on a free ticket, if there should be any. Aside from the object, the Concert will be a good one.

Mr. George Vandenhoff of this city has offered his services to read for the benefit of the sufferers. The proprietors of Congress Hall have tendered the use of the Hall free of expense. It is thought that Monday evening will be selected and that the tickets of admission will be put at $1.

Communicated.

The citizens of Portsmouth and its vicinity, one and all, who feel disposed to give aid (be it large or small) to the residents of this charred city of the West are requested to call at the stores of Messrs. C. H. Mendum or William R. Preston, and leave the amount of their contributions. At a meeting of the citizens of Portsmouth, these gentlemen were chosen with the Mayor a committee to solicit contributions, and all such will be duly forwarded.

It is useless at the present moment to enlarge upon the immediate calls for assistance from what has heretofore been one of the most thriving and energetic cities of the Union. Chicago is in ashes. Built up mostly by New England enterprise and capital, the home of many of our New Hampshire and Portsmouth young men, we all feel an interest in her prosperity and in her adversity. Such a calamity as she has experienced may in a day happen to us, and who would have been more liberal in contributions than Chicago? Come forward, then, young and old, rich and poor; your donations are voluntary. It is not proposed to tax the city as such, but let your contributions come forth as your heart and purse prompt and enable you to do, from the widow's mite to the rich abundance. W. R. P.

The sympathies of some of the ladies of our city have already been manifested in the application of their fingers and their sewing machines for the benefit of the suffering and homeless at Chicago. A large box of clothing has been quickly made and (together with contributions from the benevolent) is ready for despatch, and it is hoped that the notice in your columns this morning will bring forth from the abundant wardrobes of the well to do, a larger contribution yet for the necessities of the poor who have lost their all just as the cold fall and winter weather is coming upon them. B.

Was It A Meteor?

At about 7 o'clock, Wednesday evening, a bright light was seen in the air in a south-easterly direction. It is reported by some as appearing like a flash of lightning, and by others as looking like a meteor. It was seen in Boston and other places at the same time, and caused some wonderment as to its origin.

Ordered.

Second Assistant Engineer Wm. H. Warren is ordered to Revenue Cutter Nansemond at Savannah.

More Rain

Fell in this city on Wednesday and Thursday than during any storm for two years past. The weather cleared with a "blow."

A True Copy—Attest.

For strikingly life-like pictures of the editor of the local Democratic organ of this city at the ages of 19, 24 and 33, see his paper of Oct. 12th.

Insurance.

Mr. John M. Davis makes an exhibit of the standing of several Insurance Companies for which he is Agent in this city, in our advertising columns.

An Ordinance

Of the city provides for the payment of bills on the 2d Saturday in each month. All bills therefore must be presented on or before the 5th day of the month.

Prolific.

Mr. Hiram C. Locke has on exhibition at his confectionery store on Market Street a branch of a pear tree about 16 inches long, raised in his garden, on which were twenty pears.

More Cars.

The Taunton Car Company have contracted to build the Eastern Railroad four more fine first-class passenger cars, two of which will be out this month, and two in November.

Go Slow.

It is stated that the County Commissioners are not quite ready to concede that the new Democratic Sheriff can appoint the Messenger to the Court, and remove the present incumbent.

I. O. O. F.

The annual meetng of the R. W. G. Encampment of this State was held at Nashua, on the 10th. Mr. James Hartshorn of this city was elected Grand Representative to the U. S. Grand Lodge.

A Curiosity.

In the window of J. H. Thacher's store on Market Square can be seen a monster Cone taken from a sugar pine tree in California. It was brought to this city by Dr. J. W. Parsons, who procured it during his late visit to that State. It is quite an ornament as well as a curiosity.

Duprez & Benedict's

Minstrels may be seen and heard at the Temple this (Friday) Evening. They have achieved fame in all parts of the United States. Their performances are well calculated to take the audience back to the days of the celebrated New Orleans serenaders. Lew Benedict is known of all men and Chas. H. Duprez never manages a poor show.

The Copper Horn

Has come out with illustrations, and toots out a two-column tune which is as lively as the tenth chapter of Genesis. Much wit and wisdom are in it, of the most abstruse kind—so abstruse as not to be discernable. The composer's head and his tune are both level — in other words, flat, — and he should publish an explanatory key when he next attempts to be witty.

Pearl Fishery.

A fisherman in the employ of Marvin Bros. & Bartlett, cod liver oil manufacturers, of this city, caught a big oyster on his trawl line in the deep water near the Shoals, inside of which was found a beautiful rose-tinted pearl as large as a buckshot. It has been set in a ring and makes a very handsome ornament. We do not suppose this discovery will give much of an impetus to pearl fishing in this vicinity, as it is very difficult to get deep-sea oysters living around here to take the hook.

Conductorial Conduct.

Quite a number of young gentlemen from Exeter came to Portsmouth this week to attend the convention of the Y. M. C. Association and had especial tickets from Exeter to Portsmouth, signed by the Superintendent of the Boston & Maine Railroad. They were duly honored on the Concord & Portsmouth, but the conductor on the B. & M., notwithstanding the tickets were issued by the Superintendent of that Road "didn't know anything about them" and collected fares of the delegates. It would seem by the results of the case of Belknap against the Road, the managers would be more particular about instructing conductors to receive special tickets. The old saying so often heard in the interior of the State, that "the Boston & Maine is run by the conductors," seems to be as true as ever.

—When a San Francisco man asks a friend to drink he says: "Have a snake?"

PRESIDENT GRANT sent a telegram to Boston suggesting that the money to be spent in receiving him on Monday be sent to the Chicago relief fund instead.

—The Pullman sleeping-car "Crescent" was blown up last Friday evening while standing on the track of the Central depot in Detroit. This car was heated by steam, but whether there was a lack of water in the boiler or whether it generated more steam than it could bear, is not known, but it exploded without warning. The car was completely shivered. The conductor, who was asleep on one of the couches, marvellously escaped any injury beyond a few slight scalds.

—Men down east who run saw mills have to work hard for their board(s). They are such lumbering fellows.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS.
Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.
WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawéw8i6

[Correspondence of N. Y. Com. Advertiser.]

A SUCCESSFUL JOKE.

CONGRESS HALL,
SARATOGA, August 21, 1871.

The other day, at the suggestion of several wags at Congress Hall, who couldn't live without their daily joke, I put the following in my Commercial correspondence from here:

"SCANDAL.

The two great scandals at the Clarendon are finally out. Two married ladies are mixed up, and several aristocratic families are compromised. I cannot promise full particlars till tomorrow."

Heavens! what a commotion these few little lines caused in Saratoga. Every gossip was on the qui vive. The great hotels resolved themselves into investigating committees, everybody became suspicious, and society was generally upset. At the Clarendon it fell like a moral earthquake among the unhappy guests. Everybody was looked upon with suspicion, and that great social Congress resolved itself into two parties—the watchers and the watched. Each lady looked upon the other with distrust. People communicated in subdued whispers. Wives kept close to their husbands, and sweethearts never for once left their seats. Old bachelors who heretofore had been tolerated as subjects of pity by young and pretty married ladies, were cut dead. Even their bouquets were refused, and everybody behaved with propriety as stiff and prim as at a Queen's drawing-room. Mrs. Jones read the paragraph and whispered something about Mrs. Green, Mrs. Green had her suspicions of Mrs. Jones, but she told Jones to watch Mrs. Smith. The cliques drew closer together, and everybody waited breathlessly for the Commercial's developments.

Hardly had I finished my breakfast and the Saratogian next morning, before I received a note from the Clarendon. It was written on heavy tinted cream paper, surmounted by a beautiful monogram, the letters A. J. C. (American Jockey Club) being beautifully interwoven. It read thus;

"Mr. Lan——, Congress—all:

I notice the paragraph in the Commercial. It is to be hoped you will not use names. I am an old, gray-haired man. I have lived a life of usefulness, and have long been honored as a member of the open Board of Brokers in New York. If I have been indiscreet, in a moment thoughtless, I beg of you not to ruin everything by using my name in connection with any developments which you propose to make. Come and see me. I will remain in my room all day. Yours,

Clarendon, August 19. H. Z. D."

I went to my room to read this letter, but had hardly finished it when rat! tat! tat! ! ! came at my door, and a servant handed me the following:

"Mr. Lan——Respected Sir:

As God is my witness, you have been wrongly informed, if you have heard anything detrimental to my character. I have been a vestryman of Grace church for fifteen years. I am incapable of any such actions; besides I have a devoted wife, and we are very fond of each other. I gave $25,000 to the Dudley Observatory, and $50,000 to the Cornell University; and have been a subscriber to the Commercial for seventeen years. I am incapable of any such indiscretion. Whatever other church members do I am as pure as a new born babe. Come and see me, I am almost always at the church, or on the balcony with my wife. Very respectfully,

Clarendon, August 19. G. Y. S."

I had hardly finished reading the above when Judge K——, of the Supreme court, entered my room unannounced. He looked confused. His eyes wandered around the room, while he twisted his whiskers and bit off the ends.

"Have you granted the injunction in the case of the twenty-seven ladies of Congress Hall versus John R. Cecil, for loud snoring?" I asked.

"No, but I will do it instantly if you will do one thing for me," said the Judge trembligly.

"What?"

"Well, in this scandal case don't use my name. You know I live at the Clarendon. I've been on the bench sixteen years. I may have been indiscreet sometimes. Even Jeff. Davis was not infallible. Besides, everybody knows me in New York. What would Judges Barnard and Bixby and Ingraham think of me after such an exposure?"

"Never mind, Judge, 'mum's the word."

"One thing more," said the Judge, lingering.

"What?"

"Well, I've always been the confidential attorney for Mrs. Z. She may have been carried away for a moment by this man's villainy; but sir, she is a good woman—highly connected. She explained all how it happened to me. She is very sorry, and she wished me to come and see you about it."

"Why, Judge, you surprise me. I didn't know anything about any scandal case. I put that paragraph in as a joke—that was a Congress Hall joke, and I thought you were so very pure up there that you could stand it. I wouldn't have dared to have said it about the Grand Union or Congress Hall. We don't pretend to be so very good here. But I thought you Clarendonites were like Cæsar's wife—above suspicion."

"Good God!" exclaimed the Judge, throwing both hands wildly in the air; and then he went back to the Clarendon a happy man.

My mail now came in. There were 11 more letters from the Clarendon, some were sealed with aristocratic coat of arms, some with illuminated monograms. The first one opened had a baronial crown stamped in red and blue. I read as follows:

"Mon cher Lan—, Hotel de Conge:

I saw one paragra-phe en ze journal, ze Commoursial, about ze grande scandle of which you have accuse me. I no understand ze customs of ze country, I but was ungrande officeur in ze legion d'honeur, and I acall no run when you have accuse macher ze madame with one grande flir-ta-ti-on, what you dam Americans call him. I shall be of ze madame one grande protecteur avee ze pistolls. You shall meet me soir a six heur in ze grande parke when I will shoot you, dam what you call him, dead! M. FLORINS, de la Legatioo Francaise a Washington.

Hotel de Clarendon 19 Auguste."

My next letter was written in the trembling hand of a lady. She said:

"Mr. Lan——, Congress Hall:

My Dear Sir: I write this as a friend of yours. You have been deceived. Some of our people came down to Congress Hall, and told these scandalous things out of spite. Baron Florins has been a little exclusive. We have kept him entirely in our clique. The rest are mad because we have not introduced him. He is a dear, duck of a man, as harmless as he is handsome. We took him out to drive, and even to our private parlors to play chess, with perfect impunity. Some envious common people mistook my parlor for my sleeping room. The mistake was ludicrous, wasn't it? Mrs. Q—— sends regards, and hopes you will be at our ball tonight. We all read the Commercial here. Yours in friendship,
CATHARINE C. V——."

So the letters went on. I'm sorry I put in the paragraph, It has caused me a great deal of annoyance. I have spent most of the day reading letters and listening to explanations. If I should put in such a paragraph about Congress Hall I know I should never be able to read the correspondence, which would result from it; and if I should do the same to the Grand Union letters would be brought to my room in wagon loads. I have not said anything; I don't know anything; only I do give you the letters as received.

"Honi soit qui mal y pense!"

A Clarendon lady says to-day that there will be no more gossip or scandal there this week, as the men have almost all left for New York.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.

BANKING OFFICE OF
FISK & HATCH,
No. 5 Nassau Street, New York,
September 25th, 1871.

Of the FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $4,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.

The five years' option having expired on all series of FIVE-TWENTY BONDS, except 1867s and 1868s, they are liable to be called in for payment. The redemption of 160 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchases by the Sinking Fund during the ensuing four months, with the premium thereon, will release about 130 millions of invested capital, independently of dividends and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek reinvestment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sixes

have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought

17 per cent. less than Ten-forties.
30 per cent. less than Five-twenties,
33 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,

and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price (at present) 95 and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable May 1st,

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $954.16.
$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $477.08.
$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $95.42.

Only a small amount of the latter denominations remains, and no more can be made. Bonds are in coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.

This debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company in order more speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work —the most important internal improvement now progressing in the country— is rapidly approaching completion. It will establish another and superior line of communication between the Atlantic and Mississippi valleys and the eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the Eastern States, and nearer to the political and commercial capitals of their country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line that the larger cities of the West are projecting branches to connect with it, so as to avail themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are passing into the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of reliable navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad carriage.

THE CENTRAL PACIFICS SIX PER CENT. BONDS are as safe for investment as Government Bonds. Their amount fixed by act of Congress at $25,883,000, is secured by property worth four times their value; they can only be bought in the open market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they are the best market bond in all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are steadily increasing, and will probably reach $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a handsome surplus after payment of expenses and interest. Present price, 105 to 106.

When the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, in 1872, and the Bonds are dealt in at the Stock Exchanges of the world, we have no doubt they will be as popular with the Central Pacifics. Both principal and interest of the CENTRAL PACIFIC and CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS are specifically payable in gold coin in New York; the interest on the former being paid January and July, and of the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.

We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, EIGHTY-ONES, and CENTRAL or WESTERN PACIFICS, or exchange them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Interest for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be forwarded by any responsible Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid. FISK & HATCH.

P. S.—Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, on which we allow Four Per Cent. interest.

☞ Certificates of deposit issued and collections made in all parts of the Union.

Why, at Garrety's, on Daniel Street,

His LAGER is always fresh and prime,
It never wants a "head" and is
Refreshing, cool and mellow!
You require, my boy, some filling out,
You're thin, and meagre-looking;

His BEER has made of flesh no want,
Go thou and drink likewise.

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.

The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and then passes into the veins of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; the digestive organs are invigorated by the use of acid, the organ it torpid, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the lacteals are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup penetrates the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is to get order of things, a good appetite, a good nutrition, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan for a cure Consumption, and if a person is very bad, if the lungs are not entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up, there is hope.

I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's medicines will do for Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.

It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep in-doors in cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason. A man who has but partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is far more liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and is in the same condition in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not genial and pleasant. Confirmed consumptives' lungs are a mass of sores, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The great secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to allay the inflammation instead of provoking it, as many of the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety to its patient be exposed to the biting blasts of winter or the chilling winds of spring or autumn. It should be carefully shielded from all irritating influence. The strictest caution should be observed in this particular, as without it a cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutricious diet, and all the medicines continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.

I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty these many years with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment who I have never seen.

About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

KEEN FAUN.

The Mongolians on Tuolumne River.

In 1862, or thereabouts, the Mongolian was master of river-mining on the Tuolumne. He had purchased the claims half gleaned by white men, and worked them skillfully and industriously. His were the neatest dams, sidewalls, pumps and wheels. He worked his bed clean, and no one knows the amount of treasure thus taken out by Chinese hands. He had two foes to contend with—the tax-collector and the Mexican bandits. Once a month the collector came down to obtain his four dollars per head. John often established a system of signals by which this man's coming might be known hours in advance. So warned, half his working force would scuttle up the mountain side or hide in some old tunnel until the invader had passed, while the others remained and paid "licee."

But there were collectors from Mexico not so easily put off. They waylaid John on trail and road; they attacked his camps by night, and took all they could find. Along the Tuolumne the Celestial was at last obliged to surround his groups of cabins with stockades in regular frontier fashion; he also invested largely in rifles and six-shooters. But Mexico entertained a profound contempt for Chinese prowess. He cared little for firearms so long as only Chinamen were behind them. The log ramparts of the fortress at Swell's Bar were fifteen feet in height; the garrison numbered fully twenty. One night four of the swarthy descendants of Cortez stormed it, drove the Chinese into a corner, took from them their dust and pistols, and then kicked them individually and collectively.

The Celestials sent immediately to San Francisco for more pistols. Pistols by the gross came up by express; Mexico stood by and made a note of it. Two weeks afterward, Mexico again stormed and captured the same stockade, the new armament, the dust which had been collected in the interim, and finally by the kicking as before of the same garrison. And as at Swell's, so with many other forts along the river. The white residents knew of the occurrences; they afforded some listeners and amusements, but the white man remained a contented neutral.

Keen Faun was a man of note in China. He often endeavored to make us realize his former greatness, but always failed, for he obstinately confined his stock of English to fifteen words, which would not convey all the ideas he wished to express. His face was broad, flat and yellow, like the Desert of Sahara; his eyes mere twinkling ocular slits; his nose seemed as if it might have been the last nose in the lot—an imperfect, squatty sort of nose, which had been rejected, seemingly, by three hundred millions, nine hundred and ninety-nine thousand, nine hundred and ninety-nine of his fellow-countrymen.

On the bank of the Tuolumne stood Keen Faun's house. It was an architectural crystallization of old sluices, lumber rescued from the spring freshets, mats, logs, stones and tin cans. The ground floor, twelve by fifteen in area, was crammed with a labyrinth of closet-like apartments and narrow passages. In front was the store—a store just large enough for one merchant and one customer at a time—and in this store at certain hours sat Keen Faun, wearing immense spectacles, dabbing with his paint-brush over a Chinese ledger, and debiting customers with sundry supplies of opium, salt fish and gin.

He lived on salt fish and rice. He told us he drank of gin "one gallon, hap, one week." He smoked opium, and still lived a hale, hearty, old Chinese gentleman, save when he thought of Mexicans. He built for himself a boat to navigate the Tuolumne; he painted for it a great red eye on the bow. Five Chinamen, with picks, rockers and tools, tried to cross in that boat one June morning. The river was "booming" with the yearly freshet. I watched them from my door; the one-eyed boat slid easily under the great rollers in the middle of the stream. As a whale comes up to blow, so she, bottom up, reappeared a few hundred yards below. There clung to her a blue-clad, dripping Celestial; of the remaining four not even a shaven pol came to the bubbling surface. I ran down to the rocky bank and caught sight of one blue bundle gliding along under the river's muddy surface. The Tuolumne flung ashore the corpses some thirty miles below; one Celestial had upon him a six ounce nugget. The boys in our vicinity were sorry he went so far down stream. Keen Faun's craft became lodged in the rocks about a mile from the scene of disaster with the shivering passenger, who was rescued.

Keen Faun kept strange liquors. His countrymen used much stimulant; at the river stores their brandy kegs were more frequently filled than other vessel. Keen Faun bought the white man's brandy. A certain trader closed out his business at Dry Bar. Remnants of his stimulating stock—wine, brandy, rum and gin—were left in various barrels. It was not readily to be sold in

[From Dispensatory of the United States.]

DIOSMA CRENATA — BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.—Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections and Dropsy.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is used by persons from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 35 to 55, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-Wetting in children.

In affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus.

DISEASES OF THE BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.—This medicine increases the power of Digestion, and excites the Absorbents into healthy action, by which the Watery or Calcareous depositions and all Unnatural Enlargements are reduced, as well as Pains and Inflammation.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposits and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Diseases, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more agreeable to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES—SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appear. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to admit of healthful and rational exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1871.

The Fire.

Order has been restored at Chicago and the people feel secure. Sheridan is in command and no mercy is shown to thieves and incendiaries. Six noted thieves, among them Barney Aaron, were hung to lamp posts. All despatches indicate the determination of every business man in Chicago to rebuild at once and pay his debts in full.

The Chicago Tribune of Sunday morning thus prefaced its accounts of Saturday night,—a preface that events have invested with the character of portentous prophecy:—

"For days past alarm has followed alarm; but the comparatively trifling losses have familiarized us to the pealing of the court-house bell, and we had forgotten that the absence of rain for three weeks had left everything in so dry and inflammable condition that a spark might start a fire which would sweep from end to end of the city."

Trains are arriving from all quarters with provisions and blankets. The city is almost glutted with provisions.

For a distance of seven miles, running north and south, by nearly two miles in width from the lake, there are not three buildings left standing.

The remains of eight victims were discovered among the ruins near Horticultural Hall, and every hour one or more is discovered; the total number of deaths will certainly reach 1000. Women and children suffered terribly, and the mortality among those who survived has been considerable.

The belief is prevalent in Chicago that there was an organized plan with a few desperadoes to fire the city for the sake of plunder. One of the men caught in the act of firing a building offered to confess if his life would be spared, and reveal the whole plot. He was shot instantly, without making a confession. General Sheridan is everywhere; he has organized a perfect military police system, which has had the effect of almost entirely repressing the prowling roughs and thieves. He has perfected a system of relief by which all supplies sent to the city will be distributed according to the needs of the sufferers. What is needed is clothing, bedding as well as money. There is an overplus of food and more crackers and cheese than Chicago can devour.

A Krupp shell, a relic of the siege of Paris, exploded in the house of Mr. Cowles, business-manager of the Chicago Tribune, during the fire, making a breach in the walls fifteen feet wide from the foundation to the roof.

Twenty-four million feet of lumber remains unburned. Gen. Sheridan desires visitors to keep away from Chicago.

Several additional arrivals from Chicago report the details of incidents. One villain caught in the act of incendiarism was hung up by the heels and then stoned to death, and a young boy who was caught had his own arm torn off by the excited crowd who then hung him to a tree. Fifty persons perished in one tenement house. Thousands of people are still on the lake in boats. The whiskey shops are all closed. Boiler explosions were frequent during the fire. Chicago people estimate the loss of life at near 2000. Those having any money left cheerfully divided with the groups of starving families. Everybody praises the heroism of Mayor Mason.

Boston's contributions is over $300,000.

The Elections.

Fifty-two counties in Ohio report a Republican gain of 4300. The legislature will probably stand: Senate, 18 Democrats and 17 Republicans; the House, 56 Republicans and 47 Democrats. The Hamilton county delegation will stand: Senate, one Republican and two Democrats; the House, five Republicans and five Democrats. The Republican majority for Noyes, governor, is about 22,000.

Iowa has gone Republican by 40,000.

New Hampshire Items.

Mr. George Tilton of Exeter, reported missing, has turned up all right.

The U. S. Circuit Court is in session at Exeter.

Dea. David Smith of Londonderry, died of a stone in the bladder on the 8th, aged 76 years. Dr. Haines, at a post mortem examination of the body found in the bladder of the deceased a stone which weighed an ounce and a quarter, and measured 4 1-2 inches circumference.

THE N. H. BAPTIST STATE CONVENTION holds its annual meeting with the church in Brentwood next Wednesday. The occasion will be the more interesting as it is on the occurrence of the centennial of that church. The Sabbath School State Convention and the Pastoral Convention will be held on Tuesday at the same place.

PRESIDENT GRANT has issued a proclamation placing nine counties of South Carolina under martial law.

JAMES WILSON, who was to have been hung at Hartford, Friday, stabbed himself to the heart at 2 o'clock in the morning with a needle.

THE ORIGINAL COPY of President Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation, for which the Illinois Historical Society paid the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars, was burned at the great Chicago fire, as well as all the other valuable papers of the Society.

STOCKS fell in Wall Street, New York, Thursday, and there was a great panic. Old operators estimate the shrinkage of values at seventy-five millions within one week, and think the worst is yet to come. On the other hand several heavy operators have given orders to buy, and think bottom has been touched.

THE RADICALS OF PHILADELPHIA have increased the city debt, during their few years of rule, from $19,000,000 to $52,000,000.—Portsmouth Democratic Organ.

The result of the elections in Ohio and Pennsylvania proves that the Democratic party has not a ghost of a chance of carrying the next Presidential election. Their hopes were based upon Pennsylvania. They saw a good portion of the Republicans of Philadelphia desert the regular Republican ticket and indorse a "Reform" ticket, made up of the principal candidates nominated by the Democratic conventions! They felt sure that if Philadelphia repudiated the Republican ticket the State would surely go Democratic. They forgot that the people of that city have lived under almost a reign of terror for three years. The police were selected by a Democratic mayor, and were notable more for their efforts to incite rowdyism, than to suppress it; more for their protection of bullies, murdering thieves and ballot-box stuffers, than for their protection of peaceable citizens. The police held the same position toward the honest, law-abiding citizens of Philadelphia that the Tammany Ring has held toward the honest citizens of New-York. The Republicans of Philadelphia carried out their intention of sweeping this police and those who supported it out of power. The average Republican majority will be eight thousand.—N. Y. Standard.

NEW HAMPSHIRE FIRE INS. COMPANY.—This new company, which commenced business under such flattering auspices about one year and a half ago, is meeting with a liberal patronage and merited success which must be gratifying to the stockholder and all who desire the prosperity of New Hampshire institutions. We learn that the premium receipts have increased forty per cent. this year over the corresponding months of last year, while the percentage of losses indicate the safest classes of property insured.

The Company have outstanding in this State above 6,000 policies, insuring about six and one-quarter millions of dollars—mostly dwellings, and possesses assets exceeding $140,000. While the corporation is under the direction of such well known and competent men for officers as Hon. E. A. Straw, President; Gov. J. A. Weston, Vice-President; John C. French, Secretary; Geo. B. Chandler, Treasurer, and a large and influential Board of Directors, the people will prefer this Company, because they have confidence in its security and integrity, and know whom they will deal with in case they have a loss by fire. All losses thus far have been adjusted in the most equitable and satisfactory manner, and the advantages of a home stock company that is ready to meet all liabilities, duly appreciated by the policy holders. See advertisement in another column.

INVESTMENT OF MONEY.—Just now, when nearly every holder of Five-twenty Bonds is debating in his own mind whether he had better sell out, so as to realize the great premium on his bonds, or to wait till he is offered a new bond bearing a lower rate of interest, a hesitation natural with many who hardly know how or where to reinvest their money so as to retain the higher rate of interest and still have their capital safe and tangible—we can refer them with pleasure to the announcement of Messrs. FISH & HATCH, the widely-known and respected Bankers, in another column. All will remember the efficiency and earnestness of this Firm in the sale of the great Government Loans during the dark days of the rebellion, and many will appreciate the wisdom of their great faith in the ultimate value of the very Five-twenties which are now commanding a high premium. Also, at a later date, their wonderful activity and foresight in predicting a great success for the Central Pacific Railroad, which has been so fully borne out by the rapid construction and great earning capacities of the road, and the enviable distinction its securities have achieved the world over. Those who have had dealings with Messrs. Fisk & Hatch know that their statements may be relied on; and feel that when they say a Bond is as sure to be paid, principal and interest, as a Government Bond, it means that they have given careful scrutiny to the security, and that the statement is not made on their part without a thorough conviction that it is so. They now recommend with that same confidence the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, of which but a small portion remain unsold. We entertain no doubt that time will show their recommendations of these Bonds to have been as fully warranted as in the case of Five-Twenties or Central Pacifics.

Political.

The Pendleton and Thurman wings of the Ohio democracy are fighting fiercely.

John Hancock, one of the democratic members elect from Texas, is a brother of General Hancock.

THE PRESENCE OF MIND of the proprietor of the Elm House in Johnson, R. I., saved the establishment. The case was thusly: The night porter was lighting the kerosene lamps about five o'clock when one of them exploded and set fire to twenty-five others standing on the table. The proprietor took in the condition of things at a glance, and hastily tossed the lamps out of the window, which prevented a serious fire. As it is, the loss is estimated at about $200.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

SUITS OF ROOMS, a favorite method of hotel life, are offered the guests of the AMERICAN HOUSE, Boston, and may be secured by post or telegraph, by families who are travelling. All modern conveniences are included with these rooms en suite.

The season for coughs and colds is rapidly approaching, and every one should be prepared to check the first symptoms, as a cough contracted between now and Christmas frequently lasts all winter. There is no better remedy than "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment." For all diseases of throat and lungs, it should be used internally and externally.

Lung fever, common cold, catarrhal fever, and nasal discharge of a brownish color in horses, may be checked at once by liberal use of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders.

An Anchor to Windward.

It is good seamanship, where there is reason to expect heavy weather, to drop an anchor to windward.

We are in the midst of the season of chills and fever. The sure preventive of this distressing malady is HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. A course of that wholesome vegetable tonic will render an attack impossible. Take the hint and drop an anchor to windward.

Weak stomachs are most liable to be disordered late in the autumn, when the changes of temperature are marked and frequent. Hostetter's Bitters fortifies the stomach against the effects of these variations. Let dyspeptics make a note of the fact, and drop an anchor to windward.

The liver is most sensitive when the weather is continually alternative between the warmth of summer and the cold of winter than at any other period of the year. This is peculiarly the season of such alterations. Let the bilious remember that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is essentially an anti-bilious medicine, and drop an anchor to windward.

The wisest plan is to forestall evil. The next best thing is to arrest it. For disorders of the stomach, irregularities of the bowels, and all periodical fevers, take, as soon as the complaint developes itself, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters.

Is the School Law Inoperative?

Twelve boys whose ages are from seven to twelve years, were assembled on South Mill Bridge during school hours, Friday.

Portsmouth People Burned Out.

Quite a number of people formerly living here, suffered by the fire in Chicago. We hear of one family already on their way home, having been burned out.

Schools of Smelts

Came up the river on Friday on account of the cold water. The water seemed alive with them and the eager fisher-boys worked nimbly, carrying their trophies home by the basket full.

Dr. J. F. Hall

Has found it necessary to release himself from his arduous duties for a short time for the recovery of his health, which has been impaired of late. A few days' rest we hope will enable him to return.

Found.

The body of Mrs. Luther Aiken, who was drowned in the river near Spring Hill, Monday, Sept. 25th, was found on the Eliot shore near Frank-fort, Friday morning, and was recognized by means of the clothing. The funeral will take place to-day.

The Employees

Of the Eastern Railroad on Thursday donned their new uniform caps. The Conductors' and Baggage Masters' are of blue with two bands of gold lace one inch apart; the Brakemen have a gray cap with a black band; Depot Masters' have a blue cap with one broad gilt band; Depot Baggage Masters' have a blue cap with a narrow gilt band. On the front is embroidered in gilt letters the rank designated to them as Conductors, Baggage Masters, &c.

Aid for Chicago.

Persons having clothing of any description to contribute to the aid of the Chicago sufferers, can have the same called for by leaving their names at Dr. S. Perry's Dental Rooms or with Mr. A. H. Tucker at No. 12 Market Street—to be forwarded at once to the Y. M. C. Association at Chicago.

It is particularly requested of persons making up packages of clothing or other articles to be forwarded by express, that they prepare a list of the articles contained in each package and hand the same to the express agent with the package; this will greatly assist the various expressmen and enable the distributors in Chicago to tell what is in each box without unpacking it till it is wanted. There is no danger of too much clothing being sent; the immediate suffering from hunger is over, but many thousands of the destitute must be cared for during the long winter now close at hand, and immense supplies will be needed.

City Council, Thursday, Oct. 12.

In Board of Aldermen, Mrs. Rundlett, of No. 24 State Street, complained that John Fritz's piggery was in such a condition as to be considered a nuisance. Referred to Health Committee.

The Chief Engineer sent in a communication relative to the need of a better supply of water in the neighborhood of Bridge Street. Referred to Committee on Fire Department.

Several bills were read and after some discussion were ordered to be paid.

A few of the above named bills (relating to extra charges for horse-hire) being considered exorbitant and at the same time unauthorized, the committee recommended the payment of the same and the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That no bill for horse-hire by the Police Department be paid hereafter unless authorized by the Mayor.

It was voted that the Mayor and Board of Aldermen visit the railroad station on Tuesday morning for the purpose of paying their respects to the President of the United States on his passage through the city on that day.

The bills relating to the Firemen's Muster came up, upon which a lively discussion ensued. It appears that the liabilities in this matter are upwards of $2000, while the assets are about $400. The subject was laid over to be considered at a special meeting of the Board this (Saturday) evening, Oct. 14.

William the Artist

Is cross because no one could see any thing funny in his dish-water article of Thursday, so profusely illustrated with cuts of his important self. Strange!

Mr. Jeff. C. Rowe

Who lost an arm and was otherwise so terribly hurt at Revere, will return to this city, to-day. Superintendent Prescott has provided a special car for his accommodation. Now let the Corporation provide a lucrative position for Mr. Rowe to fill for life, and do honor to themselves and justice to a faithful employee.

Navy Yard Matters.

Five thousand pounds of oakum arrived at the Navy Yard on Friday afternoon per U. S. Steamer Fortune, from Brooklyn, New York, for Construction department.

The Navy Yard workmen voted on Friday to give a day's pay for the relief of the Chicago sufferers, the aggregate amount of which will be nearly $3000.

The Benefit Concert.

All singers and musicians who intend to take part in the Sunday evening Benefit Concert in aid of the Chicago sufferers' relief fund, are requested to meet at the Temple this (Saturday) evening at 7 o'clock, for rehearsal. Tickets for the concert can be procured to-day at W. R. Preston's store, at 50 cts. each—or as much more as any may choose to give. We expect to see the Temple filled to-morrow evening with a gathering that will make the concert a real benefit to the aid fund.

Clippings.

We clip from the Journal the following items of local interest.

....The N. H. Universalist Sabbath School Convention meets in this city Wednesday and Thursday next. An exhibition by the school connected with the church here will be given on the first evening. Matters pertaining to the interests of the cause will be debated.

....It is stated that several prominent gentlemen of this city are heavy losers by the great fire at Chicago. One man loses five thousand dollars in grain, alone. The amount of securities held here is estimated at one hundred and twenty five thousand dollars.

....Edward Warren Clark, well known in this city, and son of the former pastor of the North Church, Rev. Rufus W. Clark, D. D. of Albany, has gone to Japan as a teacher, and intends to remain for three years. His many friends will wish him success on his "foreign mission."

....Among the many exhibitions of industry and art at our late State Fair in Dover we noticed that nothing attracted more marked attention than the fine display of Photographs and Porcelain Pictures by Davis Brothers of this city. Among them were likenesses of several of our prominent citizens, which for delicacy of tone and fineness of finish we have rarely seen equaled. The first premium on Photographs was awarded them, which shows that Portsmouth though a quiet place is not behind in fine arts.

New Publications.

The October number of The Ladies' Magazine, St. Louis, is before us, looking brighter and fresher than ever. The upper right-hand corner is adorned by the portrait of Alice Carey, author; the upper left corner by Mrs. Willard, teacher; the centre by Hrriet Hosmer, artist; the right left lower corner by Anna Dickinson, orator; the left lower corner by Mrs. Lozier, physician. From an enticing table of contents we make this list of articles: "My Heroine," Edgar A. Poe," "Doubt," "Insects, Useful and Curious," "The Post Office Clerk," "The Rural Cemeteries of St. Louis," "Flowering Bulbs for Window Gardening," "A Bride Without a Title," "Medicine"—Dr. R. B. McNary. Send twenty cents for sample copy and premium list, to Margaret L. Johnson, 407 N. Fourth Street, St. Louis, Mo. $3 per annum.

—It will be recollected that about two years ago the Wolfeborough Bank, at Wolfeboro, in this state, was broken into and robbed, and the robbers traced, as it was supposed, through Alton and Gilmanton and in that direction to the railroad at Franklin. One day last week Cyrus Varney and a Mr. Weeks, while in a small piece of woods on the northerly side of the road betwixt the Iron Works Village and Gilmanton Corner, and near Varney's house, found a black leather valise which on being opened was found to contain a large quantity of papers that were taken from the Wolfeborough Bank. When found they were thoroughly wet and almost a solid mass of pulp, yet among them were to be discovered bank checks, bank books, certificates of stock and other papers sufficient to show where they came from. Near where the valise was found Messrs. Varney and Weeks found some $75 in specie, scattered about on the ground. There was also a tin can half or two thirds full of powder. It looks as if the rogues went into these woods and made a dividend among themselves, and in doing it were careless in handling change.—Deputy Sheriff Savage, on Saturday looked over the place and found a few pieces of silver money. He took the papers to the bank.—Laconia Democrat.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.

Banking Office of
FISK & HATCH,
No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.
September 25th, 1871.

Of the Fifteen Million Chesapeake and Ohio Six Per Cent. Loan, but about $4,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.

The five years' option having expired on all series of Five-Twenty Bonds, except 1867s and 1868s, they are liable to be called in for payment. The redemption of 100 millions Five-Twenties in coin, and the purchase by the Government during the ensuing four months, with the premium thereon, will release about 150 millions of invested capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek reinvestment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sixes

have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought at

17 per cent. less than Ten-forties.
20 per cent. less than Five-twenties,
25 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,

and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. The amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price (at present) 93 and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1.

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $954.16.
$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $477.08.
$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $95.42.

Only a small amount of the latter denominations remains, and no more can be made. Bonds are in coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.

This debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company in order more speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work —the most important internal improvement now progressing in the country—is rapidly approaching completion. It will establish another and superior line of communication between the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the European States, and nearer to the political and commercial metropolis of their country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line that the larger cities of the West are projecting feeders to connect with it, so as to avail themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are being opened to the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, at the head of reliable navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad carriage.

The Central Pacific Six Per Cent. Bonds are as safe for investment as Government Bonds. Their amount fixed by act of Congress at $25,000,000, is secured by 400 miles of road, four times their value; they can only be bought in the open market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they have a ready market in all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are steadily increasing, and will probably reach $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a handsome surplus after payment of expenses and interest. Present price, 101½ to 102.

When the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, in 1872, and the Bonds are dealt in at the Stock Exchanges of the world, we have no doubt they will be equally popular with the Central Pacifics. Both principal and interest of the Central Pacific and Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, are specifically payable in gold coin in New York; the interest on the former being paid January and July, and of the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.

We buy and sell Five-Twenties, Ten-Forties, Eighty-Ones, and Central or Western Pacifics, or receive them in payment for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds at their current market price.

Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be forwarded by any responsible Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid. FISK & HATCH.

P. S.—Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, on which we allow Four Per Cent. interest.

Certificates of deposit issued and collections made in all parts of the Union.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS.

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetisers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach, and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which, under them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawfebl6 detached lots. The trader was a man shrewd and contemplative, and he contemplated. He was assisted by the Genius of American enterprise and invention. She, hovering over Dry Bar, perched upon his store and in slumbers dropped in his ear a germ of suggestion. She said simply, "Mix!" The man arose, and into one particular cask poured the remnants of rum, wine, gin and whiskey. This he sampled to Keen Faun, offering it at a dollar and a quarter per gallon; Keen Faun tasted, grinned, tasted again, grinned, and offered one dollar. The trader held out at one dollar and a bit; Keen Faun came to terms on condition that the empty casks should be thrown in; so they were, and the full vessels, with their happy family of assorted liquors, were transferred to Keen Faun's warehouse. And then the Genius of American invention and enterprise clapped her hands, laughed until her ribs ached, and flew down the river, while Keen Faun poisoned his countrymen right and left and the trader went East and became a deacon.

Morning Chronicle.

Keen Faun was kind-hearted toward the superior race. No intemperate miner "tapering off" from a debauch, money gone and credit exhausted, ever came to his castle but that he had set before him the loved bowl of "bluey." The old gentleman could not comfort such afflicted Caucasians with many words, but for them he knew what was better; he met them on the broad platform of gin.

Keen Faun spent many of his leisure hours at Thompson's store. Thompson was his particular friend; he called him "Tom-sing," laying the stress and accent on the "sing." He loved to come in winter evenings and silently watch the boys carving pipe-bowls from the manzanitia wood or ornamenting the stovepipe with little men in pasteboard, who, stimulated to exertion by the ascending current of hot air, turned cranks and sawed wood with spasmodic and varying degrees of energy. And when Thompson, with a yawn and voice expressive of the deepest concern, would ask the venerable Mongolian if it was not with him a confirmed and deeply-seated opinion that "man's inhumanity to man had made countless thousands mourn," Keen Faun would simply grin and reply, "No shabbee."

There was often seen impaled upon a pole in front of Keen Faun's castle a piece of fresh pork. It was Keen Faun's roast. Often, the boys, returning from a hunt, would use this pork as a target for their rifles. The aim was to sever the pole an inch below the pork, and it was always accomplished. Sam Patch endeavored to explain to Keen Faun that his (Sam's) peculiar faith rendered it obligatory for him that he should shoot away a piece of pork whenever he saw it impaled upon a pole in front of a Chinaman's cabin. Keen Faun listened; the grin first rippled and then surged over his face. He only remarked, "No shabbee."

Many times thus the rifle cracked, the bullet howled over the castle, the pole cracked, the pork fell, Keen Faun rushed out and rescued his meat. At last the pole was away to within a few feet of the ground. But Keen Faun bore patiently these pranks of the "boys," for over him these exercised a protectorate, and he realized the value of their aid in the coming contest which he knew must ensue between him and the Mexican bandits.

Keen Faun's special terror was these plunderers of his race from Mexico. Preparing for them, he surmounted his house with a sort of castle. It was built of thick logs and pierced with many portholes. Through one protruded the glittering head of a mighty spear, forged by the blacksmith to be thrust into and through the bodies of assailing Mexicans. He became a frequent purchaser and practitioner with second-handed six-shooters. Keen Faun's practice was unsafe by bystanders. He surveyed his target with deliberation until the moment arrived for pulling the trigger; then he threw from him the weapon as far as the length of his arm would permit, shut both eyes hard, and fired. Life was very uncertain within a radius of forty-five degrees about Keen Faun's target. Once a month he purchased a new pistol. It became with him a passion to buy firearms. Gradually, many of the old muskets brought hither by army deserters in '49, yagers and rifles from the Southwest, Allen's "pepper-boxes," double and single barrelled shot-guns became concentrated in Keen Faun's castle.

The long-expected attack came at last. One night an outcry was heard. There was a pattering of slipshod Chinese feet, a gabbling of the Chinese tongue and a furious pounding at "Tom-sing's" store doors. The men within seized their arms and rushed out. In the dim moonlight a form was seen fleeing over the rough, stony bar between Keen Faun's castle and the river. Mongolians were running about to the right and left of him, but not at very close quarters. The river here had been turned; its entire volume was running through the quartz-rock race. Into this jumped the robber; the swift current seized and sped him rapidly down. The screaming, gabbling crowd of Chinese gained the edge; among the rest waddled Keen Faun, pistol in hand. With as uncertain wavering air he pointed it at the man's head, a small black object just discernible speeding down the canal; then he puckered his lips, shut both eyes, turned away his head and pulled the trigger six times. There were six reports; one of the bullets cut the robber's spine.

They found the desperado lying among the rocks on the other side. He threw away his knife, and held up both hands in token of surrender. He proved to be a tall well-formed man, evidently an American. They carried him to the store. He would give no name, and repelled all offers of service and inquiries. He said he wanted only to die—"The game was out and he had been euchred." Next day he died, leaving no name to be carved over him.

From this it resulted that Keen Faun became temporarily a hero among his countryman. He had slain one of the band who had for years been pouncing upon his people, besieging their forts and robbing them on foot and horse back. For days afterward, from all quarters, Chinamen came to look upon the scene of conflict. They went upon the point from whence the fatal shot had been fired, retraced the course of the party who bore back the wounded robber, inspected curiously every drop of his blood as it had fallen and dried on the smooth blue granite ledge, and then in the castle from eve until far into the night their talk concerning the event was endless.

But for Keen Faun the exploit bore its thorns. He had killed a man, and it was needful that he deliver himself up to the proper authorities and show cause for the act. So his friend "Tom-sing" informed him. Keen Faun was very apprehensive as to the course which American law might take in this matter—apprehension not allayed by the boys, who told him he would probably be sent to jail, and might be hung. To camp, seven miles away, he trudged, accompanied by Tom-sing and one other white friend. On the route they did their best to make the old man miserable, keeping jail and gallows prominently before him, so that he protracted the trip as long as possible, sitting down frequently by the trail, when his two white friends would gaze ominously at him, and shake their heads, and execute Indian war-dances around him. At last he wished to go back and delay his examination just one day more, but his brace of comforters insisted on going forward, and at every mile Keen Faun sat down on the first convenient rock and the war-dance went on.

They arrived in camp; the justice heard the story; Keen Faun was justified; cheerfulness overspread his countenance, and in the saloon most largely patronized by the superior race, Keen Faun insisted on treating everybody, the justice included. Then he joyfully returned home: at night joss-sticks of thankfulness burned in front of his castle.

The career of Keen Faun must terminate. The country first "went up" for the white man, and finally was "gone in" for the Chinaman. The most industrious could from the banks glean scarce six bits per day. Cabin after cabin disappeared, man after man left the river: they came no more from camp with fresh beef to sell, no more with magazines and papers. "Tom-sing" shut up his store—"Tom-sing" left. Keen Faun saw him depart with tearful eyes, and presenting him with a basket of choice tea-and half a dollar, said: "Tom-sing, you good man—Tom-sing, you me one fien—Tom-sing, now me poor—Tom-sing, if no hab got, no can do. Good-bye!"

Month by month, Keen Faun's little stock of goods dwindled away. The busy camp of Chinamen gradually thinned out. One, two and three days Keen Faun's castle was strangely silent. Brady, the nearest white man, noticed it. Brady was one of the oldest inhabitants, a hard worker, impervious to whiskey and unshaken by a quarterly attack of delirium tremens. Only Brady and Keen Faun now dwelt in this corner of the Bar. Brady at last forced an entrance into Keen Faun's house and found him dead in his bed. Brady buried about, found the old gentleman's remaining stock of gin, drank of it liberally, and then, with tears in his eyes, spread the sad story over the neighborhood. Brady had a week's spree, and among Keen Faun's effects no gin could be found. Brady died from the effects of his spree. The upper end of Dry Bar has never been tenanted since.

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.
The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and then distributed to all parts of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, have the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ is relaxed, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the lacteals are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and secure to us good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the firm and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup nourishes the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists Nature to expect all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that the ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal; the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is a new order of things, a good appetite, a good nutrition, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, and if a person is very bad, if the lungs are not entirely destroyed, if the liver is not entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up, there is hope.

I have been many times cured with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's medicines will do to cure Consumption. They will clear out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of the disease that is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.

It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep in-doors in cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason. A man who has but partially recovered from the effects of a cold, is far more liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and it is precisely the same in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I am strenuously caution pulmonary patients against exposure to any change in atmosphere that is not genial and pleasant. Confirmed consumptives' lungs are a mass of sore, which the least exposure is sure to make inflame. The grand secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to subdue inflammation, and allow the healing process to take the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety to the patient be exposed to the biting blasts of winter or the chilly winds of spring or autumn. It should be carefully shielded from all irritating influence. The utmost caution should be observed in this particular, as without it a cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutritious diet, and all the medicines continued until the body has restored to the natural quantity of flesh and strength.

I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have gone on fat and hearty these many years, with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment whom I have never seen.

About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

DAT BARBARA FREIDCHIE.

Droo der shdreets of Frederigtown,
Mid der rade hot san a sndrigin down,
Bast der saloons all filled mid beer,
Der repel fellers walked on der ear.

All day long droo Frederigtown so fassed
Horse und ford und soldiers bassed;
Und der repel flag shone out so brighd,
As if, py Jinks, it had got a righd.

Vere vas dere Union flag? der sun
Looked down on not a pluddy von.
Up jumped dat old Miss Friedchie den,
Bend oud py her nine schgere years und ten.

She grabbled up der flag dat der men hauled down,
Und fasdened it righd on her righd gown,
Den she sad in her vindow, so all could see
Dat der vas von yed dat loafed dat flag so free.

Up der shdreed come Shlonewall Jack,
A riding off his horse's back;
Under his prows he squinched his eyes;
Dat old flag caused him gread surbrise.

"Halt!" Each feller shdood him shdill,
"Vire!" vas echoed von hill to hill;
Id bushd der shdrings of dat righd gown;
But dat old Barbara she vas aroundt.

She fasdened id once again, so quick;
Den off der window her legs did shdick;
"Bushd, if you must, dis poor old head,
But leafe alone that flag," she said.

A look of shameness soon came o'er
Der face of Jack, und der dears did bour;
"Who bulls a hair of dat bald heed
Dies mighty quick; go ahead," he said.

All dat day und all dat nighd,
Dill efery repel had bassed from sighd,
Und leafed pehind dat Frederigtown,
Dat old flag vas shdicked on dat night gown.

Dat Barbara Freidchie's work is done;
She dond can efer have more fun;
Bully for her! choshed drob a dear
For dat old woman midoud some fear.

CARE OF YOUNG VINES.—The care of young vines of which we propose to speak at the present time, is that of handling them at the time of their removal from the bed or border in which they grow, to the moment when they are finally planted.

We are fully persuaded that young vines are seriously injured by exposure to sun and drying winds when taken from the ground in the fall, and in spring time while being prepared for planting.

It is not uncommon that we see young vines or "roots," dug from the earth in which they grew, thrown in long rows and allowed to remain there for the half or the whole of a day, exposed to an atmosphere heated and drying, or so cold as to be seriously injurious to the young vines, without it being understood how much such treatment of them impairs their vitality; and at planting time they are brought into the field uncovered and exposed to a scorching sun and drying winds without thought of the irreparable damage done to them.

There is another kind of ill-treatment to which young vines are exposed, that of allowing them to remain in the earth where grown, without being raised or dug, and unprotected by additional covering from all the changes and extremes of cold of winter.

It is not enough that life be preserved or death escaped; but the fullest life reasonably practicable should be preserved, that the best and most healthful growth be secured.

Vines injured in either of these ways may appear perfectly healthy and in best condition, without any one being able to discover it in time to avoid the misfortune of planting them.

We have no recommendation or remedy to offer, beyond that of never allowing the sun to shine directly upon the root of a young plant, or drying winds to blow upon them for one moment except it may be while being adjusted in the very act of planting; and that for keeping through the winter they be bedded where no water comes to the bottom,—where no frost reaches from above, and that earth come in contact with every part of each vine. Thus bedded, they will come out in spring as full of life as they possessed in the fall. Heeling in is the term applied sometimes to what we call bedding.

The error most likely to occur in the keeping of the vines through winter, is that of insufficient protection from cold and wet, and, as we have more than intimated, the great error in the treatment of them in the fall and spring is their being allowed exposure to sun and drying winds, so easily avoided, that once known and appreciated, will never be repeated by any one if he is to reap the full fruits of it.

—Gillman, Ill., is pleasantly agitated by a late elopement. The lover went after his girl in a light vehicle with muffled wheels, while an accomplice drove a much heavier machine adapted to making as much noise as possible. The lady being duly deposited in the muffled vehicle, the heavy one dashed off at a furious rate, with papa in hot pursuit, while the lovers were noiselessly driving in the opposite direction, and shortly became man and wife.

BUCHU

[From Dispensatory of the United States.]

DIOSMA CRENATA — BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.—Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections and Dropsy.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is used by persons from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 35 to 55, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-Wetting in children.

In affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus.

DISEASES OF THE BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.—This medicine increases the power of Digestion, and excites the Absorbents into healthy action, by which the Watery or Calcareous depositions and all Unnatural Enlargements are reduced, as well as Pains and Inflammation.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Diseases, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is Diuretic and Blood-Purifying, and cures all diseases arising from habits of dissipation, excesses and imprudences in life, impurities of the Blood, etc., superceding Copaiba in affections for which it is used in connection with

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves: no relief of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES — SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appears. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no toxic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale at "less price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

The Western Fires

Have destroyed vast amounts of valuable property. The loss at Manistee, Michigan, is $1,000,000, on which there is but $80,000 insurance. The suffering of the people is beyond description. The people of Grand Rapids and Grand Haven supplied their immediate necessities, and Senator Ferry and the Mayor of Grand Rapids have issued an earnest appeal to the whole State for aid. The necessities of the people are imperative. They need immediately flour, wheat and clothing. Large quantities of clothing, bedding and provisions are being forwarded by boats to Port Huron, Lexington and Port Sanilace for the relief of the sufferers. Hundreds of destitute people are congregated at those places.

The Saginaw River flows from the centre of the State in a northerly direction to the bay of that name. Through this valley, which contains a number of thriving towns engaged in the lumber trade, the fires raged fearfully, and the entire population were obliged during the early part of the week to fight the destroying element to save their lives and their dwellings.

Around Saginaw the fires were subdued by a rain on Wednesday, but in the back country they continued to rage, doing great damage to the lumber camps. At various points in the central part of the State great fires were reported to be burning.

The following is the narrative of a Mr. Brady of Detroit, which gives an idea of the terrible character of the conflagration at White Rock, where he was when it was burned:—"After vainly striving to keep the fire out of the town, the inhabitants hastily gathered the few valuables that came nearest to hand, fled to the most open places, away from the houses, and driven from these, rushed into the water itself, and even there were not safe from the scorching effects of the heated air without occasional plunges beneath the surface or frequent washings in the surf. Mr. Brady was in the water eight hours, lying part of the time on a log, over which the light surf dashed. About him were men up to their waists in the water, women but poorly protected by their clothing from the chill of the water, which was their only security against the burning heat of the air. The inhabitants, of course, saved almost nothing. The fire at White Rock occurred on Sunday night, and it was not until Monday afternoon that the sufferers were taken off the shore by the steamer Huron, which took them on board, and coming down the shore, released from similar straits others who had lived in Forestville and Cato, which towns were also burned Sunday night. The steamer, after taking on board as many as she could carry, left many for a second trip. The sufferers were cared for by the citizens of Port Huron, and the steamer went back for another load."

A gentleman writing from Kalamazoo, on Monday, says:—"We have news that Wayland, Matteman, Vicksburg and Holland are burning—the whole country seems to be in flames. Around Kalamazoo there are men engaged in fighting fires. The air is filled with smoke, and a perfect gale is blowing. The leaves lie in large heaps. The village authorities have taken all precautions in their power to prevent the outbreak of a conflagration here, have prohibited the burning of leaves, etc. A dispatch just received says that Holland is almost entirely destroyed, and 3000 people are homeless. Fires are burning in Three Oaks, on the Michigan Central Railroad, and Lagonia, on the Michigan Southern and Lake Shore Railroad."

Eight hundred people were burned to death in two towns in Wisconsin.

Chicago

Is reviving from the disastrous blow to its business interests. The Tremont House will be rebuilt upon the old site. The Sherman House will be reconstructed in its former prominent position, and it is stated that it will be second to no hotel in the country.

Nearly all the destroyed business premises have placards posted on stakes, designating the new locations established by the proprietors. The president of the Illinois Central Railroad telegraphs that the elevator is at work and grain is being shipped. So far none of the bank vaults found are injured.

The Fort Wayne and Pittsburg Railroad station stands solitary and alone among its sister magnificent structures of the past. In the midst of all the calamity, the people are buoyant and hopeful, and loud and fervent in their acknowledgments of the generous and practical sympathy which is being extended to them from all points of the country. Employments during the winter will be plenty for all ablebodied men; hence there is no severe suffering anticipated. Food is arriving in abundance, and the greatest present want is heavy clothing, as the nights are chilly and many are suffering in this respect. The prompt and efficient service rendered by the military in preserving the remaining property is the theme of constant and appreciative comment.

The dawn of each succeeding day brings brighter prospects, and the hope of the energetic men who made Chicago what it was is strengthened. Twenty-one columns of the Tribune were on the 13th filled with advertisements of business changes. Builders are overwhelmed with applications to put up new houses. One man made sixteen contracts on the 12th.

The agency of the Ætna insurance Company are paying their losses, which they claim will not reach $3,000,000. Evidence is accumulating that the loss of life is greater than heretofore estimated. The county supervisors resolved to rebuild the court-house at once. The amount of funds saved from the vaults of the banks, added to the balances in New York, leaves them an amounts of cash equal to 40 or 50 per cent. This, with the insurances that will be paid, insures the collection of 75 per cent. of their loans by the banks. The Liverpool, London and Globe insurance company has ordered the payment of its losses immediately. The aggregate losses of this company are about two millions.

The lusurance companies outside of New York will probably pay eighty-five cents on a dollar of all Chicago risks, and those in New York will pay as much or more.

The incidents of the fire fill many columns of our exchanges. There were 89 newspapers establishments destroyed in the burnt district, embracing dailies and monthlies.

It is rumored that Henry J. Ullman, banker, was murdered instead of suffocate. His body was found near the banking house, which he had evidently just left with money and valuables in his arms.

Aaron and Billy Tracey, were robbing a jewelry store in Chicago when citizens hung them to lamp-posts. Jim Munday and Jim Brown were robbing a bank opposite the Sherman House when the soldiers stood them up against a wall and shot them. All belonged to a New York gang.

Miss Laura E. Rollins says:—I saw houses that had been deserted entered by ill-looking fellows, who ransacked bureaus and closets. There was no time to speak to them. Many people in the haste of their escape abandoned everything, even to jewelry and money. I saw one fellow's pocket half full of jewelry and watches. I spoke of it; but in an instant he lost himself in the crowd. I saw a colored man with a lady's chatelaine chain suspended awkardly at his vest. A little girl had walked until the hot pavements blistered her little feet. Then we carried her. "Is papa and mamma burnt up? is Neddie burnt up dead?" she piteously asked. Late at night we found them all safe.

A correspondent of the New York World gives the following account of the origin of the fire: on Sunday evening flames broke out in a small barn near the corner of Forquar and Jefferson streets, on the west side. The premises were owned by an old Irish woman. For several years she was a pensioner on the bounty of the county. The relief agent helped her because her appearance indicated great poverty. About one year ago it was accidentally discovered she was the owner of six milch cows. Then the agent refused to assist her further. She was in the habit of visiting her cows every evening. On Saturday night she took the lamp in her hand and went out in the barn. Then she wanted some salt from the house, and she set the lamp down to go after it. A moment later and the barn was in flames. The heavy wind drove it from house to house, and soon the carnival had commenced. Toward the north crept the fire, swiftly and surely. The only house left standing on the block where the first fire broke out was the one occupied by the old Irish woman. On the following day she sat on her front door step, moaning bitterly because the fire had burned up her cows. She was too ignorant to understand what a calamity had overtaken the proud city of the West through her own carelessness.

One gentleman met among the thousands rushing distractedly hither and thither a German family who had just come over the Rush street bridge, consisting of four small children in their night clothes, the mother with a child at the breast almost naked, having simply a small quilt thrown around her shoulders, and the father clad solely in a pair of pants. They had nothing whatever on their feet, which were blistered by the hot pavements.

The Elections.

The Republican majority in Iowa is upwards of 45,000.

Senator Sherman will probably be reelected in Ohio. The senate is equally divided—18 Republicans and 18 Democrats. The lieutenant-governor has the casting vote, thus assuring a republican majority in both branches of the legislature.

A Virtuous Democrat.—The Manchester Union "happens to know that one of our Democratic members of Congress refuses to frank letters to his wife." True for once,—the Democratic member who lives at Manchester, Mr. Bell, has no wife, being yet a merrie bachelor. "Refuses to frank letters to his wife" is good.

The Domestic Sewing Machine.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Lung fever, common cold, catarrhal fever, and nasal discharge of a brownish color in horses, may be checked at once by liberal use of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders.

The season for coughs and colds is rapidly approaching, and every one should be prepared to check the first symptoms, as a cough contracted between now and Christmas frequently lasts all winter. There is no better remedy than "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment." For all diseases of throat and lungs, it should be used internally and externally.

THE EUROPEAN QUESTION.

What is the European question to us? Let the crowned heads fight it out while we supply their armies with provisions.

THE AMERICAN QUESTION

An Anchor to Windward.

It is good seamanship, where there is reason to expect heavy weather, to drop an anchor to windward.

We are in the midst of the season of chills and fever. The sure preventive of this distressing malady is HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. A course of that wholesome vegetable tonic will render an attack impossible. Take the hint and drop an anchor to windward.

Weak stomachs are most liable to be disordered late in the autumn, when the changes of temperature are marked and frequent. Hostetter's Bitters fortifies the stomach against the effects of these variations. Let dyspeptics make a note of the fact, and drop an anchor to windward.

The liver is most sensitive when the weather is continually alternative between the warmth of summer and the cold of winter than at any other period of the year. This is peculiarly the season of such alterations. Let the bilious remember that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is essentially an anti-bilious medicine, and drop an anchor to windward.

The wisest plan is to forestall evil. The next best thing is to arrest it. For disorders of the stomach, irregularities of the bowels, and all periodical fevers, take, at soon as the complaint developes itself, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters.

THE GERMAN LOSSES IN THE WAR. Official lists of the losses of the German armies in the recent war with France have been completed. The total stated is 111,000, of whom 18,000 are set down as dead, 87,000 wounded, and 6000 missing. The smallness of the figures is surprising, but their accuracy is vouched for by the official authorities. Of course the German armies were everywhere victorious and everywhere made advances, and these favorable circumstances had much to do with reducing their losses. It is the defeated and disheartened army that always suffers the most in a campaign. The exhilaration of success is a surprising cure for the wounded soldier.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. The Fall Trade

Is commencing. C. N. Shaw & Co. and J. M. Tebbetts announce "Openings" in our advertising columns.

Milburn,

The rival of Lingard, and by some thought to be his superior, comes to-morrow evening. Mrs. Milburn is also highly spoken of as a specialty artiste.

Presentation.

Mr. Moses Yeaton, Jr., has relinquished his position as teacher at the Cabot Street school house, and goes to New London Academy. As a mark of confidence in and respect for their young teacher, the scholars made him a present of a complete set of Cruden's Concordance. Mr. William G. Kidder, of East Boston, succeeds Mr. Yeaton.

Glass Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Deverson, residing on Cass Street in this city, celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of their wedding day on Thursday evening last. According to the modern custom of denominating such anniversaries, this was styled a glass wedding, and the presents were mostly of that useful material. Among the gifts was a glass tea-set.

Another Opportunity

Is offered our benevolently inclined citizens to contribute to the Chicago sufferers this evening. Mr. George Vandenhoff, whose fame as a Reader is national, has generously offered to give readings for the purpose. At $1 a ticket, Congress Hall should be filled, at least, and if all thoroughly realize the destitution wrought by the fire fiend, Congress Hall should be too small to hold the audience. If 500 tickets are sold to-day the Reading will come off at the Temple. Tickets at Preston's.

Aid For Chicago.

The Benefit Concert at the Temple, Sunday evening, drew a smaller audience than we anticipated it would, about one-third more people than commonly attend the performances of minstrel troupes being present; but as there were no dead heads, the concert added a handsome sum to the sufferers' aid fund. The sidewalk-and-street-corner audience was also larger than common, and unusually select; but we do not know that they increased the receipts much. The chorus included many members and past members of the Philharmonic Society, a large part of the various church choirs, and other singers; the orchestra consisted of Harlow's Marine Band and other musicians; Mr. E. A. Tilton manipulated the keys of the piano, and Mr. A. Pearson conducted. The various pieces performed went off better than might have been expected, when the large number engaged is considered and that there had been but one rehearsal; many of the old tunes were really grand. Soon after 9 o'clock a false alarm of fire was raised, occasioned, as we are informed, by a drunken man on Congress Street undertaking a solo, in which the out-of-doors audience around the Temple joined as a grand chorus, upon which the inside audience came out and went to look for the fire.

The first box of goods for the Chicago sufferers was received by Trafton & Co.'s Express from Mr. Albert H. Tucker, No. 12 Market Street, and was forwarded Friday morning.

A Scoundrel Adrift in Kittery.

Our Kittery correspondent writes, under date of Oct. 15, (Sunday,) that "an alarm of fire was given a few minutes before 12 o'clock last night, caused by the partial burning of the store occupied by Messrs. Ireland & Sweat, grocers, who had been replenishing their stock for the winter's trade, and had their store full. Their loss is about $5000; insured $3500, in the Manhattan Insurance Co.

The store is said to belong to Messrs. Oliver Cutts and Mark W. Paul, but whether it is insured or not is not stated. The damage to the building will not probably exceed $1000.

The fire was the work of an incendiary, was set in the cellar-way of the tenement in the rear end of the store, and spread up the stairs. Had it reached the kerosene and other inflammable fluids stored in the cellar, our little village would have had as disastrous a fire as Chicago, the relative size of the two places considered, for probably not a house would have been left standing in the lower part of the village. Mr. Thomas, a boarder in the tenement situated over the store, discovered the fire and gave the alarm; he was nearly suffocated by the smoke, and saved his life by jumping from a window.

The alarm brought out several hundred men in a few minutes, among them Commodore Pennock and several other officers of the Navy Yard, Capt. Fairfax personally directing the movements of the fire engine from the Yard. Our citizens speak warmly regarding the prompt and efficient service rendered by Capt. Fairfax and the other officers attached to the Station, and by the Navy Yard fire engine,—as well they may, for it doubtless contributed much towards saving our village, though the citizens had already flooded every place that could be got at with buckets of water, when they arrived; Messrs. Richard Philbrick, Samuel Givens, Charles Hayes, Charles Cottle and others being especially noticable for their activity and energy. The goods in the store were damaged mainly by water and smoke.

Who the incendiary is has not yet been discovered, nor what his motive; some think his object is to steal, but this is unlikely, all things considered. A stranger was seen running away with a cheese, during the fire, but dropped it and escaped on being pursued,—and it is not very likely a man would fire a building for the sake of stealing a cheese. More probably he is venting a personal spite against Mr. Sweat, whose trees have been girdled, his barn fired, his well poisoned, harness cut, etc., though no reason can be given why any person should cherish a grudge against him, as he is a quiet and inoffensive man and a good citizen. The malicious villain who perpetrated these acts is doubtless the one who recently tapped a cask of molasses at Ireland & Sweat's door, who has been laying poisoned meat about the town, and has for three nights in succession attempted to fire the building known as the Tabernacle, (owned by the Hayes heirs,) beneath which Ireland & Sweat have kept their large store-wagon. The latter fires went out of themselves, and matches, kerosene and powder were found mixed with other easily-kindled materials. The feeling aroused among our citizens by these outrages is such that the perpetrator might get roughly handled, if caught."

We advise all persons to seek redress from the strong arm of the law, in all cases; and we counsel no violence; but if our correspondent's pen picture is not greatly overdrawn, we do not imagine that public opinion would be very severe on the citizens of Kittery should they use the miserable sneak's carcass to stretch a rope with, when they catch him, or that a jury would give him heavy damages for having holes bored in his shirt-bosom with buckshot or slugs. We are somewhat acquainted with Mr. Sweat and his partner, Mr. Ireland, and are wholly at a loss to find a reason why any person should wish to injure either of them.

Since the foregoing was in type we learn that a woman was placed under guard on Sunday, on suspicion of her being the incendiary and molasses-sampler. We do not know as she is suspected of the previous outrages, and refrain from giving her name until further developments.

National Insurance Co.

The New York Insurance Monitor, speaking of the above named company, says:

The National Insurance Co. of Bangor, Me., to whose annual statement, presented on an illuminated page of this No. we take great pleasure in calling special attention, has just completed its year's business; and an examination of the figures presented, shows an eminently satisfactory result to all interested in the success of that corporation. The business tact of Mr. President Schwartz, and the increasing diligence and indomitable industry of its hard working Secretary, Mr. Herbert Fuller, ably seconded by a corps of active and efficient agents, have resulted as was desired, and might have been expected. One point, which reveals real merit in the work done, in the ratio of loss to premium: this is less than 24 per cent. for the year, which has just closed. This figure indicates a careful selection of risks and a diligent supervision of business.

Mr. A. F. Howard is agent in the city for the National, an advertisement of which is in another column.

JAMES WILSON lived long enough to be hung at Hartford after forcing a sharpened wire into his heart.

—Bears are to be found in immense numbers on the Alaska mainland. They are of enormous size, but do not envince the ferocity of that California animal. It is a fact that contact with civilization increases the ferocity of bruin and his whole tribe.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.

BANKING OFFICE OF

FISK & HATCH,

No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.

September 25th, 1871.

Of the FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE and OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $4,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be soon taken.

The five years' option having expired on the series of FIVE-TWENTY BONDS, except 1867s and 1868s, they are liable to be called in for payment. The redemption of 100 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchases by the Government during the ensuing four months, with the proceeds thereon, will release about 150 millions of invested capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek investment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sixes

have absolutely 20 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought

17 per cent. less than Ten-forties.
40 per cent. less than Five-twenties,
25 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,

and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price (at present) 93 and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1.

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $934.16.

$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $477.08.

$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $95.42.

Only a small amount of the latter denominations remains, and no more can be made. Bonds are in coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.

The debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company in order more speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work —the most important internal improvement now progressing in the country—is rapidly approaching completion. It will establish another and superior line of communication between the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the Eastern States, and nearer to the political and commercial capitals of their country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line that the larger cities of the West are projecting feeders to connect with it, so as to avail themselves of its unequaled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are passing into the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of reliable navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad carriage.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC SIX PER CENT. BONDS are as safe for investment as Government Bonds. Their amount is limited by act of Congress to $25,885,000, is secured by property worth five times their value; they can only be bought in the open market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they have a ready market in all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are steadily increasing, and will probably reach $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a handsome surplus after payment of expenses and interest. Present price, 101½ to 102.

When the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, in 1872, and the Bonds are dealt in at the Stock Exchanges of the world, we have no doubt they will be equally popular with the Central Pacifics. Both principal and interest of the CENTRAL PACIFIC and CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS, are specifically payable in gold coin in New York; the interest on the former being paid January and July, and of the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.

We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, EIGHTY-ONES, and CENTRAL or WESTERN PACIFICS, or receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be forwarded by any responsible Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid. FISK & HATCH.

COMPENSATION.

You think I'm nervous, stranger? Well I am!
If 'twan't for making silly people talk
I'd git right off this pokiah train and walk
From here to where I'm going—Amsterdam.

That's where I live you see. As for La Crosse—
(Excuse me, neighbor, I must talk or bust)
Since I've been there it's three years certain just;
And now to laugh or cry is just a toss.

"Married?" Why, yes, that's where it is you see;
I've telegraphed that I was strong and well,
And coming to her; but I didn't tell
That I was rich. I thought I'd let that be.

It's too good luck, this is, to last I know,
And stranger, if it wasn't kind of rash,
I'd bet my bottom dollar that we'll smash
Before—but pshaw! excuse me, I'll go slow.

You see when we were married, Sue and I,
I was a good mechanic and not poor
Until I struck it, as I reckoned sure,
In an invention I was working sly.

All I could make went into that concern;
And people called me crazy for it, too,
And said I'd better stick to what I knew;
But folks will talk, and have to live and learn.

In all this world I had but one friend then,
But she stood by me nobly, through and thro',
And said 'twould come out right at last she knew;
One woman staunch is worth a dozen men.

'Twas tough sometimes, though when a loaf of bread
Stood on the table—all the meal we had,
I should have gone alone quite to the bad
But through it all my Susan kept her head.

'Twas her advice that sent me off at last—
She said she'd work her fingers to the bone,
And live for twenty mortal years alone
Rather than give it up—thank God that's past!

* * * * * * * * *

Hello! we're here!—there's Sue, by all that's grand!
Stranger, excuse me sir, but would you mind
To go ahead and tell her I'm behind?
I'm choking, see my eyes—you understand.

A REMARKABLY INTERESTING CASE for scientists is the following, the account of which we take from the Great Falls Journal,—whose editor is probably related to the "Longbow" Demeritt of whom mention is made in the article.

The astounding story of James T. Anderson of Glenwood, Iowa, has been going the rounds of the papers. It is, that Mr. Anderson, as discovered by a diagnosis, broke his neck, but is still living, and promises to live with a dead body attached to his living head. Astonishing as this story is, it is hardly more remarkable than that of Holdfast Demeritt, of Durham, as vouched for by a friend of ours, who was at school there some thirty years ago.

It seems that Mr. Demeritt had a taste chemistry, and behind his barn, a laboratory in which he prosecuted ments in his favorite science. ally seating himself one day ch crystal filled with fulmi- ture of percussion caps, p, and falling, broke g it with great force young apple-tree. ive, but his phys- e his removal silver cord" d his spirit small but ordingly or five hree of

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS.
Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.
WHAT ARE THEY!
THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,
Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.
For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.
DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.
They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.
FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.
Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.
PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.
FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.
They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawfwb16

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.

The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutrient part of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.
The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ is torpid, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the lacteals are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup nourishes the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.
The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is a new order of things, a good appetite, a good nutrition, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, and if a person is very bad, if the lungs are not entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up, there is hope.
I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's medicines will do to cure Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.
It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep in-doors in cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.
I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason. A man who has but partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is far more liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and it is precisely the same in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not genial and pleasant. Confirmed consumptives' lungs are a mass of sores, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The grand secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to subdue inflammation instead of provoking it, as many of the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety be the patient be exposed to the biting blasts of winter or the chilling winds of spring or autumn. It should be carefully shielded from all irritating influences. The utmost caution should be observed in this particular, as without it a cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.
The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutricious diet, and all the medicines continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.
I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty these many years, with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment whom I have never seen.
About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.
Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

The Chronicle.

THE CYCLONE AT ST. THOMAS.—We are indebted to a correspondent for a copy of the St. Thomas Times, which gives us full details of the fearful Cyclone which recently devastated that unfortunate island. It was preceded by an oppressive stillness of the atmosphere, and the heat was most distressing even for that latitude. After the great work of destruction had commenced there was a sudden calm—the centre of the cyclone was passing over the island, which seemed to be shut in all around with a heavy pall of of ominous darkness. The heavens appeared to have contracted. The air was unnatually still, as if, after the violent effort, nature was catching its breath for another fierce onslaught. During the calm the barometer reached its lowest point. The calm lasted for about half an hour, when the hurricane recommenced. Its duration appears to have been about four hours. The night which followed was one of intense darkness, and the morning revealed the full extent of the fearful havoc caused by the violence of the wind. Of some houses there was scarcely a vestige left. Others were turned upside down. One house, a new brick building of three stories, had the upper story shaved off. Another house, a wooden building, also of three stories, had the middle story blown away, leaving the third story dropped down on the first. Stone walls and brick walls were blown down. Solid masonry was blown away. The dead and dying were extricated from beneath many of the ruins, and others were picked up in the streets, where they had been struck down by the flying missiles. As far as had been ascertained the number of dead was 27, and of wounded 30. There was not much shipping in the harbor, and what there was, having thus more room in which to swing, was not much injured. Only one vessel, a British barque, with a cargo of 670 hhds. of sugar, was a total wreck. Several others escaped with the loss of spars, and some were run on shore. This cyclone seems to have been more extensive, covering a greater area, than that of 1867; the central calm occupied a longer time in passing over the island; it has caused more destruction in the town, and therefore it may be said that it was more severe. That it caused less in the harbor was due to there being less to destroy.—Journal.

New Publications.

The Atlantic Monthly for November has an article by Edmund C. Stedman on "Tennyson and Theocritus." Mr. Fields gives a pleasant account of a visit to Dickens at Gadshill. Mr. De Forest's and Mr. H. James' stories are continued. Mr. Goodell, M. D., writes of "The Bedlams of Stamboul." Clarence King, under the title "Wayside Pikes," gives us a sketch of the people, who live among the Sierras. "California saved" is the title of a paper by Stephen Powers, who argues to show that the completion of the Pacific Railroad has effected a crisis in the affairs of California, the result of which will be that the Chinamen will cease coming to America, and the State will be filled up by the Caucasian race. The poetry of the number is by Celia Thaxter, M. E. N. Hathaway and Carl Spencer.

Our Young Folks, for October, has three more chapters of Mr. Trowbridge's story, and a poem by the same gentleman, with much more interesting reading for the children by authors whom they have come to regard as friends.

A STARTLING RAILROAD ADVENTURE. Parties who arrived at Terre Haute last week on the Evansville and Crawfordsville railroad had quite an adventurous ride. When the train was midway between Decker's and Purcell's stations it was met by the most tremendous hail storm. Such was its force that the engineer was obliged to stop the train. Hailstones three inches in diameter rattled down upon the coaches, knocked the window lights from the cab, and demolished the headlight of the engine. The engineer and fireman were obliged to seek refuge by hugging close to the machinery. The storm, though severe, was of brief duration, and when it had stopped, the train moved on.

When nearing Sullivan the engineer discovered a brilliant light ahead, which was caused by the burning of thirty cords of wood which was lying close to the track. The train backed down to a station three miles away, and then returned to the scene of the conflagration with a gang of section men, who at once set to work to extinguish the flames. The engineer then backed his train away from the scene some distance, and, after the doors and blinds of the windows had been carefully closed, he let on a full head of steam and went past the fire at a speed of fifty miles an hour, the heat being so intense as to scorch the sides of the coaches as they passed, even at the high rate of speed.

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give rest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES — SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appears. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale at "item price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1871.

The Reports from the West

Are appalling. The fires have swept county after county, licking up forests, towns and villages in its course, destroying hundreds of lives, maiming and crippling immense numbers of the survivors, and reducing the whole population of vast districts from comfortable independence to frightful want. So great is the disaster that the utter wiping out of towns of a hundred or more houses, and the destruction of many or most of their inhabitants, receive in many cases but a single sentence of notice in the newspaper reports. The privation and suffering in these country districts will be greater than in Chicago, for the rebuilding of the latter place will give employment for all, or nearly all, during the winter, while the burned forests and desolate farms of Michigan and Wisconsin promise absolutely no aid to any for a long time to come. The poor country people, the industrious farmers and lumbermen, are worthy of all assistance and encouragement in this their hour of great extremity; and they must have it. The wants of Chicago are great, but those of the country districts are even greater; and a liberal opening of the hands by the wealthy—by all who can afford to give anything, however little—will be an imperative duty for many months to come. Boston has already started in the matter of aiding the country people with any overplus of supplies for Chicago, and the other cities and towns of the East will follow. While we remember Chicago, let us not forget the sufferers in the woods, on the prairies or the borders of the great lakes.

The Western Fires.

Later accounts from Michigan and Wisconsin report the loss of life to be far greater than at Chicago. Advices to the 14th, from Wisconsin, state that at Brussels, in Dorr County, only five houses were left standing and 63 persons were burned to death, and 55 lives were lost at Sturgeon Bay. Menekaunee is destroyed, but only 2 persons. At Birch Creek 12 persons were burned and 3 escaped. In Peshigo and its immediate vicinity 1200 lives were lost.

A special despatch to the New York World says that 400 dead bodies have been [illegible] and 300 more are in the river. The velocity of the fire was so great that escape was impossible. The loss of the loss on the east shore in Dover and Kewanee counties was appaling. The town of Merekauge is in ruins. The road is filled with carcasses of animals. The people are wandering about, destitute and helpless. It was reported that the whole West was on fire from Green Bay to Menominee. Fort Howard was threatened, but heavy showers fell on the 12th for the first time in two months, and it was hoped that the conflagration would be stayed. Great numbers of destitute women have been brought to Green Bay. Men and women were partially roasted alive, their eyes being destroyed and their ears burned off. Advices from Fon du Lac say reports from the northwestern districts grow hourly worse, and the accounts of suffering are unparalleled. Clothes, food and money are greatly needed. Great fires are reported in Calumet county; not a single town in the county escaped. Crops were also destroyed. Marietta and Niametti were partially saved. A heavy rain had nearly extinguished the fires in Calumet and Steeberigan counties."

It is now reported that a tornodo accompanied by balls of fire and flashes of lightning, moving in a track ten miles wide, caused the destruction of Peshtigo, and that 1500 persons were burned to death by it.

The Chicago Fire.

Eight miles and a quarter from the Court House, twenty-four hours after the fire, such was the lurid brightness that "a quarter to nine" was read on the dial face of a watch in the open street, and not a star shining in the heavens.

A gentleman who has been afflicted for a long time with a cancer, resided in rooms in Lombard Block, attended by two ladies, relatives, a sister and a niece. In the dire extremeity in which the party were placed, and notwithstanding the invalid pleaded that the ladies would save themselves and what valuables they could, and leave him to be burned, and thus an end be put to his misery, they seized him, carried him bodily down three flight of stairs and finally placed him in a position of safety. And here it may be mentioned as an instance of the extortion practiced upon humanity, that an expressman was offered $50 to take them to Twelfth street, but refused—asking $100.

When the destruction of the contents of some stores was inevitable, the people were told to help themselves. In a boot and shoe establishment a man was noted leisurely trying on a pair of boots to get a perfect fit, while the rear of the store was in flames.

When fire was rushing southward along Michigan and Wabash avenues like a race horse, and fireman and people were paralyzed, a new leader suddenly burst upon the scene. Gen Sheridan, "fighting Phil," who can fight rebels or flames, sprang upon a fire engine and made one of those sharp, stirring speeches for which he is noted. He told the people that if they would save the city the fire line must be broken by gunpowder; the buildings must be blown up, and if they would go to work systematically, he would assist them. The effect was electrical. The crowd recognizing the hero of so many battlefields, and having faith in his leadership, replied with hurrahs, and acting under the General's orders, in a few minutes so many buildings had been blown up that the fire line was broken, and the southern portion of the city saved from destruction.

The following particulars of the fire are from the Chicago papers, principally from the Tribune: Gangs of armed ruffians were everywhere patrolling about, hunting for plunder, and breaking into safes without the slightest interference from any one in authority. A remonstrance was met with a blow of a bludgeon, and few had the temerity to interfere, and the brutes, too, seemed to have it all their own way. Heated with whiskey and excitement, they caused a complete reign of terror, and where they came every one fled. The mayor had early issued a proclamation directing the closing of the saloons, but no attention was paid to it; the police made no endeavor to enforce it, and in nine cases out of ten were themselves intoxicated.

One writer says: I was startled to see a building in flames, and still more so by hearing a rapid succession of shots. I ran to the spot and learned the cause of the excitement. Four men-ghouls and one woman had set fire to several dwelling-houses and were endeavoring to escape in the confusion. They were, however, discovered by some of the infuriated inhabitants, and a shower of balls was sent after them which had the effect of bringing down three of the number, two men and the woman. The other two were caught, ropes were strung around their necks and they were hanged from the nearest lamp-posts. Another writer says: It is almost incredible, but my eyes were witness to seven diabolical attempts to burn the remaining portions of the city. Two men were detected in an attempt to fire the Church of the Holy Family. They were promptly shot. Near the same place I saw a man hanging from a lamp-post with a handkerchief around his neck and a label tied to his breast, with the word "Arson" written on it. In different parts of the city nine others were killed in their attempts at incendiarisms. A man was detected firing a frame building. When arrested eight small vials of nitro-glycerine were found secreted on his person. After a very brief counsel it was determined to tie a rope, with a rock attached, around the fiend and bury him in the lake. I saw him drown.

An expressman made this reply to a son and daughter who had carried their sick father in their arms from a third story to the street, and who offered the expressman $15 to carry him a few blocks out of danger; "Don't talk about $15 to me. Say $1000 and I will talk with you." They had no more money and tried to carry their father, who urged them to abandon him and save themselves; but they would not, and were overtaken by the flames and perished. Twenty-five or thirty servant-girls rushed to the roof of one of the large hotels to leap into the streets below, but the whole roof fell in and they were engulfed. A patrol on Harrison Street found a man skulking under the sidewalk in the vicinity of a butcher-shop. He was called upon to come out and account for himself, but instead of doing so he flourished a knife and made incendiary threats. The patrol caught him and with staves pounded him to death.

The two thousand acres of almost impassable ruins, with but a single building remaining—and that, queerly enough, a wooden house which stood untouched in the very thickest of the conflagration—are a terrible reality and may easily be realized. The Tribune publishes a list of the burned buildings, including over a hundred blocks and public edifices and some forty banks, while only about a dozen escaped. The vault of the custom-house was opened Saturday. It contained $1,000,000 in gold and $2,000,000 in greenbacks. The gold was melted almost to a solid mass, but is safe in the shape of bullion. The greenbacks were entirely consumed. The foundations of most of the consumed buildings are uninjured. The gas and water pipes are laid through all the streets of the city. The sewerage was nearly complete before the conflagration, and was uninjured by it. The damage to the water-works was very slight, and within a few days they will be in full operation again. The bridges are nearly all preserved. The lake tunnel by which the city is supplied with water, the tunnel under the main river, and that under the south branch are all uninjured. These works alone may be counted as constituting from twenty to forty per cent. of the cost of rebuilding the city.

Besides the destruction of all the newspaper offices, together with all their records and files, the loss of valuable works of art was very severe. Rothermel's Gettysburg, which had been torn from its frame and carried to a place of supposed safety, was lost; also Bierstadt's Yosemite Valley. By the destruction of the Historical Society rooms complete sets of files of Chicago newspapers, complete sets of Chicago battle flags, the Healey gallery of three hundred valuable paintings, Deihl's Hamlet, contours of the Prodigal Son and Volke's bust of Lincoln, the only one for which Mr. Lincoln ever had a life sitting, were lost.

Inspired by the opportunity, the thriving Shylocks came out Wednesday resolved to turn the misfortunes of the city to golden account. Bread went up to fabulous rates. All sorts of provisions, though by no means scarce, were put up to extravagant prices, the remaining hotels doubled their former rates, and general dismay fell upon the hopeless community; but General Sheridan fell upon the vampires with a general order, and routed them with real live words. To the baker he proclaimed cheap bread; to the hotel men living rates, or he would run the machines himself. This restored the natural state of things, and the city under the new impulse fell into a more healthy attitude.

The Manhattan Fire Insurance Co. of New York has suspended, but will pay it losses. The American of Providence and the Putnam of Hartford have suspended. The Pacific of San Francisco will pay everything.

Among the New York donations to Chicago sufferers were five cases, containing 1500 rations of Erb's fleischwurst, by Col. Julian Allen, who is sole agent in the United States for the sale of the preparation, which sustained the German army in the late war with France. It can be prepared for use in five minutes.

The stories of the hanging or shooting down of incendiaries are denied point-blank by the coroner.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. As the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Lung fever, common cold, catarrhal fever, and nasal discharge of a brownish color in horses, may be checked at once by liberal use of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders.

The season for coughs and colds is rapidly approaching, and every one should be prepared to check the first symptoms, as a cough contracted between now and Christmas frequently lasts all winter. There is no better remedy than "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment." For all diseases of throat and lungs, it should be used internally and externally.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

An Anchor to Windward.

It is good seamanship, where there is reason to expect heavy weather, to drop an anchor to windward.

We are in the midst of the season of chills and fever. The sure preventive of this distressing malady is HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. A course of that wholesome vegetable tonic will render an attack impossible. Take the hint and drop an anchor to windward.

Weak stomachs are most liable to be disordered late in the autumn, when the changes of temperature are marked and frequent. Hostetter's Bitters fortifies the stomach against the effects of these variations. Let dyspeptics make a note of the fact, and drop an anchor to windward.

The liver is most sensitive when the weather is continually alternative between the warmth of summer and the cold of winter than at any other period of the year. This is peculiarly the season of such alterations. Let the bilious remember that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is essentially an anti-bilious medicine, and drop an anchor to windward.

The wisest plan is to forestall evil. The next best thing is to arrest it. For disorders of the stomach, irregularities of the bowels, and all periodical fevers, take, as soon as the complaint developes itself, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters.

Political.

The Saratoga (N. Y.) Democrats repudiate Tweed and the late democratic convention; and there is a good prospect of a democratic split in Brooklyn.

Senator Sherman's chances for a reelection are believed to be all right.

One of the delegates to the New York Democratic State Convention has been found guilty of robbing emigrants and sent to Sing Sing for five years. Two or three more of the same ilk are in a fair way to follow him to the same forced retreat.

—Sam Swartwout stole $300,000 in New York and ran off to Europe. But his bondsmen made good every dollar to the Government. Tobias Watkins, if we mistake not, stole $500, or could not account for it, and this is the extent of Democratic stealings for sixty years. Manchester Public Forum.

We're so glad to receive the above information. The Public Forum beats the Associated Press and the American Press Association both put together, in getting the "very latest" news. Send it all over the country, quick—nobody else would ever have found it out.

Ministerial Association Meeting.

The Dover District Ministerial Association meets in this city on Wednesday and Thursday of this week, at the M. E. Church on State Street. Services day and evening, at the usual hours of worship. The public are invited to attend.

Police Affairs.

Wm. Keith was brought before the Police Court on Monday, on complaint of officers C. W. Rand and Geo. Fernald, for selling liquor on Sunday morning at half-past 12 o'clock. The officers saw a light in his place on Penhallow Street, entered and caught him in the act of dealing out stimulants. Fined $10 and $9.18 costs.

Patrick Scanlon, complained of by his mother-in-law for beating his wife, was discharged, his wife not appearing against him.

Peter Sullivan was drunk on Sunday afternoon, in State Street, and handed over $8.76 as a solatium for the injuries he inflicted on the peace and dignity of the town by so doing.

Abner L. Colby and Jos. Ferguson, seamen, were arrested on board a schooner on Monday, on suspicion of having stolen a gold watch and chain, valued at $200, from Geo. Scott.

Complimentary to Mr. King.

The alarm of fire which disturbed the city at 9 o'clock Sunday evening, we credited to a "drunken man," and the local Democratic paper to "thoughtless boys" or "maliciously thoughtful men." Mr. Robert King thinks these names a trifle undeserved on his part, as there was a fire and he was one of the first to give the alarm, if not the first; and the many who know and esteem that gentleman will cordially endorse his opinion. The fire was occasioned by a curtain in a tenement house on Bridge street blowing across a lighted lamp, the window being partially open. The curtain was destroyed, and the house would probably soon have been but for the prompt discovery of the danger. "The papers" of course know nothing about the true state of the case when they called the alarm a false one, and the general impression was that there hadn't been a spark of fire seen in any place where fire ought not to be.

The Kittery Fire.

Miss Susan J. Staples was arraigned on Monday before Justice Dennett of York, on suspicion of having caused the recent fire; S. H. Goodall, Esq., of this city, for the prosecution; William H. Hackett, Esq., for the defence. A large crowd gathered in the forenoon near the building the upper room of which is used for the holding of police courts, but in consequence of the non-arrival of counsel the trial did not commence until near 3 o'clock in the afternoon. A score of witnesses were brought forward, and enough testimony adduced to afford gossip for any ordinary country village for a twelvemonth. Some of the testimony was rather damaging to the accused, but the most of it was irrelevant and failed to implicate her to the extent promised by the prosecuting attorney, though the Judge considered the evidence sufficient to warrant her being bound over in $2000 to appear for trial at a higher court.

Aid for Chicago.

Mr. Albert H. Tucker on Monday received from Myers & Simpson $25 worth of new and serviceable clothing, and from Benj. Cheever and Cheever & Brown about $60 worth, for transmission to Chicago. Mr. Tucker has already collected clothing sufficient to fill four large cases, which have been forwarded to the Y. M. C. A. of Chicago for distribution.

The Sunday evening concert added $150 to the relief fund.

Mr. George Vandenhoff was met by a good house at the Temple, Tuesday evening, and the proceeds amounted to about $300. The audience enjoyed a splendid evening's entertainment, besides the pleasant consciousness of having contributed in aid of a good cause. Mr. Vandenhoff's reputation as a reader is too widely known and too well established to need any commendation from us, and his prompt and generous action in this matter shows that he can feel for the misfortunes of others as well as delight them with his great abilities.

The employes of the Concord Railroad and all its branches have decided to give one day's earnings to the Chicago sufferers. The amount will be over $1000.

"Love and Pride,"

At the Temple this evening, by Milburn and his assistant artistes. If the opinion expressed by many papers is correct, that Milburn is superior to Lingard, his patrons will enjoy their evening's entertainment. See adv't.

President Grant

Will pass through this city this forenoon on his way to take part in the opening ceremonies of the European & North American Railroad. The City Government will meet at half-past nine o'clock and proceed to the depot, to pay their respects as he passes. The party will consist, besides the President, of Mrs. Grant, Miss Nellie Grant, Postmaster General Cresswell and wife, General Porter, Congressman Twitchell, Speaker Blaine, Mrs. Jonathan Cresswell and niece, Miss M. B. McIntyre, Secretary Boutwell and others. The train will probably make a few minutes' stop.

National Insurance Co.

The New York Insurance Monitor, speaking of the above named company, says:

The National Insurance Co. of Bangor, Me., to whose annual statement, presented on an illuminated page of this No. we take great pleasure in calling special attention, has just completed its year's business; and an examination of the figures presented, shows an eminently satisfactory result to all interested in the success of that corporation. The business tact of Mr. President Schwartz, and the increasing diligence and indomitable industry of its hard working Secretary, Mr. Herbert Fuller, ably seconded by a corps of active and efficient agents, have resulted as was desired, and might have been expected. One point, which reveals real merit in the work done, is the ratio of loss to premium; this is less than 24 per cent. for the year, which has just closed. This figure indicates a careful selection of risks and a diligent supervision of business.

Mr. A. F. Howard is agent in this city for the National, an advertisement of which is in another column.

Why Are We Treated Thus?

What have we done, or omitted to do, that the Manchester Forum is silent as to our existence? Why are we thus slighted? Did we not cordially welcome its editor back to the ranks editorial in New Hampshire, and warn the Mirror not to indulge in any unseemly levity when speaking of that appalling creature? Indeed we did. Did the Forum's editor wrongfully infer from our previous notices that we do not stand properly in awe of him and his terrible pen? If so, he is mistaken, for we raked up all the awe at our disposal, and it is very much at his service. How could it be otherwise? Did we not read in his paper each day for years, that he is dreadful when you get him roused, and that all Republicans tremble in their boots when he roars? Do we not know that he is fearfully and wonderfully made? That his neck is clothed with sheet-copper Democratic thunder, second in quality only to the very best sheet-iron theatrical kind? That Jersey lightning of the forty-rod brand flashes from his eagle eye? That within he is full of dead men's bones, the bones of the myriads of Republicans he has devoured? That he reverses the fable of the ass that looked like a lion but betrayed himself by his voice, and roars like a lion but looks like—himself? That he smelleth the battle afar off, and loudly calleth for somebody to bring him the "last ditch" that he may recklessly die therein? That he is terrible as an army with squirt-guns? That he regardeth his creditors as dirt, and laugheth to scorn—as do others—those who hold his promises to pay? Verily, all this we know.

Does he think we do not value him highly enough, as a Republican editor? He is mistaken; we do. We remember that so long as he worked for the party in New Hampshire, the Democrats never won a victory; he left the State, and the copperheads carried it right away. He went to Connecticut and took charge of a paper, and even Tammany's stolen gold and alien repeaters couldn't save the State from going Republican. He has returned to New Hampshire, and the Republicans intend to carry this State all right again next year. We do value him—as one of the most useful editors to the Republican party that we know of; and as a hero, a man and a gentleman, we have exactly the same opinion of him we always had. We therefore still cherish a faint hope that we are not to be altogether ignored, and that the next issue of the Public Forum will give us the usual two columns of information regarding the frightful danger of offending its editor, and the terror with which he inspires Republicans in general and ourselves in particular. P.

—By the recent fire the currency will be contracted one million—the amount of greenbacks burned.

—The Mayor of Macon, Ga., offers a silver service to the prettiest girl who will appear at the State Fair in homespun.

—Mr. McFadden was knocked down by three runaway horses in succession, at Detroit. Disgusted at such treatment, he concluded to die.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.

BANKING OFFICE OF

FISK & HATCH,

No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.

September 25th, 1871.

Of the FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE and OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $4,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.

The five years' option having expired on all 1868s, they are liable to be called in for payment. The redemption of 100 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchases by the Government during the ensuing four months, with the premium thereon, will release about 150 millions of invested capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, to the greater part of which must seek reinvestment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sixes

have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought

17 per cent. less than Ten-forties,
20 per cent. less than Five-twenties,
25 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,

and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price to-day 93 and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1.

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $954.16.

$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $477.08.

$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $95.42.

Only a small amount of the latter denominations remains, and no more can be made. Bonds are in coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.

This debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company in order more speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work—the most important internal improvement now progressing in the country—is rapidly approaching completion, will establish another and superior line of communication between the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the Eastern States, and nearer to the political and commercial capitals of their country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line that the larger cities of the West are projecting feeders to completion, in order to avail themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are passing into the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of reliable navigation on the Ohio, which river intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad carriage.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC SIX PER CENT. BONDS are as safe for investment as Government Bonds. Their amount fixed by act of Congress at $25,883,000, is secured by property worth five times their value; they can only be bought in the open market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they have a steady demand in all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are readily increasing, and will probably reach $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a handsome surplus after payment of expenses and interest. Present price, 101½ to 102.

When the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, in 1872, and the Bonds are dealt in at the Stock Exchanges of the world, we have no doubt they will be equally popular with the Central Pacific. Both principal and interest of the CENTRAL PACIFIC and CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS are specifically payable in gold coin in New York; the interest on the former being paid January and July, and of the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.

We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, EIGHTEEN-OHIOS, and CENTRAL OR WESTERN PACIFICS, or receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be forwarded by any responsible Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid. FISK & HATCH.

P. S.—Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, on which we allow Four Per Cent. interest.

Certificates of deposit issued and collections made in all parts of the Union.

Morning Chronicle.

Base Ball.

The Mutuals forfeited their series of games to the Bostons on Monday, on account of the illness of Wolters, their pitcher. An exhibition game was played instead, Zettlein of the Chicago nine pitching for the Mutuals. It was the best game of the year. Eleven innings were played, in one hour and fifty minutes. Score, Bostons 5, Mutuals 4. The Bostons made one run in the first inning, one in the second, two in the eighth and one in the eleventh. The Mutuals made one in the fourth, two in the eighth and one in the ninth.

THE CORNER STONE of the Boston Post Office was laid on Monday, with Masonic rites. Addresses were made by Postmaster General Cresswell, G. M. Chas. Levi Woodbury and Mayor Shurtleff. The President, Vice President, Speaker Blaine and many other high officials took part, and the military and masonic display was immense and imposing.

THE EASTERN R. R. MANAGERS have decided to build a new station, corner of State and Market streets, Lynn. It is to be mainly constructed of iron, and it is the intention to complete it by the first of January. The old station on Central Square will be repaired and kept in use, a portion of the trains stopping at each station.

INCENDIARISM.—There were seven distinct fires in Syracuse, N. Y., on Saturday night—six the work of incendiaries. Fortunately no great damage resulted. There is supposed to be a plot to burn the city. Three attempts were made to burn London, Ontario, on Friday night. Special watchman are guarding the city.

THE STORM of Friday night was very severe in the maritime provinces. The wharves of Halifax were submerged, many vessels injured and some lives lost. On the Nova Scotia Railway the track was washed away, and the Maine Central and Grand Trunk railways in Maine suffered considerably.

—Van Buren, the defaulting pension agent of New York, has restored the money stolen, $12,000, to the tressury. Exchange.

We noticed in a Republican exchange, a short time ago, a statement that this Van Buren was a Democrat in principle and professed Republicanism only to [illegible] ashes, a charge which his official conduct seemed to justify; but this restitution business entirely upsets that theory, for the disgorging of plunder "officially" stolen is about as un-Democratic a proceeding as can be imagined. We are sorry to be obliged to say it, but Van Buren may possibly be a Republican after all.

—The Albany Argus says: Democrats denounce corruption wherever found, whether in the Federal Administration, affecting the whole people, or in the city of New York, affecting a locality.—Concord Patriot.

Yes, we know; and a good many other Democratic papers besides the Albany Argus say the same thing,—and a great pity it is that it isn't true.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS.
Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.
WHAT ARE THEY!
THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,
Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.
For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.
DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.
They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.
FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.
Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.
PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.
FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. Send for a circular.
They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. lyrdawfeb16

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.
The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clean out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.
The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ is torpid, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the lacteals are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup nourishes the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.
The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is a new order of things, a good appetite, a good nutritious the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, and if a person is very bad, if the lungs are nearly destroyed, so that only one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up, there is hope.
I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's medicines will do to cure Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.
It is important that while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep from doors in cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.
I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason. A man who has but partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is far more liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and it is precisely the same in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strongly caution pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not genial and pleasant. Confirmed consumptives' lungs are a mass of tubercles which the least atmospheric change will inflame. The grand secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to subdue inflammation instead of aggravating it, which is the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety to the patient be exposed to the biting blasts of winter or the chilly, damp air of early autumn. It should be carefully shielded from all irritating influence. The utmost caution should be observed in this particular, or without fail a cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.
The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutritious diet, and all the medicine continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.
I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty these many years, with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and they many have been cured by this treatment whom I have never seen.
About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.
Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

EIGHTEEN HOURS IN THE MUD.—The Detroit Free Press says that on the 25th ult. Henry Osster, a German, aged twenty-five years, employed on the farm of Richard Starks, near that city, went out to hunt for a missing cow. He took a rifle with him to shoot squirrels. In crossing a marsh near a creek, he sunk deep, and felt the mud dragging him still deeper. When he landed, his gun was wrenched from his hand and struck the marsh five or six feet away, alighting on a piece of old log which held it up. When he found that he was mired, Osster was not long in realizing his danger, and began to shout for help, shouting himself hoarse before recollecting that he was three-quarters of a mile from any house and half a mile from the travelled road.

As it grew dark, and as he felt himself being slowly dragged down, the man took a careful survey of the situation to discover his chances of escape from the death creeping upon him. His first act was to empty his pockets and remove his coat and vest, in order that the extra weight should not assist to sink him. He also preceived that his best way was to keep as quiet as possible, as every exertion acted to mire him deeper. To his right, about ten feet away was a knoll of solid ground, on which grew a thorn apple tree, one of the limbs extending almost over the man's head, and about fourfeet beyond the reach of his arms. Thinking that if he could get possession of his gun he might secure the limb, Osster took off his suspenders, tied them together and made a noose in one end, and after careful and tedious work lassoed the rifle and dragged it to him. This was after he had been in the mire nearly two hours, and quite a while after dark.

He was imbued to believe that he had not sunk any for the last half hour, but the extra weight of the gun, as he held it up, sunk him to his hips in a moment, and he quickly laid it down. The feeling was as if his legs were being pressed by the jaws of a vice, and the mire was cold enough to benumb him. He saw that any move to get the limb would be sure to sink him, and so he carefully laid the rifle across a tuft of grass within reach. Little tufts of ground not much larger than his hand, were all around the man, but the moment he took hold of one of them it would pull away, having no real support.

Oster had a pipe with him, and he got this from his coat and twisted off the German silver ring around the stem. The ring he broke between his teeth, bent it up like a hook, and then fastened it to his suspenders, determined to make an effort to reach the limb. Time after time he made the throw, but the hook failed to catch, or slipped off, or bent out straight, and at ten o'clock at night the victim was up to his hips, and slowly settling. Placing his coat and vest on either side, he pushed them down with his hands, and in this way kept his body from settling as fast as it otherwise would. He ceased trying to shout, knowing that he could not expect help before another day. How he passed the long, gloomy night can scarcely be imagined.

As Osster did not return at dark, Starks feared that he might have shot himself or met with some accident, and walked a mile or so in the direction from which the man was expected, and stopped within a half a mile of where he was sinking down to death. Returning home, he agreed to make a further search in the morning, and when the time came got a neighbor to go with him. They took a direction quite distant from where Osster was to be found and, to be brief, searched the woods until nearly noon, and then determined to go to the hamlet and see if Osster had been there. In coming out of the woods they passed within forty rods of Osster, and were nearly half a mile away when one of them fired a shot at a squirrel on the fence. All night long Osster had been slowly sinking, and when the sun marked noon he was up to his shoulders in the mire. Hearing the shot, he put forth all his vocal strength into one grand shout, followed by another, and his voice was heard and recognized.

Even after his friends were within fifty feet of him he had to shout to guide them, as his head was below the grass. It is needless to say that they instantly set about the work of rescuing him. Logs and brush were piled into the swamp until they could reach him. Finding that they could not pull him out by the arms, the mire was scooped away from his body, and he was literally pried out by a lever inserted under his feet. When discovered by his rescuers, Osster had the gun in his hands, and he informed them that he had made up his mind to shoot himself through the head rather than be slowly strangled by the ooze. He could not walk for an hour after being taken out, and he was sick in bed with fever the day after his deliverance.

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anguish, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES — SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appear. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale at "less price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1871.

Chicago.

Advices from Chicago, on Monday, state that there is wonderful activity in the South Division. Thousands of men are at work clearing away the debris, putting up temperary buildings, &c. Every laboring man willing to work can find plenty to do at liberal wages. The action of the banks in unanimously resolving to open for business, and the promptness of insurance companies in settling losses, inspire renewed confidence. The reports of the loss of life have been greatly exaggerated. The number of dead bodies already discovered is less than 125. A large number supposed to be lost are alive and well. Few citizens are leaving Chicago, all hoping for employment in building. Food is served daily and there is plenty of it. The banks opened for business Tuesday, and will pay deposits in full. All branches of trade are rapidly locating for a resumption of business. Markets quiet.

As if the accounts of disaster were not afflicting enough already, it is now stated that Barney Aaron, the prize fighter, thief, New York politician, &c., is alive and in prison at Chicago.

Mr. E. J. Tinkham of the Second National Bank, before the fire had reached the bank building, Monday morning, succeeded in getting $600,000 in greenbacks out of the safe. This he placed in a trunk, and hired a colored man to carry it to the Milwaukee depot, promising the man $1000 for the job. Fearing to be recognized in connection with the precious load, Mr. Tinkham followed the man at some distance; but owing to the crowded condition of the streets soon lost sight of him. Being overtaken by fire he had several narrow escapes from being suffocated, and at last, being driven to the lake, succeeded in working his way to a tug boat, and was taken around to the Milwaukee depot, where he found the colored man awaiting him according to promise, with the trunk safe in his possession. He paid the price stipulated, and taking the money to Milwaukee, deposited it safely in a bank.

The Pacific Insurance Company will probably go into liquidation, as their losses were two millions, instead of one fifty-five per cent.

Secretary Boutwell's private secretary, who went to Chicago in charge of the Treasury funds, and on business, writes that not less than five hundred children have been born in tents and on the open prairie since that terrible disaster, and that many deaths and much suffering have ensued. He also writes that though the citizens are entering upon the work of rebuilding and reconstructing with confidence and enthusiasm, many of the older and thoughtful are not over sanguine, and begin to realize more strongly than ever the magnitude of the calamity and the long work which is before them.

Boston's contributions amounted to $370,000, on Monday evening. Brooklyn has contributed $121,400; Albany $40,000; St. John, N. B., $6000; Garrison of Quebec, 1500 blankets and a quantity of tents; Santa Fe, $800; District of Columbia, $157,000.

Aid For The West.

The St. Louis relief fund committee have sent a large amount of clothing and $2500 to the Michigan sufferers. Twelve hundred dollars and one hundred barrels of flour have been sent to the sufferers along Lake Huron from Adrian, Michigan.

Hon. Samuel Spring, treasurer of the Portland relief fund, on Saturday telegraphed to Governor Fairchild of Wisconsin and to the mayor of Detroit to draw on him at sight for $1000 each for the relief of the sufferers in Michigan and Wisconsin.

The Odd Fellows of Worcester, Mass., raised $500 for the sufferers by the fires in Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin. On Thursday, the 19th, a church vestry in each section of Boston will be opened under the auspices of the relief committee of the Young Men's Christian Association, for the reception of contributions specially for the relief of the sufferers in Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota.

The Elections.

General Harrison, chairman of the Ohio Republican State Committee, writes that Governor Noyes will have 24,000 majority and that the Republicans willcontrol each branch of the legislature, thus retaining the congressional apportionment.

The Republican majority in Iowa is now stated to be only 42,000.

A Broad Record.—The Manchester Public Forum says:—

The records of the Democratic party are written all over a very much broader field than the narrow limits of New York City.

True. The records of the Democratic party are as easily read in the histories of the Libby prison-hell and the Andersonville murder-pen, in the "gag law," the Dred Scott decision, the Kansas-Nebraska swindle, the fugitive slave law and New Haven's false election returns, as in Controller Connolly's false accounts or the bills for Boss Tweed's horse-palace and Oakey Hall's anti-equal-rights proclamation of the 11th of last July. And yet another page of the Democratic party's broadly written records will soon be made public, as it is announced that the Government agents inside the Ku-Klux Klans themselves have placed it in possession of the whole paraphernalia, insignia, and to a great extent the names of the leaders of the order. These broadly written records are just what the Democratic party desire to whitewash over—to take a "new departure" from; their old hunker principles, or lack of principle, they cling to as closely as ever.

A Young War Brewing.—Considerable excitement has been created in Boston by the announcement that an English man-of-war is crusing in the bay between Cape Cod and Cape Ann, to intercept the fishing schooner E. A. Horton of Gloucester, which was seized and taken into Guysboro, N. S., for violation of the fishery law, and while awaiting the decision of the vice-admiralty court, was cut out by unknown parties a week ago Sunday night. The matter has been brought to the attention of Collector Russell and a United States official will have an interview with the President relative to the same subject.

Looking Ahead.—Mr. Bradlaugh, at an immense meeting in London, Monday night, declared that the Queen was insane, and demanded that the regency be intrusted to the judges in law and equity until a republic is established.

Yachting.—The first race of the season, for the Queen's Cup, took place Monday between the Columbia, of the N. Y. Yacht Club, and the British yacht Livonia. The former won without time allowance, by twenty-five minutes.

A Great Enterprise Completed.—Arrived at Bangor Monday night on time.

A Great Gale in Montreal on Sunday blew down buildings and caused much dismay. One person was killed and several injured.

U. S. Supreme Court opened Monday, Chief Justice Chase presiding. Justices Field, Nelson and Davis were absent.

Retired Officers.—Perhaps it is right. Or, at least, perhaps it may not be otherwise, while gray hairs are sensitive and old hearts are proud,—while young blood beats loud and pushes hard, and old blood runs slow; while the rising rather than the setting sun is worshiped in high places. And yet to us who are ignorant as to the grave public (or political) exigences whence arise the individual hardships; who see only the brave hearts bent and crushed; the years of querulous discontent and shame following life-times of heroic devotion and noble service; to us it does seem sadly strange that the best and bravest of our officers, the men who,—relinquishing all possibilities of building up a competence for themselves and their children, submitting to be bereaved of their homes and daring imminent dangers,—give the strength of their youth and the full vigor of their manhood to their country, have nothing to which they can so confidently look forward as an old age of disappointment, neglect, and penury. The land was startled a few weeks ago by the suicide of an eminent officer, who had read the news of his retirement as if it had been the brand of a court-martial. But there is something sadder than this—the hundred broken hearts feebly beating to-day beneath the worn and faded uniforms of a service the proudest upon earth.—Scribner's Magazine for November.

—The Cynthiana, Ky., Democrat kindly recommends the hanging of just two-thirds of the democratic editors in that State. A collection for his wife ought to be started at once, for surely he will lead off in the good work, and his wife isn't to blame.—Cherub.

—The physicians attending Queen Victoria report that Her Majesty continues to suffer greatly from severe attacks of rheumatism.

—In Hoboken on Sunday night Thomas McMahon and Moses Henry stabbed each other. Both are dead.

—The trial of Botts for the murder of Pet Halstead was begun Monday, a large crowd attending.

—A naval hospital is to be built at Yokohama.

—The rinderpest has appeared in Mongolia.

Political.

State Attorney-General Champlain of New York says that he will exert all the power of his office to prosecute every person implicated in the great frauds in New York city, when he is properly applied to to bring action against them.

Senator Carpenter says that Wisconsin is good for 10,000 Republican majority in November.

The Domestic Sewing Machine.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

There is no better remedy than "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment." For all diseases of throat and lungs, it should be used internally and externally.

THE EUROPEAN QUESTION.

What is the European question to us? Let the crowned heads fight it out while we supply their armies with provisions.

THE AMERICAN QUESTION

An Anchor to Windward.

It is good seamanship, when there is reason to expect heavy weather, to drop an anchor to windward.

We are in the midst of the season of chills and fever. The sure preventive of this distressing malady is HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. A course of that wholesome vegetable tonic will render an attack impossible. Take the hint and drop an anchor to windward.

Weak stomachs are most liable to be disordered late in the autumn, when the changes of temperature are marked and frequent. Hostetter's Bitters fortifies the stomach against the effects of these variations. Let dyspeptics make a note of the fact, and drop an anchor to windward.

The liver is most sensitive when the weather is continually alternative between the warmth of summer and the cold of winter than at any other period of the year. This is peculiarly the season of such alterations. Let the bilious remember that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is essentially an anti-bilious medicine, and drop an anchor to windward.

The wisest plan is to forestall evil. The next best thing is to arrest it. For disorders of the stomach, irregularities of the bowels, and all periodical fevers, take, as soon as the complaint developes itself, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters.

MR. MOSES, with his trained class of Young Lady Minstrels, will give a Scenic and Dramatic CONCERT, at the Temple,

Tuesday Evening, Oct. 31st.

With rose ascending,
Outspreading, beaming,
It is no dreaming,
Day smiles advancing,
Oh, how entrancing, &c."

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. A Conundrum—Probably.

The following conundrum—if it is not a conundrum we "give it up" all the same—we find in our office box. Perhaps some of our readers can guess what it means; we do not care to try.

To show that all the world don't scorn him,
The Lyre has had "three heads" put on him.

Feels Bad.

The local Democratic organ seems to feel bad about something, and undertakes to demolish President Grant to relieve its ill temper. He can stand it, —whole armies of Democrats tried it when he was commander-in-chief of the Union forces, and failed. We hear it suggested that the Democratic organ would have shown less ill temper had its editor managed to secure one of the President's cigar-stumps.

Gen. Justin Dimick

Of the regular army, who died recently, aged 77, was appointed to West Point from Vermont, served with distinction in Florida and Mexico, and commanded the artillery school at Fortress Monroe from 1859 to 1861; was commander at Fort Warren from '62 to '64; retired from active service in 1863, and in 1865 was breveted Brigadier-General. He was a polished gentleman, a gallant soldier and estimable citizen.

N. H. Supreme Court.

The S. J. Court opened in this city at 11 o'clock A. M., on Tuesday, Judge William Foster, presiding. A blessing was invoked by Rev. James DeNormandie, and Judge Foster gave an able and lengthy charge to the Grand Jury, who will be occupied for several days, as there are criminal cases of importance; and the Court will probably be in session for four weeks. Hon. John S. Frink, County Solicitor, and High Sheriff Samuel Rowe made their first appearance in Court in these positions since their appointment by Governor Weston.

Clam Chowder For Two.

A clam chowder was served in the Engine House by Sagamore S. F. Engine Co. No. 2, on Tuesday evening, got up in the company's best style, which is about as good a style as there is agoing for clam chowders. The mudlarks were prepared so nicely that they must have felt glad that they ever found their way into Twos' hash-manufactory, and the boys and their guests performed prodigies in the way of surrounding the chowder. Over one hundred persons sat down and filled up, including Mayor Adams, several Aldermen, the City Clerk and other members of the City Government, the Chief Engineer, members of other engine companies, our reporter, whose modesty was the theme of general commendation, the Postmaster, who caused every bowl of chowder he looked at to tremble with dismay and showed himself as capable and energetic in his private capacity as he is in attending to the wants of the public, and many others. Short speeches and other amusements followed the weightier duties of the table, and the pleasant party broke up early enough to allow all to reach home in good season.

President Grant

And party passed through this city Tuesday forenoon, on their way East. The railroad train made but a brief stop, just long enough to allow the dense crowd to see the President—who appeared on the platform of the rear car, accompanied by Ex-Gov. Stearns—and for a goodly number to shake hands with him. Mayor Adams introduced the City Government to the President, and the latter to the people. Harlow's Marine Band discoursed music, the multitude gave cheer after cheer, the train started and the President and accompanying notables were gone, — a salute sounding from the Navy Yard battery as the train moved over Portsmouth Bridge. Many people were disappointed in the "very obstinate" man's personal appearance, as they had expected to see a reserved, silent man, wholly indifferent to the honors paid him; instead of which appeared a very pleasant looking individual, bowing courteously to their salutes and evidently very far from being regardless of the interest shown. But even when smiling there is an expression on his face which makes one realize that he could be obstinate enough, if he should try.

New Hampshire Items.

A worthy citizen of New Durham, who lives at the base of Cropple Crown mountain, furnishes ten children to the school in that district, of ages from four to sixteen years, and there are two younger at home. They are all beautiful children, and the mother of the twelve is as fair and brisk as a girl of sixteen, and there is a reasonable probability that the family will yet increase indefinitely. So says a correspondent of the Rochester Courier, and adds that "along the base of Cropple Crown mountain they do shell out the children like peas from a pod."

The principal railroads will furnish, through the Secretary of the State Teachers' Association, free return tickets to all who pass over them to attend the meeting at Dover, Oct. 26 and 27. Female teachers will be provided with free entertainment by sending names, before the meeting, to the Secretary of the School Committee, Dover. The hotels favor with reduced charges.

A new granite ledge has been discovered at Plymouth. It is about a quarter of a mile from the railroad. The granite seems to be of superior quality, and the supply is immense. It splits, hammers and finishes in fine style, and its beauty is not marred by exposure to the weather.

Mr. Bean of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company's works at Manchester has gone to Chicago with two steam fire-engines, and the Amoskeag Company is busily engaged in finishing several other engines in answer to orders received from the authorities at Chicago.

Mr. Lowell Sylvester of Westminster, Mass., while out guaning in Winchester on Saturday afternoon, accidentally shot himself.

Lake Village experienced a shock of an earthquake on Sunday night. It passed from the northwest to the southeast, and was generally noticed, though lasting but a few seconds.

The Sugar River Railroad has got to within three and a half miles of Newport, and will be opened next month.

IMPROVED METHOD OF VACCINATION.—In view of the great spread of the small-pox at the present day in American and Europe, and the importance of successful vaccination, the suggestion of an English physician, Mr. Ellis, may be of some importance. This gentleman remarks that ordinary vaccination is performed by scraping off the epidermis, and thrusting the vaccine virus into a puncture made by the lancet. A greatly improved method, however, consists in first raising a small blister by a drop of cantharides applied to the skin. This is to be pricked, and the drop of fluid let out, and then a fine vaccine point put into this place, and withdrawn after a moment of delay; the epidermis falls back and quite excludes the air, shutting out any germs that may be floating in the atmosphere. This method has been practised by Mr. Ellis for twenty years; and out of hundreds of cases of vaccination which he has performed, he has never had an instance of blood-poisoning or abscess, while by the ordinary method the occurrence of secondary abscess is by no means uncommon, and that or pyæmia is often observed. The comparative safety of his method is believed to be due, first, to the exclusion of the air; and second, to the lesser size of the aperture for the introduction of mischief than when the punctures are made by the lancet.—EDITOR'S SCIENTIFIC RECORD, in Harpers' Mag. for November.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.
BANKING OFFICE OF
FISK & HATCH,
No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.
September 25th, 1871.
Of the FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $4,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.

The five years' option having expired on all series of FIVE-TWENTY BONDS, except 1867s and 1868s, they are liable to be called in for payment. The redemption of 160 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchases by the Government during the ensuing four months, with the premium thereon, will release about 150 millions of invested capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek reinvestment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sixes

have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought

17 per cent. less than Ten-forties.
20 per cent. less than Five-twenties.
23 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,

and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price (at present) 93 and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1.

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $954.16.
$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $477.08.
$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $95.42.

Only a small amount of the latter denominations remains, and no more can be made. Bonds are in coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.

The debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company in order to develop speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work —the most important internal improvement now progressing in the country—is rapidly approaching completion. It will establish another and superior line of communication between the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the Eastern States, and nearer to the political and commercial capitals of their country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line that the larger cities of the West are projecting feeders to connect with it, so as to avail themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are passing into the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of reliable navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad carriage.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC SIX PER CENT. BONDS are as safe for investment as Government Bonds at present fixed by act of Congress at $25,000,000, is secured by property worth four times their value; they can only be bought in the open market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they have a ready market in all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are steadily increasing, and will probably reach $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a handsome surplus after paying all expenses and interest. Present price, 101½ to 102.

When the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, in 1872, and the Bonds are dealt in at the Stock Exchanges of the world, we have no doubt they will be equally popular with the Central Pacifics. Both principal and interest of the CENTRAL PACIFIC and CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS, are specifically payable in gold coin in New York; the interest on the former being paid January and July, and of the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.

We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, EIGHTY-ONES, and CENTRAL or WESTERN PACIFICS, or receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKES AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be forwarded by any responsible Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid. FISK & HATCH.

P. S.—Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, on which we allow Four Per Cent. Interest.

Certificates of deposit issued and collections made in all parts of the Union.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?
—IF SO, USE THE—
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.
It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. Morning Chronicle.

A SINGULAR ACCIDENT happened recently day in the streets of London. It appears that a huge steam roller was in Pall Mall on its way to St. James park, to be used on some paving work. At twelve o'clock the driver of the engine concluded to go and get his dinner. He, therefore, shut off steam, and left the engine standing in front of the Pall Mall restaurant. A crowd of people soon gathered around, including some mischievous boys, one of whom got on the engine and managed in some way to start it. This done, the lad ran away. The locomotive, to the dismay of the bystanders, started off, at first slowly, but continually increasing its speed, and presently spread consternation all around. Its first direction was for the statue, which it would probably have overthrown if not demolished, but when close up to it, the engine turned capriciously almost at a right angle, went straight across the street, and into the shop of Mr. Thompson, a photographic colorist. Its entrance was effected by the window, which was totally smashed, and not only this, but the heavy stone facade underneath the glass was also shattered to fragments. Several ladies standing in front of the window were slightly hurt, and one gentleman seriously. Two other ladies fainted in the crowd, and, being trampled under foot, received bad, although not dangerous injuries. The devastation committed by the unruly machine in the window, which was full of pictures and other fragile articles, is said to have been indescribable, and it is easy to believe that a bull in a china shop could have been nothing to it.—N. Y. Times.

THE IMP OF MONTEREY.—There is a digger boy employed on a sheep ranch in Monterey county, California, who is a human curiosity. He herds about eight hundred sheep all by himself, by sight, and when he brings them in at night he will get upon the corral fence and tell whether one is missing. He is about fourteen, and has a face as round as the moon, and the brightest black eyes, which fairly sparkle with mischief.

He turns more somersaults, and hangs head downward from more trees than a man could count readily; and seems hardly to be aware of the existence of his sheep during the whole day, yet he brings them all at in night. Like a true Indian, his motions are perfectly cat-like, and he never calls his sheep but always imitates the owl, the wild cat, or the coyote. When his employer calls him he never answers a syllable, but starts and runs towards him with all his might.

Mischievous as he is when alone he is as shy as a partridge, and was never known to come to his meals with the others unless he was specially called by name. The overseer got tired of being obliged to always give him a special invitation to dinner, so he went out and took him by the sleeve and led him to the table; but the boy straightway burst out crying and blubbering in grievous distress of mind, and it took him two days to recover his equanimity.

A revolver was bought for him that he might shoot at the coyotes when they came to prey upon his flock, but he regarded it with aversion. At last they prevailed on him to carry it for two days in succession and on the second day he saw a wild cat, crept upon it with true Indian stealth, lay flat upon his belly, held the pistol to his face, and after sighting along the barrel and then squinting at the cat alternately about a dozen times, at last fired. The pistol kicked him in the burr of the ear, and after that he could never be induced to take it again. The Diggers are a timorous and gentle race, and do not take to fire-arms like the Apaches.

—The Paris correspondent of the Echo writes: A man, name unknown, was discovered poisoned in one of the streets of Champs Elysees recently. On searching the body at the dead house a paper was found in his side pocket, on which he had carefully written, minute by minute, his "impressions" at the approach of death. I subjoin a part of this strange document: "Ten o'clock at night—I must finish. I will get into a garden, and die in an unknown corner. Five minutes past ten—Here I am in the corner, covered up with my cloak. The air is cold and damp. But what have I to fear from cold? The gaslight just reaches me. Quarter-past ten—Everything is ready. I take my bottle of poison. How strange! to think those few drops will seperate my soul from my body. Twenty minutes past ten—'Tis done! I have swallowed the liquid! What is going on within me? I feel nothing but curiosity. The cafes below are gay. I hear them. Ah! Half-past ten. Fearful pains in my legs and back. My ideas are confused. The world is disappearing from me. My childhood appears before me, mother, father, all! Quarter to eleven. Sleep is overcoming me. The beginning of the end is at hand. My legs are dead. Where is my soul? Will it wander from globe to globe through thousands of centuries? What matters? I came into the world without thinking; I must leave it the same. Eleven o'clock. What do they say? The cold has reached my stomach. My head is heavy. I cannot see. Oh! I should know——" There were a few words more, but they could not be deciphered.

—The best way of preserving fresh leaves is to place them between the folds of a gocoa-nut paper, and iron them with a moderately hot smoothing iron, keeping the under sides of the leaves upwards.

—Joe Wright county (Minn.) poorhouse is a living skeleton, who drinks two quarts of water a day.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS.
Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.
WHAT ARE THEY!
THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,
Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.
For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.
DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.
They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.
FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.
Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.
PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.
FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. Send for a circular.
They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, passessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawfsb16

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.
The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean the process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slight est predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.
The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of these Mandrake Pills; but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ is torpid, and the appetite is gone. The bowels are costive, the liver is weak, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most invaluable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and thus make a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup nourishes the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it is ripened. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.
The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is a new order of things, a good digestion, a good appetite, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, and if a person is very bad, if the lungs are not entirely gone, if there is still one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up, there is hope.
I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's medicines will do to cure Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.
It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep in-doors in cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.
I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason. A man who has but partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is far more liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and it is precisely the same in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I am so strongly caution pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not genial and pleasant. Confirmed consumptives' lungs are a mass of tubercles, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The grand secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to subdue inflammation instead of fanning it into flame, by the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety to the patient be exposed to the biting winds of winter or the chilling rains of spring or autumn. It should be carefully shielded from all irritating influence. The utmost caution should be observed in the patient, as without it a cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.
The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutritious diet, and all the medicines continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.
I may myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty there many years, with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment whom I have never seen.
About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.
Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

VAGARIES OF A STARVING MAN.—Mr. Everts, who was lost in the Yellowstone, contributes to Scribner's an interesting account of his "Thirty-seven Days of Peril." We quote:

"I lost all sense of time. Days and night came, went, and were numbered only by the growing consciousness that I was gradually starving. I felt no hunger, did not eat to appease appetite, but to renew strength. I experienced but little pain. The gaping sores on my feet, the severe burn on my hip, the festering crevices at the joints of my fingers, all terrible in appearance, had ceased to give me the least concern. The roots which supplied my food had suspended the digestive power of the stomach, and their fibres were packed in it in a matted, compact mass.

Not so with my hours of slumber. They were visited by the most luxurious dreams. I would apparently visit the most gorgeously decorated restaurants of New York and Washington; sit down to immense tables spread with the most appetizing viands; partake of the richest oyster stews and plumpest pies; engage myself in the labor and preparation of curious dishes, with them fill range upon range of elegantly furnished tables until they fairly groaned beneath the accumulated dainties prepared by my own hands. Frequently the entire night would seem to have been spend in getting up a sumptous dinner. I would realize the fatigue of roasting, boiling, baking, and fabricating the choicest dishes known to the modern cuisine, and in my disturbed slumbers would enjoy with epicurean relish the food thus furnished even to repletion. Alas! there was more luxury than life in these somnolent vagaries.

* * * * *

By some process which I was too weak to solve, my arms, legs, and stomach were transformed into so many traveling companions. Often for hours I would plod along conversing with these imaginary friends. Each had his peculiar wants which he expected me to supply. The stomach was importunate in his demand for a change of diet—complained incessantly of the roots I fed to him, their present effect and more remote consequences. I would try to silence him with promises, beg of him to wait a few days, and when this failed of the quiet I desired, I would seek to intimidate him by declaring, as a sure result of negligence, our inability to reach home alive. All to no purpose—he tormented me with his fretful humors through the entire journey. The others would generally concur with him in these fanciled altercations. The legs implored me for rest, and the arms complained that I gave them too much to do. Troublesome as they were, it was a pleasure to realize their presence. I worked for them, too, with right good will, doing many things for their seeming comfort which, had I felt myself alone, would have remained undone. They appeared to be perfectly helpless of themselves; would do nothing for me or for each other. I often wondered, while they ate and slept so much, that they did not aid in gathering wood and kindling fires. As a counterpoise to their own inertia, whenever they discovered languor in me on necessary occasions, they were not wanting in words of encouragement and cheer. I recall as I write an instance where, by prompt and timely interposition, the representative of the stomach saved me from a death of dreadful agony. One day I came to a small stream issuing from a spring of mild temperature on the hillside, swarming with minnows. I caught some with my hands and ate them. To my taste they were delicious. But the stomach refused them, accused me of attempting to poison him and would not be reconciled until I had emptied my pouch of the few fish I had put there for future use."

MANHOOD
IN THE
Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S
EXTRACT BUCHU

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Nervous Irritability: Nothing is more debilitate to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES — SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.
